SUMNER WELLES FOUND IN FIELD, UNCONSCIOUS AND WITH TOES FROZEN

Former Under Secretary of State Is Believed to Have Suffered Heart Attack — Condition Is Serious.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 (AP)—Sumner Welles, former Under Secretary of State, was found unconscious in a snow-covered Maryland field yesterday, his fingers and toes frozen.

He remained in a serious condition today from "severe exposure and shock," but was reported reacting favorably to treatment.

Welles apparently had lain in the field for several hours. The temperature was about 15 degrees above zero when he was found.

Can't Tell What Happened.

Welles regained consciousness yesterday afternoon but was unable to say what had happened, his physician, Dr. George R. Huffman, said.

The doctor said it would be a day or two before he would know whether any of Welles's fingers or toes might have to be amputated.

Circumstances indicated that Welles left his estate at nearby Oxon Hill, Md., in the early hours of Sunday. His estate is across the Potomac river from Mount Vernon.

A son, Arnold Welles, said the family believes he suffered a heart attack when out walking. He was stricken with a heart ailment 18 years ago and has been under treatment for it since then.

Friends reported that Welles has been deeply upset by the death in New York Dec. 20 of Laurence Duggan, a close personal friend. Duggan, a protege of Welles in the State Department, was killed when he fell or jumped from his sixteenth floor office window.

Defends Duggan's Loyalty.

After Duggan's death, it was disclosed that his name had been linked with the current investigation of Communist spy activity in the State Department 10 years ago. Welles thereupon issued a statement in which he called Duggan a loyal public servant. Former Secretary of State Cordell Hull and Attorney General Tom C. Clark, among others, also vouched for Duggan's loyalty.

Earlier this month, Welles had been called before the House Committee on Un-American Activities to assess the importance of the widely publicized "pumpkin papers" which Whittaker Chambers said had been stolen from State Department files in 1937 and 1938.

In New York, a spokesman for the federal spy-hunting grand jury said Welles was not under subpena to appear before the body. The spokesman, Special Assistant United States Attorney General Thomas J. Donegan, declined to say, however, whether Welles would be summoned after the jury resumes deliberations next month.

A 10-year-old boy, Robert Kerby, first saw Welles lying in the field about a mile from the imposing Welles manor house. Robert was returning from mass with his family.

Face Is Scratched.

The boy's father, Brooke Kerby, summoned three neighbors to help carry Welles to a nearby farm house. His face was scratched and puffed from the cold.

Kerby said Welles's clothing was "frozen to his body" and covered with mud, sand and ice. This led Kerby to believe that Welles fell into a small stream about 100 yards from where he was found.

An ambulance summoned from Oxon Hill took Welles to Casualty Hospital here. He was given oxygen during the 10-mile ride.

Dr. Huffman said there was no evidence of violence. Scratches on Welles's face and hands apparently came from rocks and bushes, the doctor said.

He said the fur-collared coat, which Welles wore, "probably saved his life."

Valuable Watch in Pocket.

Prince Georges county police reported that a valuable watch and cigarette case were found in Welles's pockets.

Welles was last seen by his butler about 10:30 p.m. Saturday. He was working on some papers in the downstairs study. Mrs. Welles did not know her husband had gone out until she was notified by police about 8:30 a.m. yesterday that he had been found.

Private Lawrence Riddlebarger of the Prince Georges police said he found a bottle of sleeping tablets in one of Welles's pockets. He quoted the Welles family physician as saying the former diplomat has been taking them under prescription for some time but that there was no evidence he had taken any before going out.

While Welles's physician reported "definite improvement" in his condition last night, he did not rule out the possibility that surgery might be necessary.

Six-foot-two, slender, precise and formal in manner, Welles personifies a diplomat's appearance.

For years, intimate friend of President Franklin D. Roosevelt and former Secretary of State Hull entrusted him with many important assignments. He later broke with Hull, however, and resigned from the State Department in September 1943.

In recent years, he has devoted most of his attention to writing books on foreign policy and a newspaper column. (The Post-Dispatch publishes his articles.)

BUSSES TO REPLACE STREETCARS ON TWO LINES WEDNESDAY

Busses will replace streetcars on the Woodson avenue and the Maryland lines beginning Wednesday, a spokesman for the St. Louis Public Service Co., said today.

Changes to busses on five other streetcar lines, each of which runs into St. Louis county, are dependent on the obtaining of permits from the municipalities affected.

On the Woodson line the busses will travel west on St. Charles Rock road from the Wellston loop at 6111 Easton avenue to Coles avenue, which is 9600 west. They will return east on St. Charles to Hodiamont avenue, north on Hodiamont to Theodosia avenue and west on Theodosia to the Wellston loop.

During the morning rush hour, busses will leave Coles avenue every five and one-half to six minutes. During the evening rush hour, the busses will leave Wellston loop every four and one-half to five minutes. During the middle of the day, the busses will run at 15-minute intervals. The first bus will leave the Wellston loop at 4:16 a.m. The first eastbound bus from Coles will depart at 4:37 a.m. The last eastbound bus will leave Coles at 1:41 a.m. and the last westbound bus will leave Wellston loop at 1:20 a.m.

The Maryland avenue bus will travel east on Maryland from Kingshighway to Boyle avenue, then turn south on Boyle to Lindell boulevard. It will travel east on Lindell and Locust street to Third street. Returning, this bus will proceed west on Locust and Lindell to Kingshighway and north on Kingshighway to Maryland.

HOLIDAY RECORDS FOR FIRST-CLASS MAIL, PARCEL POST

From Dec. 1 through Christmas eve, considered the rush period, 55,441,060 pieces of first-class mail, including greeting cards, were canceled. This number was 2,372,960 greater than last year's cancellations, which had been the record.

Special deliveries from Dec. 15 through 24 totaled 116,849, compared with 91,636 in the last Christmas rush. On Christmas day this year 9064 pieces of mail were delivered—another record.

Previously announced records established by the post office this Christmas season were the $179,000 in postal receipts taken in last Tuesday and the 6,449,000 pieces of first-class mail that were canceled in a 24-hour period last week.

Postmaster Bernard F. Dickmann has pointed out that the record-breaking rush of Christmas mail shows the need for additional working space in the main post office building at Eighteenth and Market streets.

SHARK KILLS SUMMER BATHER

18 Drownings Also Reported on Australian Beaches.

SYDNEY, Dec. 27 (AP)—Eighteen persons drowned and one man was eaten by a shark yesterday as Australians flocked to the beaches to escape the midsummer heat.

Christmas Baby, 2 Front Teeth.

CLEARFIELD, Pa., Dec. 27 (AP)—His parents insist it had nothing to do with the song but the Christmas baby born to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Liberty had two front teeth. The infant boy was born Christmas day at Clearfield Hospital.

SENATORS ASSAIL CLAY'S CLEMENCY IN ILSE KOCH CASE, WANT NEW TRIAL

Subcommittee Advises Against Ordering General to Reverse Himself — Would Bring Additional Charges.

By EDWIN B. HAAKINSON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 (AP)—Investigating Senators held yesterday that Army officials made a serious mistake in reducing the life sentence of Ilse Koch, widow of a commander of the notorious Nazi Buchenwald concentration camp, to four years.

But they agreed with Army leaders tha Gen. Lucius D. Clay, American military governor in occupied Germany, should not reverse himself now and increase the sentence. That would be adopting Nazi tactics, Senators said. The report was from the investigations subcommittee of the Senate Committee on Executive Expenditures.

The subcommittee urged military officials to find another charge on which Frau Koch "should be brought to justice in a United States military court."

If this is impossible, it said, Frau Koch should be tried in German courts "for crimes committed against German nationals."

"Although it is unfortunate that it may be necessary for military authorities to adopt this course, it is, at the same time highly important that Ilse Koch receive the punishment she so justly deserves without doing further violence to long-established safeguards of democratic justice," the report said and added:

"The error in the Koch case is an isolated blemish on the vigilance and certainty of this democratic justice. Its repetition must be prevented."

Arkansas Senator's Stand.

During the closed hearing, the transcript shows Senator McClellan (Dem.), Arkansas, said:

"I think the woman should have her neck broken, I think an awful mistake and miscarriage of justice has occurred."

But the Senator said it would be "another mistake" to ask Gen. Clay to reopen the case or try to reverse it now.

Senators Ferguson (Rep.), Michigan; O'Conor (Dem.), Maryland, and Bricker (Rep.), Ohio, also sat through the lengthy hearings. All agreed that Gen. Clay could not reopen the case and increase the sentence.

To do so, the report said, "would violate established rules of democratic justice and would deny to her the rights afforded to any criminal convicted by a United States criminal court."

Also signing the report were Senators Thye (Rep.), Minnesota; Ives (Rep.), New York, and Hoey (Dem.), North Carolina, who did not attend the hearings.

"Most Bestial Woman."

Lurid testimony about use of tattooed human skin from Buchenwald prisoners to make lampshades, book covers, knife sheaths and even gloves was released by the Senate group along with its official recommendations.

There was a long dispute among legal experts as to whether the Koch woman was directly involved but Senators described her as a "most bestial woman."

She was tried with 30 former camp officials and inmates for a "common design" that included "killings, beatings, torture, starvation, abuses and indignities."

Senators found she was "legally responsible for acts committed" and that the original life sentence was justified.

"There is no evidence that any other officer's wife or any other woman participated in the operation of the camp,'" the Senators said. "Being a woman made her participation more unnatural and more deliberate . . . four years' imprisonment is not just punishment for her acts."

But Senators found that even if the decision of Gen. Clay and his subordinates was "erroneous" it "was rendered in good faith and no doubt appeared to them to be a proper decision."

Secrecy Under Attack.

Failure of American officials in Germany to announce the Koch sentence reduction publicly for several months was termed a "most serious error."

"In this case involving a person of such widespread infamy, the action of the military authorities appeared to be an effort to suppress the facts," the report said. "Nothing so quickly arouses

CARDINAL MINDSZENTY

HUNGARY ARRESTS CARDINAL ON SPY, TREASON CHARGES

Mindszenty Had Long Been Under Fire for His Opposition to Communist Political System.

By ENDRE MARTON.

BUDAPEST, Dec. 27 (AP)—Cardinal Josef Mindszenty, Roman Catholic Primate of Hungary, was arrested today on suspicion of plotting against the Communist-dominated Government, spying, treason and black market money dealings, the Government announced.

The announcement contained no details. A high authority who barred use of his name, said a detailed statement will be made in 48 hours and "will contain some surprises." He said the Government had "indisputable evidence" against the Cardinal.

Istvan Barankovits, leader of the opposition in Parliament, said he was not surprised by the announcement. He said the speeches of top politicians, including Premier Istvan Dobi and Vice-Premier Matyas Rakosi (a Communist) showed a Government determination to get rid of the Cardinal. Mindszenty is considered the most ardent and probably the last powerful enemy of the present Hungarian Government.

The Cardinal, 56 years old, has not left his residence at Esztergom for a considerable time. He spent the Christmas holidays there.

Political sources said some prominent Hungarian Catholics disapproved of the Cardinal's attitude toward the present political system of this country and had asked him to change the official Catholic policy.

Mindszenty long has been under fire on charges that he misuses religious meetings to incite against Hungary's present Communist-dominated political system.

Last month the Primate was assailed by former Premier Lajos Dinnyes as a "reactionary." He declared that the Hungarian people would not tolerate reaction.

"They are determined to break reaction," Dinnyes said, "whether in the form of the purple of bishops or the sabotage of the kulaks."

Vatican Expects Excommunication For All Involved.

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 27 (AP)—Vatican sources said today if Cardinal Mindszenty has been arrested in Budapest, all Hungarian Catholics in any way connected with the arrest probably will be excommunicated.

No official report has been received here that the Primate has been arrested, but the sources said it would be "no surprise." They viewed it as a logical development in the Cardinal's long war with the Hungarian Government.

Cardinal Mindszenty is the highest ranking priest of the church to be arrested thus far in the unending conflict between church and state east of the iron curtain. Yugoslavia's Communist

NEGEB FIGHTING GROWS, BIG SCALE JEWISH DRIVE FOR DESERT SEEMS ON

Israel Apparently Trying to Push Egyptians Back Over Own Border — Land and Air Action by Both Sides.

By JAMES M. LONG

TEL AVIV, Dec. 27 (AP)—The second battle of the Negeb swelled today into a full scale fight for the barren southern desert.

A virtual news blackout existed on the Israeli side, but it appeared on the fifth day of the new fighting that Israeli commanders this time are seeking to hurl the Egyptians back across their own frontiers—or to bring Egyptian political leaders around to armistice talks without further delay.

In Cairo, Egyptian Communications Minister Dessouki Abaza Pasha said the battle had developed into a "general clash." He gave no details of the fighting, but told reporters Egypt's military position is "good."

(The United Press quoted Israeli officials in Jerusalem as saying that King Abdullah's Arab Legion broke a 26-day truce there today, firing on Jewish positions from the old city wall and wounding seven Jews.)

Arab League Call Reported.

Cairo dispatches said the sevennation Arab League was pressing the governments of other Arab nations to take up arms in support of the Egyptian Army. League Secretary General Abdel Rahman Azzam Pasha said Syria and Saudi Arabia replied they are ready to fight.

Despite the shutdown on official news here, it is known that the battle is being fought on a large scale, in an arc just inside Israeli territory from Egypt's Rafa frontier base and extending northward toward Gaza. It also is known that the fighting continues unchecked on land and in the air by both sides.

What is not known here, however, are the gains or losses on either side, or from which side came the initial impetus of the offensive; or the specific tactical objectives.

Air Raids on Bases.

The Negeb battle began immediately after recent preliminary maneuvering over an armistice get-together broke down. A military spokesman here said the Jews still were willing to talk peace, but he said there had been no further overtures to Egyptians since the Christmas-time battle began.

Use of the air arm in the present fighting seems to be confined to direct frontline support of troops, plus attacks on near-front air bases. There did not appear to be any important raids far behind the lines.

Contrary to previous practices, Israeli communiques now are silent on the names of cities or bases either bombed by their planes or raided by Egyptians.

The Israeli spokesman insisted again that there was no fighting around Faluja, inland from Gaza, where 3000 Egyptians have been trapped since the previous Negeb operation. He said the nearest land fighting to Gaza was somewhere northwest of Nirim, opposite the Egyptian base at Rafa.

Tel Aviv Area Bombed.

Last night, Arab planes dropped bombs east of Tel Aviv as Israel went into its second night of total blackout. No damage was reported.

United Nations observers reported Jewish planes raided the three Egyptian strongpoints of Tel el Arish, Rafa and Khan Yunis, the last two on the Egyptian frontier south of Gaza, yesterday. They said bombs as big as 500-pounders appear to have been used in the Gaza and Rafa areas.

The observers also reported that fighting had flared on the central front, in the "dangerous triangle" area northeast of Tel Aviv. They said the skirmishing so far was confined to small-arms fire and ground activity.

HUNGARIAN CALLS COLUMBUS JUST A PIRATE ON THE RUN

BUDAPEST, Dec. 27 (UP)—Hungarian historian Pivadar Acs claimed today that Christopher Columbus was a pirate fleeing a death sentence when he discovered America.

Acs said his conclusions were based on 160 documents from the late Fifteenth Century, covering meetings of the Venetian Senate, plus diplomatic notes found in the archives of the Hungarian Academy of Science.

The historian, a vice president of the World Hungarian-American Association, said the documents traced Columbus's alleged pirateering over a number of years and disclosed that the Venetian Senate had decided to have him killed.

PLANE FALLS IN JAMAICA BAY IN NEW YORK; MAN IS RESCUED

Whether Others Were Aboard Is Not Known — Believed to Be Private Ship.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27 (AP)—A seaplane crashed into Jamaica Bay near Idlewild International Airport today and a police helicopter later rescued one man.

It was not learned immediately whether other persons were aboard the craft, believed to be a civilian plane.

Earlier, two witnesses told Queens police headquarters that the plane turned over in the air and plunged into the water.

TRUMAN CHARGES RUSSIA BLOCKS PEACE BY FAILING TO KEEP ITS AGREEMENTS

U.N. DEFEATS RUSSIAN PLAN TO ORDER RETREAT BY DUTCH

Security Council Also Rejects Soviet Resolution for Cease-Fire in 24 Hours—Holland Silent on Its Plans.

PARIS, Dec. 27 (UP) — The United Nations Security Council today defeated a Russian proposal to order the Dutch to withdraw their forces in Indonesia to the lines they held before their eight-day campaign there.

The Soviet resolution received only five Council votes. It needed seven for approval. Russia, the Ukraine, China, Colombia and Syria voted for it. The United States, Britain, Canada, France, Belgium and Argentina abstained.

Also defeated was a Soviet resolution ordering the Dutch to cease fire within 24 hours. It received four votes, with Colombia joining the abstainers.

Russian delegate Jacob Malik submitted the resolutions after noting that "The Netherlands has not ceased action" against the Indonesian Republic.

Vassily Tarasenko of the Ukraine, also submitted a resolution calling for immediate Dutch troop withdrawals in Indonesia.

It was the second Russian attempt to get a U.N. order for the troop withdrawal. The Council voted down a similar Soviet move last Friday before approving an American resolution calling for a cease-fire and the release of captured Indonesian leaders.

The United States delegate, Dr. Philip C. Jessup, abstained today because he felt the Soviet and Ukrainian resolutions were similar to proposals voted down by the council Friday. He said the Council now should await further information on the Dutch government's attitude. He said it would

PRESIDENT CITES POTSDAM, YALTA AS EXAMPLES OF BROKEN PROMISES

Says Soviet Union Has 'System of Morals That Are Not Morals' — He Pledges to Work for Understanding.

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 27 (AP)—President Truman today flatly accused Soviet Russia of blocking a peace settlement through refusal to live up to its agreements.

He said he was worried because "our great ally" has "a system of morals that are not morals" and added:

"Contracts are not sacred to the Soviet Government."

"Specific Agreements."

"I made certain specific agreements at Potsdam—none of which have been kept by the Soviet Government," he asserted.

"Certain agreements were made at Yalta, none of which have been kept.

"I'm exceedingly sorry for that because the Russian people are a great people.

"I am sure that if the Russian people had a voice in the government of Russia these agreements would have been kept.

"There are certain leaders in the Government of that great country who are exceedingly anxious to have an understanding with us."

He did not identify those leaders.

Will Try for Understanding.

The President said that he would spend the next four years working to reach an understanding with Soviet leaders whereby permanent peace can be assured.

Truman, a surprise visitor at the luncheon, launched into his discussion of the international picture in the midst of a tribute to Jacobson, with whom he served in Battery B, 129th Field Artillery, in World War I.

Jacobson was presented by those in attendance with a check for recreation rooms for a military hospital at Tel Aviv, Israel.

The President went on to say that he was familiar with the difficulties in Israel and all over the world, but that he maintained the hope that all differences ultimately can be adjusted.

He said the whole situation is affected by the "inability of one our allies in the great war to reach an adjustment creating" the groundwork for peace in the world.

Back to Washington Wednesday.

Earlier, it was announced that the President will fly back to Washington Wednesday for a top-level conference on Thursday on Congressional reorganization and the Administration's legislative program.

The President will meet with Vice President-elect Alben Barkley and Representative Sam Rayburn, who is slated to be Speaker of the House again when the Eighty-first Congress organizes in January.

Presidential Press Secretary Charles G. Ross made the announcement after Truman told reporters his "State of the Union message" to Congress was in "fair good shape."

Ross said the message is "nearing completion" and that the President was doing some work on it today in his penthouse quarters in Kansas City's Muehlebach Hotel.

Ross and Matthew J. Connelly, another presidential secretary, reopened temporary White House headquarters in the hotel today after the Christmas holiday weekend.

Ross said he did not know whether any other congressional leaders would participate in Thursday's White House conference, a day in advance of the last rump-session of the expiring Eightieth Congress which the President criticised so frequently during his successful election campaign.

Important to Be Back Thursday.

He said that Truman "feels it important" to be back Thursday.

He will leave the Fairfax Airport in nearby Kansas at 10 a.m. (St. Louis time) on a flight expected to take a little more than three hours.

Truman discussed the message to Congress with reporters while taking his customary before-breakfast walk before motoring here from Independence this morning.

"A lot of work has been done on the message," he said but added a lot still remained to be done.

Some of the snow had melted but the going still was pretty slippery for the morning walk. As he left the summer White House, he carried a letter in his hand. Rufus Burris, an attorney friend, met him along the way.

"Do you have to mail those letters yourself, Mr. President?" he asked. "Why don't you get Jesse Donaldson (postmaster general) to mail them for you?"

The President laughed and replied, "I knew if I didn't carry it in my hand, it might get mixed up with my other mail." He did

HUMANE SOCIETY SCATTERING BIRD SEED BY PLANE

(Picture in Everyday Magazine)

Representatives of the Humane Society of Missouri began today the task of scattering by air about four tons of bird seed and food pellets for small animals over the snow-covered woods and hills within a 40-mile radius of St. Louis.

Four planes, provided by Kratz Airport, took off this morning with loads of 400 pounds each of the seed done up in five-pound paper bags that burst when dropped from an altitude of 500 feet. The measure was necessary to prevent widespread loss of birds by starvation during the period the heavy snow remains on the ground, Harold Present, field superintendent of the society, explained.

The seed was donated by Ed. F. Mangelsdorf & Bro., Inc., a seed company, which last winter gave away about nine tons for this purpose. Present said anyone who called at the society shelter, 1210 Macklind avenue, would be given some of the seed for scattering in vacant lots and in backyards.

SIX YANKS ON REICH PATROL REPORTED SEIZED BY REDS

Russians Said to Have Promised to Return by Night—Exchange of Gunfire.

FRANKFURT, Germany, Dec. 27 (AP)—Six American soldiers were seized by the Russians last night when patrolling the United States-Soviet border zone in Germany, United States constabulary officers reported today. They said the Russians promised to return the soldiers tonight.

Hessian State Police Headquarters at Wiesbaden said it had reports the six enlisted men were seized after an exchange of gunfire. The soldiers' commanding officer said he could not confirm the gunfire reports and did not know circumstances of the arrests.

Names of the six men—members of the Twenty-second Constabulary Squadron — were withheld until their release. Their commanding officer said they were patrolling in two jeeps when captured near Widdenhausen, a town on the border near Wartha.

OCEAN PLANE WINS RACE WITH STORK, BUT TWO BABIES DIE

NEW YORK, Dec. 27 (AP) — A trans-Atlantic plane winged into Idlewild airport today—victor in a race against the stork, and loser in a race with death.

Shortly after the plane landed with 41 war brides, G.I. husbands and children from Germany, Mrs. Elwira Quist, 23-year-old German war bride en route to Crookston, Minn., gave birth to a girl, three and one-half months premature. However, the infant died shortly after birth.

The body of Dorothy Muniz, four and one-half-month-old child of Cpl. and Mrs. Paul Muniz of Trinidad, Colo., was removed from the plane. The child died in the arms of her mother, Charlotte, 20, shortly after the plane left Goose Bay. The baby had been ill in a hospital in Germany.

CITY THAWS OUT AFTER A FREEZING HOLIDAY WEEKEND

St. Louisans were thawing out today after shivering through a weekend in which the mercury stayed below the freezing point. Still warmer weather is in prospect for tomorrow, the weather man said.

Meteorologist Harry F. Wahlgren predicted a high tomorrow near 40, after a low in the morning of about 25. No more snow is in sight, he said.

Early risers yesterday were greeted by a brilliant display of thick frost on trees and bushes as the temperature dipped to fourtenths of a degree below zero at Lambert-St. Louis Field. Low in the city was 9 above at 6 a.m., but Jefferson Barracks residents reported that their thermometers read 8 below. It was the coldest day thus far this winter.

Winter sports enthusiasts dotted the parks yesterday, coasting and skating under a warm sun, which sent the mercury up to 29 at 3 p.m. The parks department, however, looked with disfavor on ice skating. Ice on park lakes is too thin for safety, the department reported today.

Ice on Roads Melting.

Snow and ice on St. Louis streets and Missouri highways were melting today, and roads in the southern third of the state were clear, the highway patrol reported.

A minor automobile accident caused by icy streetcar tracks delayed Manchester line streetcars for about 15 minutes this morning. An automobile driven by John Petty, Negro, 3711 Hickory street, skidded in the Manchester avenue car tracks and struck a wooden telegraph pole in the 5200 block, breaking off the pole near the base. The pole dangled dangerously until a Public Service Co. emergency crew secured it temporarily. No one was injured.

Two men lost fingers in separate accidents here yesterday when their fingers were caught between fan belts and pulleys as they were trying to start cold truck engines. They were Albert Puleo, 1410A Blair avenue, and Anthony Wells, 908 Chambers street.

Two Hurt in Sled Accidents.

Two girls were injured seriously in separate coasting accidents yesterday. Ella Mae Dace, 11-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Dace, 6244 Ouida avenue, suffered severe lacerations of both legs when her sled struck a tree in O'Fallon Park when she was coasting down a hill.

Joyce Schroeer, 11 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Schroeer, 770 Reed avenue, Lemay, suffered serious internal injuries last night when her sled struck a parked automobile in the 800 block of Pardella avenue, Lemay. She was taken to Firmin Desloge Hospital.

At least 13 persons were injured seriously when they slipped and fell on icy pavements over the

396 Killed in Holiday Weekend Mishaps; 277 Traffic Fatalities

CHICAGO, Dec. 27 (AP)—The death toll in traffic and other accidents over the Christmas weekend had mounted to 396 today. The 277 traffic fatalities were 12 more than the advance estimate for the period by the National Safety Council. Of the 119 deaths from miscellaneous accidents, about half were caused by fire. Fires were the chief cause of children's deaths, at least 32 of 55 youngsters who perished were burned or suffocated in blazing homes.

(The United Press survey listed 473 deaths, 286 of them in traffic accidents, 77 in fires and 110 in miscellaneous accidents.)

Three persons froze to death, two in Maryland where the temperature dropped to near zero, and one in Tennessee.

There were eight holiday fatalities in Missouri, three of them in traffic accidents and five from other causes. In Illinois there were 27 deaths, 18 of them in traffic accidents and nine from miscellaneous causes.

The death toll in other states (traffic first and miscellaneous second):

Alabama 3-5; Arizona 3-1; Arkansas 2-1; California 37-12; Colorado 3-1; Connecticut 0-3; Florida 5-3; Georgia 8-0; Idaho 1-0; Indiana 15-8; Kansas 1-2; Kentucky 9-0; Louisiana 4-0; Maine 4-0; Maryland 3-5; Massachusetts 7-6; Michigan 24-2; Minnesota 6-4; Mississippi 1-0.

Nebraska 0-1; Nevada 2-0; New Hampshire 0-1; New Jersey 2-12; New Mexico 1-0; New York 11-4; North Carolina 4-3; Ohio 23-3; Oklahoma 1-0; Oregon 2-1; Pennsylvania 10-8; Rhode Island 0-1; South Carolina 6-2; Tennessee 8-1; Texas 15-3; Utah 1-0; Vermont 6-3; Virginia 8-1; Washington 5-2; West Virginia 3-2; Wisconsin 13-4.

Fur, Jewelry and Luggage Taxes Net More Despite Fall in Sales

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 (AP)—November tax collections on furs, jewelry, handbags and luggage ran ahead of last year despite the reported drop in sales of those lines.

The Internal Revenue Bureau in reporting this today said admissions to movies, plays, concerts and night clubs also produced more revenue than in November 1947, although a slump in attendance has been reported in those fields too.

These developments helped boost total November tax collections $239,856,000 above the same month of last year—to $3,045,000,000.

Liquor tax receipts were the biggest exception to the general upsurge in tax receipts from a year ago. At $238,295,000, they were off about 15 per cent from November 1947.

Combined receipts from the taxes on jewelry, furs and luggage sales amounted to $27,969,000, against $24,068,000 a year ago. The take from admission taxes was up $5,374,000 to $40,447,000.

U.N. OBSERVERS ACCUSE ISRAEL OF OBSTRUCTING PALESTINE TRUCE

Report to Council, However, Does Not Specifically Blame Either Side for Renewing Fighting in Negeb.

PARIS, Dec. 27 (AP)—United Nations observers in Palestine today accused Israel of obstructing the Holy Land truce, but did not specifically blame either the Jews or Arabs for the renewed fighting.

The observers submitted a lengthy report to the U.N. Security Council over the signature of Ralph J. Bunche, acting U.N. mediator in Palestine. The report was made after Egyptian complaints that Israeli forces reopened hostilities in violation of the Council's truce order.

Bunche declared "I have no knowledge of any incidents which could be claimed as a provocation for the fighting in the Negeb."

Discussion Put Off Day.

The Council had scheduled a discussion of the Palestine report today, but failed to reach the question and put the matter over until tomorrow. The Council decided in a closed meeting to finish its work in Paris before the end of the year and resume at Lake Success, N.Y., on Jan. 6.

The new Palestine conflict was brought to the Council's attention last Friday by the Egyptian Government. Egypt demanded an emergency hearing of its complaint, but the Council decided it could not discuss the Palestine situation until official information was received at U.N. headquarters.

The report of the U.N. observers charged Israel with "a most serious obstruction to the truce," in refusing to let them enter the Negeb desert area in an attempt to stop the fighting.

Bunche reported that on Dec. 21 the Israeli Government expelled U.N. observers from their posts with Israeli forces. On the next day, he continued, Israel declared it felt "bound to reserve its freedom of action."

"In view of all the above circumstances I must report to the Security Council my inability to supervise effectively the truce in the Negeb," he said.

Bunche reported that on Dec. 22 an Israeli warship shelled Egyptian positions on the Gaza coast and the town itself was bombed by Israeli aircraft. The next two days saw renewed coastal firing at Gaza, he said, and U.N. observers personally witnessed some of this fighting.

Bunche said further that the surrounded Egyptian garrison at Faluja was attacked by plane and artillery fire. He termed the stand of Israeli authorities on the Faluja situation an "intransigeant attitude."

(An Israeli military spokesman in Tel Aviv today insisted there had been no fighting around Faluja, where 3000 Egyptians have been trapped since the last Negeb fighting last fall.)

Bunche said the Israelis had not permitted the Faluja troops to withdraw, according to a plan adopted by the U.N. Security Council Nov. 13. The Israeli attitude on this issue, he charged, was a "major factor in preventing progress" toward implementation of the Council's truce resolutions.

Series of Violations Charged.

Bunche said Brig. Gen. William E. Riley, chief of staff for the mediator, in charge of U.N. military observers, reported an alleged series of violations by Israel of the U.N. truce orders based on its Nov. 4 cease fire resolution.

Gen. Riley was quoted by Bunche as saying the Israelis had not allowed passage of food and medical convoys to the Egyptians at Faluja, as called for by Council resolutions. Nor, said Bunche, had the Israelis evacuated Beersheba as required by the Council.

Bunche included a statement by Israel accusing the Egyptian government of seeking to circumvent the Security Council's desire for an armistice as a step toward peaceful settlement. It was for this reason, Israel said, that it felt "bound to reserve its freedom of action with a view to defending its territory and hastening the conclusion of peace."

CLOTHING THIEF ALSO TRADER

JOPLIN, Mo., Dec. 27 (UP)—Joplin has a thief who can give as well as take.

J. R. Ance from Hall Center, Tex., visiting a brother, Wilford Ance, here, reported today that his automobile was rifled Christmas night. A new overcoat and a pair of men's slippers were taken. In the place of the slippers, the thief left a worn pair and in place of the overcoat was a new pressure cooker.

REDS DIM CHINA PEACE HOPE BY LISTING 'WAR CRIMINALS'

By HAROLD K. MILKS

NANKING, Dec. 27 (AP)—Hopes for peace in China faded today.

The Communist radio's broadcast of a list of "war criminals" to be punished by a "people's court" sent them glimmering.

Heading the list were Chiang Kai-shek, Mme. Chiang, Premier Sun Fo and most of the nation's top military and political leaders.

Surprise that the Communists would publish such a list at this time, when there seemed a possibility of the warring factions reaching some sort of agreement, was expressed in both foreign and Chinese quarters.

"Communists by their action have definitely closed the door on any hope of ending the war by negotiation," said one official.

His statement was echoed by the arrival of more troops in Nanking, indicating that Chiang and his followers have determined to fight on, possibly turning the capital into the next battleground.

In view of the Communist radio declaration, it seems unlikely that any of the national officials listed would participate in any peace negotiation and the only avenues left to them is to fight or flee.

Reds' Designs Hinted.

Communist publication of a list and a subsequent proclamation making frequent references to a "people's government" strengthened the belief the Reds have decided against permitting the present constitutional government to continue in any form—even under a negotiated peace which would give the Communists control of China. Instead, it is believed by most observers the Communist high command hopes to completely eliminate the national government and substitute its own.

From a study of recent troop movements, it seems that the government is hopeful of holding the Nanking-Shanghai area indefinitely with its west flank beginning on the Wuhu river, 50 miles southwest of Nanking, and extending southward along the former Wuhu-Hweichow rail line. The railroad now operates only between Wuhu and Nanking.

There was no mention of the situation of Gen. Tu Li-ming's trapped armies near Pengpu. Tu's men are without food and bad weather kept planes from airlifting them supplies.

(The United Press said three nationalist armies entered Nanking from the Pengpu front, apparently to defend the government capital. It was reported they had been ordered south to reinforce Grand canal in northern Kiangsu as bitter cold, snow and ice slowed the fighting in central and northern China).

Report on Peiping.

Spencer Moosa, Associated Press correspondent in Peiping, said the siege of that former Chinese capital had settled down to patrol clashes. He added that Nationalist troops sometimes open up with mortars and artillery to give the impression some serious action was being fought "but it was more sound than fury."

"In fact," wrote Moosa, "there are several signs that the siege and defense of Peiping are being conducted along gentlemanly lines. The whole city is convinced some plan is being discussed for Peiping to have regular light and water from plants already in Red hands. The biggest stumbling block is how this can be done without anyone losing face."

Earlier Nationalist headquarters at Peiping confirmed the loss of Kalgan, gateway to Mongolia 100 miles northwest of Peiping. The city's arsenal and industries were left intact by the departing Nationalist troops.

In Shanghai, despite the pessimism here, the Central Daily, an official organ of the Chinese government, forecast "imminent important changes" in the present political situation in China.

The newspaper said the change "will be along the lines heartily hoped for by the people of China."

The Central Daily, which so far has stayed aloof from the whirlpool of peace rumors sweeping the country, said "a number of certain high government officials have discussed a plan to change the present situation with particular emphasis on 'the use of politics'."

In the former French colony of Kwangchowan in South China Gov. T. V. Soong's Tenth Regiment mutinied and killed its two top commanders. The mutineers joined nearby bandits in a raid on Tschithom, where shops were looted.

HOME-MADE ALARM WORKS WELL, PUTS BURGLAR TO FLIGHT

A homemade burglar alarm proved a rousing success last night when someone attempted to enter the home of Henry R. Eggers at 5733 Park lane.

Eggers is an electrician, and before he left on a trip to California he rigged up an attachment designed to scare off burglars while he was away. His neighbors are waiting to tell him how well the device worked when he returns home.

A prowler sneaked up to the back door of the darkened home, smashed a glass panel, reached through and unlocked the door. As the door swung open, every light in the house went on and a buzzer began to sound.

Arthur Krone, who lives at 5742 Park lane, saw the lights go on and notified police. Investigation indicated the burglar had fled without taking anything.

GOVERNMENT'S CIVILIAN FORCE INSIDE COUNTRY RISES 16,400

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 (AP)—The Government civilian work force at home rose 16,400 last month to a total of 1,896,000.

Reporting this yesterday the Civil Service Commission noted that the capital itself had 211,000 at work to start December, up 1600 in a month. The figures are for executive departments and agencies.

Inside and outside the country, the employment total hit 2,100,300.

100 M.P.H. Blasts Force Ship to Reduce Its Speed — Life Rafts Washed Overboard.

By JAMES J. STREBIG

ABOARD U. S. S. SAIPAN EN ROUTE TO GREENLAND, Dec. 27 (AP) — Slowed almost to a snail's pace by lashing winds, this carrier hoped for better weather today as it plowed on toward Greenland to attempt the rescue of 13 Air Force men stranded on an ice cap.

The Saipan, which left Norfolk Saturday, is due off the rescue launching point Wednesday. Even with improved weather, however, there is doubt that it can keep that schedule.

The Saipan was moving along at 27 knots (more than 30 m.p.h.) until it encountered winds up to around 100 miles an hour yesterday. The skipper, Capt. Joseph L. Kane, first ordered the carrier slowed to 22 knots. The storm roared on and at 6 p.m., Kane reduced speed to 15 knots. Still later he cut down to 10 knots.

Better weather was expected today. But it seemed likely to get worse again when the Saipan passes Cape Race, possibly tonight.

While the Saipan took a fierce battering, five helicopters and two torpedo bombers lashed down with cables on the hangar deck escaped damage.

The ship's doctor reported one-third of the crew seasick.

The storm swept away five of the eight big radio antennas mounted on the flight deck. Another was left dangling and unusable. Communications were maintained with the remaining three.

Seven of the airmen originally were stranded Dec. 9. The others joined them at intervals—two more on Christmas day—in futile plane and glider rescue attempts.

(A new aerial try to rescue the 13 stranded men was delayed today. A C-82 towing a glider to a Greenland base was forced by the weather to turn back to Goose Bay, Labrador. This is the third glider the Air Force has lugged up for the rescue.

(In addition, the arctic expert, Col. Bernt Balchen took off from Winnipeg, Canada, en route from Alaska to aid in the rescue.

(The men on the ice got their Christmas turkey and a Christmas sermon. The turkey was dropped to them and the chaplain at a Greenland air field delivered the sermon by radio.)

MASSACHUSETTS TO OUST NOTED WOMAN PENOLOGIST

BOSTON, Dec. 27 (UP) — Dr. Miriam van Waters, nationally-known penologist, will be removed as superintendent of the Framingham Women's Reformatory for alleged inefficiency, Gov. Robert F. Bradford announced today.

LABOR - BUSINESS TALKS SUGGESTED ON WAGE FORMULA

Truman Economic Advisers for 'Fair Pattern' to End Disputes Threatening Prosperity.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 (AP)—Proposals that President Truman call a new labor-management conference, despite the almost total failure of his 1945 effort, gained strength today from the annual report of his Council of Economic Advisers.

Collective bargaining might become a greater force for "labor peace and economic stability," the council said, if there were some generally approved "standard of a fair wage—related to a given price structure."

The advisers dwelt at length on the possibility that a second meeting of union and industry leaders might be a starting point for agreement on such standards as a guide in labor negotiations.

"These standards would not be binding; they would be primarily informational in character," the economists told Truman.

"But from them might emerge, after a testing period of time and experience, a better reasoned and therefore more workable formulation of wage policies to be applied through collective bargaining."

Truman Message Next Week.

The report, a forerunner of Truman's economic message to Congress due next week, was prepared by the three-member advisory council headed by Dr. Edwin G. Nourse.

Since the council also supplies Truman with the economic analysis on which he bases his own message, the report issued last night aroused speculation whether the President is weighing invitations to a new conference.

The council did not make a direct recommendation. It noted that the first conference, held only three months after the war, brought "few results."

The advisers suggested that a new conference might produce some agreement if it were carefully planned. Public and farm representatives might also attend, it was suggested.

Expression of Confidence.

The council declared its "confident" belief that a high-production, high-employment economy can be maintained in this country, free from major booms and depressions. This can be done without resort to controls which would "weaken private enterprise or destroy basic freedoms of choice," the report went on.

It emphasized, however, that major labor disputes in vital industries "remain a perennial threat" to stable prosperity.

Whether these are to be settled by negotiation or by Government intervention, the advisers said, there is need for a pattern of standards which would be "fair to both parties, acceptable to the public and consistent with the needs of the whole economy."

"These standards include a wage structure in relation to prices that will maintain the producing power of industry and the buying power of labor in sound proportion," it specified.

"If such s[illegible] can be developed and [illegible]herents, the prospects for [illegible]ntary settlements will become so bright that the need for compulsion would be rare indeed."

"Fear Must Be Removed."

The council said that vague pleas for "moderation" from industry and labor will be useless unless unions and management have confidence — "based upon deeds and not promises"—that the Government is using every resource to maintain maximum output, employment, and buying power.

"The haunting fear of another depression must be removed," the council specified.

"So long as it overhangs, no group can be expected to surrender its immediate prospects of gain in favor of a future that is too hazy and threatening to be relied upon."

Major Recommendations.

As in its two previous annual reports, the council made few definite policy recommendations. These were the major ones:

1. Extension of government supports for farm prices to prevent any agricultural slump which might again, as in 1920, lead to a general business collapse. "The fact that this support-machinery has not yet been perfected is not a sufficient reason for abandoning it," the report said.

2. A housing program built on the "deliberate promotion of easy credit." While this is inflationary, the council said, it is justified by the seriousness of the housing shortage.

3. Continued support of government bond prices by federal reserve buying. This too feeds inflation, the council said, but it would be "reckless" to drop the program and thus possibly "create uneasiness about the national credit" while a huge public debt exists.

4. The social security programs "add to productivity and lower costs in the long run." They will expand, whether economists like them or not; the decision must be: "How fast and in what forms?"

5. The people must expect high federal budgets "for many years to come," since they demand military preparedness, foreign aid and public works. Government must use this vast spending power with care, in the interest of stability.

U.S. IS ASKED TO INCREASE TROOP STRENGTH IN EUROPE

Royall Declines to Name Countries Which Made Request—Military Board to Prevent Reich Rearming Planned.

BERLIN, Dec. 27 (UP)—United States Army Secretary Kenneth Royall said today officials of western Europe had asked for an increase of American troop strength in Europe.

Royall held a press conference after reviewing United States occupation troops in a ceremony at American Military Government headquarters. He has been on an inspection tour of United States installations in Europe.

Asked if American strength in Europe would be increased, Royall replied:

"That is a matter which has not yet been determined."

Declines to Name Nations.

He refused to say what country or countries requested the increase, and added that he had not recommended any increase in Germany.

Asked if he thought United States forces in Germany were strong enough, he said, "Our strength is a relative matter.

Royall said Russian concentration camps contained 13,000,000 persons. The figure, he said, was based on a "most reliable intelligence summary."

The 13,000,000, he said, included only the camps in Russia proper. He said the report was that 9,000,000 of the prisoners were Russians, 2,000,000 Germans and 2,000,000 Poles, Czechs and persons of other nationalities. The estimate did not include war prisoners.

Military Board Planned.

Earlier, in a radio interview, Gen. Lucius D. Clay, American military governor for Germany, disclosed that the three western powers have reached "substantial agreement" on creation of a "military security board" to prevent German rearmament after the military governments cease functioning. The discussions concerning this have heretofore been top secret.

As the military governments of the three western powers in Germany are reduced, the Military Security Board will take over many of their functions. The board is expected to have military inspection police who will search for violations of disarmament regulations.

It was announced last week that the American Military Government would make drastic cuts in personnel during the coming year.

Clay also said that recovery in western Germany "has been amazing" since currency reform was instituted last June, but that the three western occupation zones still are far from becoming self-sufficient.

"The deficit between imports, essential to life, and exports, being borne by the United States during the present fiscal year, exceeds one billion dollars," he said. "While this deficit will be substantially less during the next fiscal year, there will remain a large deficit for several years."

Credit to Currency Reform.

He gave credit for the "amazing" recovery in Germany to Marshall plan aid and currency reform, one of the prime factors in the split between Russia and the western powers.

"When the freedom-loving, democratic countries of western Europe are on their feet economically and able to protect their freedom, then may we expect a long peace," he said.

Questioned as to whether the western powers should arm a strong German police force, Clay said:

"The size of the police force should be limited to local needs." He added that the police force should be armed only with light caliber revolvers and carbines.

Air Lift Going 6 Months.

The British-American air lift yesterday completed its first six months of operation.

A statistical survey showed the Allies had flown 700,172 tons of food, coal and other supplies over the Soviet blockade in that period. The daily average was 3805.3 tons. Clay set 4000 tons daily as the target when the operation started.

Nine fatal accidents have been reported; seven of them American and two British. A total of 17 Americans and seven Britons lost their lives.

During the past 24 hours, the air lift took advantage of perfect flying weather to bring 6430 tons of supplies to Berlin. It was the second highest tonnage since the lift started.

RENT DIRECTOR WINS AND LOSES IN COURT RULING

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 (UP)—The Emergency Court of Appeals today upheld the right of Rent Director Tighe E. Woods to set up minimum standards which local area rent boards must follow in proving the need for a general rent increase.

At the same time, the court overruled Woods's partial rejection of a 20 per cent rent boost proposed for Jamestown, N.Y., by the Jamestown rent board. The court ordered the full 20 per cent increase put into effect.

Woods had approved only eight per cent of the proposed Jamestown increase—that part based on increased taxes on rental property. He had turned down the local board's plea for an additional 12 per cent increase, based on decreased earnings of a "sample" group of landlords.

Under Woods's regulations a "sample" in a city the size of Jamestown—with 19,000 rental units—must comprise at least 450 units.

The Jamestown board supplied reports on 494 units—more than the number required. However, Woods rejected 200 on grounds they were not properly filled out.

In appealing, the board contended Woods had no right to specify any particular number of units as a proper "sample." The court rejected this contention.

The court approved the Jamestown board's plea for a 20 per cent increase on grounds that Woods was not justified in holding part of the reports invalid.

Under the 1948 rent act, any local board recommendation rejected by Woods or approved only in part goes automatically to the Emergency Court of Appeals for a decision.

Woods has said he will ask Congress to change this. He wants both tenants and landlords to have a right of appeal from local board decisions. Boards also could appeal from Woods's ruling, but the appeal would not be automatic.

DUGGAN TOLD FBI REDS TRIED TO GET HIM IN SPY RING, CLARK REVEALS

Attorney General Says Former State Dept. Official Rejected 'Feelers' and Was Given Up as 'Hopeless.'

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 (UP)—The Department of Justice has shed new light on Laurence Duggan's interview with the Federal Bureau of Investigation about a week before his fatal plunge from a New York skyscraper.

Attorney General Tom C. Clark said last night in a television interview that the former State Department official told FBI agents at their Dec. 10 meeting how two Communist agents tried to lure him into an alleged Communist ring in the late 1930s. Clark said Duggan reported he flatly rejected the "feelers."

The Attorney General repeated that the FBI investigation had cleared Duggan of any connection with Communist espionage in Washington before the war.

"Valuable Leads" Given.

Clark did not reveal the identities of the two Communist agents but said Duggan had given "valuable leads" to the FBI. He indicated the FBI is now investigating.

(Commentator Drew Pearson said in his Sunday night broadcast that the two were Hedie Massing, whom he identified as a former wife of Gerhard Eisler, and her boss, a Russian agent named Boris Bykov. Pearson said they gave up on Duggan, deciding he was "hopeless" as a source of information.)

Duggan was linked to the Red spy case by Isaac Don Levine, editor of the anti-Communist publication Plain Talk. He said Whittaker Chambers once named Duggan as one of six men who gave him State Department secrets.

Shortly after Duggan's death, the committee released Levine's testimony. Chambers himself has since denied the charge against Duggan.

Clark Defends Record.

Clark took occasion to defend his department against committee charges that it has not been vigorous enough in prosecuting subversives.

He pointed out that 12 Communist party leaders are now under indictment. Moreover, he said, there have been 40 prosecutions of alleged subversives in the District of Columbia in recent months.

Clark said he was telling the background of the Duggan case in violation of his own policies in "fairness to Mr. Duggan's family and 2,000,000 government employes."

Comment on Committees.

Clark said also he had appeared before a number of congressional investigating committees and that they serve a valuable purpose.

But he said that congressional committees should not interfere with Department of Justice prosecutions and that they should not violate the constitutional rights of witnesses.

He pointed out that the Department of Justice leans heavily on certain "informers" in its investigations. Once these informers appear before a public session of a congressional investigating committee, he said, their value to the department is lost.

Meanwhile, Representative Karl E. Mundt (Rep.), South Dakota, acting chairman of the House committee, said the group would not be able to clean up "important loose ends" in its spy inquiry.

"Some of these are vitally important and should be cleared up for the sake of the country's security," he said. "But there is nothing we can do about them—there just isn't enough time."

The present committee goes out of business when the new Congress convenes a week from today. It may release this week a report recommending ways to strengthen anti-espionage laws.

Joint Group Urged.

Meanwhile a proposal that the Senate and House set up a single joint committee to conduct all major investigations came from Senator McClellan (Dem.), Arkansas.

McClellan will be chairman of the Senate Expenditures Committee, which has an investigating subgroup likely to be headed by Senator Hoey (Dem.), North Carolina.

It was this subcommittee, under the chairmanship of Senator Ferguson (Rep.), Michigan, which first brought Miss Elizabeth Bentley's espionage story to light last summer.

"We have had duplication of effort and not much teamwork in handling what seems to me a very serious situation," McClellan told a reporter in advancing his suggestion of a combination committee.

CORRECTION ON RENT SUIT

SCHOOL'S FLYING SQUIRRELS GET A CHRISTMAS HOME

Parents of Webster Groves Pupil Care for Pets During Holidays.

The two flying squirrels that have been raised by the second-grade pupils of Avery Public School in Webster Groves are spending the Christmas holidays at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Lacey, 875 Atalanta avenue, Webster Groves.

Keeping the squirrels at the school during the Christmas recess presented a problem so the Laceys, whose daughter, Billie Claire, is in the second grade, volunteered to give temporary housing to the little animals. Billie Claire has the job of feeding them milk, nuts and sunflower seeds.

Whenever the frisky creatures are let out of the wire cage made for them by the school janitor, they begin an immediate exploration of the Lacey home, making sailing leaps from wall to wall.

The flying squirrels were brought to the school last October when, as babies, they fell from a tree in the yard of one of the second-grade pupils. The children immediately adopted them. Occasionally the animals are allowed the run of the classroom.

5 VANDEVENTER PL. RESIDENTS HANG ON; DEADLINE FRIDAY

At least five residents of Vandeventer place were still in possession of their homes today although the deadline for evacuating the last of the 14 houses condemned for the site of a Veterans Hospital expires Friday.

Lee Hildebrand, who has lived at No. 28 all his life, said he had been trying for some time to find a new home but had not been successful to date although he had several prospects to inspect. Others were in much the same position, and all hoped for a further extension.

United States Attorney Drake Watson said he had not been advised of any further extension beyond the first of the year. Present occupants have been given three extensions and now are treated as month-to-month tenants of the Government. Under Missouri law, such tenants must be given a 30-day notice to move before eviction proceedings can be begun.

Besides Hildebrand, the residents awaiting Government action are Ralph Guze, No. 33; Mrs. Louis Printy, No. 17; Miss Louisa L. Dobschuetz, No. 36, and Sacha Schnittmann, No. 46.

COAL THAT WILL NOT BURN APPEARS ON MARKET HERE

St. Louis coal dealers and householders were warned today by the Better Business Bureau to be on the alert for shipments of "unburnable" coal such as have recently appeared on the St. Louis market.

The "dead coal" is from Arkansas strip mines where it has lain exposed to the elements too long. Coal from these mines is used in hand-fired furnaces in St. Louis. Similar low-grade coal was shipped to St. Louis in 1945.

The bureau said some dealers receiving the coal were unaware of its quality, and most are making restitution to purchasers.

HUSSMANN REFRIGERATOR CO. PLANT STILL SHUT IN WALKOUT

The Hussmann Refrigerator Co. plant at 2401 North Leffingwell avenue, wheer a walkout by 32 electricians last Tuesday threw 960 other employes out of work, remained closed today.

The electricians are members of Local 1, AFL International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers. W. B. McMillan, president of the company, said the firm has a contract with the union, but received no notice of any grievance before the walkout.

Until the electricians file a specific statement on which negotiations can be based, the plan will remain closed, it was indicated.

ST. LOUIS BROTHERS BECOME FATHERS ON THE SAME DAY

Wives Had Entered Hospitals Christmas—Children Are Boy and Girl.

The Leimbach brothers, Vincent and Harvey, became fathers yesterday.

Mrs. Vincent Leimbach, 3218 Caroline street, gave birth to a 7-pound, 6-ounce boy at 2:30 a.m. at St. Anthony's Hospital. A 6-pound, 12-ounce girl was born to Mrs. Harvey Leimbach, 4026 Botanical avenue, at 4:15 a.m. at Bethesda Hospital.

The women entered the hospitals Christmas day. The boy is the first child for the Vincent Leimbachs. The other family has a 2-year-old son in addition to the new arrival.

CIRCUIT JUDGES APPROVE 88 CALLANAN DEPUTIES

Eighty-eight deputies appointed by Sheriff-elect Thomas F. Callanan, who takes office New Year's Day, were approved today by circuit judges sitting in general term.

Presiding Judge David J. Murphy said investigation by police showed no police records against five new deputies. The records of 83 deputies reappointed by Callanan were not checked. Judge Murphy said the list will be reviewed to make certain that all of the old deputies have been investigated in the past. Any not investigated previously will be subjected to a police check, Judge Murphy announced.

The judges also approved the appointment of George D. Bresler, 3931 Oregon avenue, as a deputy clerk in the office of Circuit Clerk Henry L. Berger.

Jap Ex-Minister Gets 10 Months.

TOKYO, Dec. 27 (AP)—Kyodo news agency reported today that former agriculture minister Rikizo Hirano had been sentenced to 10 months' imprisonment for violating government purge orders. He was convicted of failing to report his association with Kodo Kai Nationalist Society in candidacy.

THIEVES HAVE BUSY HOLIDAY WEEKEND

Three Restaurants and Several Homes Entered in Series of Robberies.

A restaurant operated by Frank Zang at 1107 Salisbury street was entered by a burglar who smashed a cigarette vending machine and found the proprietor's valuables hidden in a bottom compartment. The burglar took $96, a ring valued at $100 and 1000 $5 meal tickets.

Joseph Mascari, operator of a restaurant at 1623 South Thirty-ninth street, reported cash totaling $305 was taken from several hiding places, apparently by someone who hid in the basement before the establishment closed. There was no sign of forcible entry.

Harry Hubbard, counterman in a sandwich shop at 1015 North Grand avenue, reported he was held up yesterday by an armed man who forced him to hand over $69 from the cash register.

A burglar took $650, silverware valued at $250 and a suitcase from the home of John O'Brien, 4899 Calvin avenue. At 4893 Calvin, the residence of Harry Kerone, $6 and a wristwatch were taken.

Other burglaries were reported at the residence of Joseph Beeler, 8706 Annetta street, where $150 was stolen; Robert Bohle, 1547 Gieseking lane, $10 and a ring; Herbert Van Meter, 8650 Partridge avenue, $125 and a quantity of jewelry; Mrs. Hannah Tobin, 4462 Catherine place, $45; Benjamin O'Leary, 4117 Labadie avenue, $15, clothing and jewelry; George Jacobs, 1421 Palm street, $102, tools and a phonograph attachment.

In most of the burglaries, entrance was gained by breaking the glass in a rear door or window.

BARGE BREAKS FROM MOORING, DRIFTS 10 MILES

A barge insecurely moored at the East St. Louis Terminal of the St. Louis Distributing Co., broke away Christmas day and drifted 10 miles down the Mississippi river before it stuck on a sandbar.

As soon as the 167-foot barge was found missing, Clark Schultz, foreman at the terminal, called the Coast Guard. The cutter Foxglove, under the command of Boatswain's Mate J. F. Rodgers, searched for the barge without success throughout the night. Yesterday morning it was found on the sandbar about a mile above the Jefferson Barracks bridge.

The tow boats, the Franklin D. Roosevelt and the Tom Sawyer, were dispatched to the scene by Federal Barge Lines which owns the barge. Operations were directed by Capt. L. L. Sorrelis and the barge, with its valuable cargo of 1600 tons of bauxite, an ore from which aluminum is obtained, was soon refloated.

FIREMEN HURRY TO RIGHT ADDRESS BUT WRONG TOWN

Similarity in names of streets in Kirkwood and Oakland last night caused delay by the Kirkwood fire department in answering an alarm and resulted in extensive damage to the home of Marvin J. Zindel at 1031 West Big Bend road, Oakland.

In response to the first alarm that came in, firemen rushed to 1031 West Big Bend, Kirkwood, only to find a vacant lot. When they returned to the fire station a second call came in, the caller this time specifying the address was in Oakland. By the time the fire apparatus arrived at the scene, the fire was out of control. Firemen estimated they had been delayed about 20 minutes by their first trip.

Damage to the two-story frame house and its contents was estimated by City Marshal Charles Betz of Oakland at $12,000. Origin of the fire was not determined. Zindel, his wife and their daughter were home at the time.

FIREMEN FIND FIRE; IT IS IN FIREPLACE BUILT FOR SHOW

When Mrs. Dolores Tanner, who occupies a second-floor apartment at 326 North Euclid avenue, saw smoke seeping through the base of an artificial fireplace in her living room yesterday, she acted promptly. She telephoned the fire department. Three engine companies, a hook and ladder company, a battalion chief and a police scout car crew answered the alarm.

She told them what she had noticed, and they went to the apartment below, prepared to extinguish a fire. They found it was not necessary, however.

Marvin Guberman, who lives below Mrs. Tanner, told them he had not realized the fireplace in his living room, which is directly under the one in Mrs. Tanner's living room, was only for show purposes and had no chimney connection. He built a fire in it, he said, and the room immediately filled with smoke. The blaze was put out without damage.

FALLS OFF OCEAN-GOING SHIP HERE, APPARENTLY DROWNS

An unidentified man fell from the Angele Higgins, ocean-going ship which arrived Saturday from Cuba with a load of scrap iron, and apparently drowned in the Mississippi river early today, Gilbert Halsall, third mate, reported to police. Halsall said the victim was known to crew members only by the name "Coalton."

4 KILLED, 8 HURT IN ROAD MISHAPS CAUSED BY ICE

Man Run Over by His Own Auto — Woman Crushed to Death When Bus Slides Against Pole.

Four persons were killed and eight injured in motor vehicle accidents caused by icy pavements in the St. Louis area yesterday.

The dead:

Edward W. Groves, 1604A Tower Grove avenue.

Mrs. Minnie McDaniel, 8018 Joel avenue, Affton.

William Burgdorf, Glen Carbon, Ill.

Groves, 38 years old, suffered a fatal skull fracture when run over by his automobile, which he had pushed after the machine stalled in Blair avenue at 11 o'clock last night. When the car stalled, Groves shoved it around the corner into Bissell street, heading down grade.

Miss Virginia Blair, 4213A Race Course avenue, a passenger, told police that Groves then pushed the machine to start it, and the car started down hill. Groves tried to jump into the driver's seat as his car hit a parked machine. He lost his footing on the icy pavement and fell under a wheel of his car, which came to a stop after passing over his body. Groves was a machinist employed at the Emerson Electric Manufacturing Co.

Woman Crushed to Death.

Mrs. McDaniel, 50, was crushed to death when a St. Louis County Transit Co. bus skidded against a telephone pole beside which she was standing at Heege road and Joel avenue, Affton, yesterday afternoon.

Robert Wright, of Manchester, the driver, told deputies he applied the brakes to stop at the corner for Mrs. McDaniel and two other women when the bus skidded on the icy pavement and came to a halt against the pole. The other women ran to safety, but Mrs. McDaniel was unable to get out of the way of the bus, which is operated on the Oakville-Webster Groves line.

Because of the icy condition of the pavement, Wright was unable to move the bus away from the pole until persons attracted by the accident assisted him. Mrs. McDaniel was pronounced dead at St. Louis County Hospital.

Two in Auto Killed in Crash.

Miss Hamby and Burgdorf were killed when the automobile she was driving skidded on United States Belt Highway 40 into the path of a heavy tractor-trailer near Collinsville last night.

The automobile was eastbound on the highway when it skidded on the icy pavement. The impact with the tractor-trailer demolished Miss Hamby's automobile and she was pinned in the wreckage. She and Burgdorf were pronounced dead of crushed chests at St. Mary's Hospital, East St. Louis. A passenger in their machine, Mrs. Mildred Love, 1117 West Main street, Collinsville, is in serious condition in the hospital with a head injury.

The tractor-trailer was driven by Joseph O'Shea, 3655 Washington boulevard. Michael Sipis, a farmer, of Edwardsville, riding with O'Shea, suffered a head injury and was also taken to St. Mary's Hospital. Miss Hamby, 50 years old, was a seamstress at the Forest City Manufacturing Co., 1641 Washington avenue. Burgdorf, 38 years old, was a construction laborer.

Bus Crash in East St. Louis.

Six passengers on an East St. Louis City Lines bus were hurt in a collision with a St. Louis-bound Gulf Transport Co. bus, which skidded on the ice at Eighth street and Trendley avenue, East St. Louis, last night.

The injured, all of whom live in East St. Louis, were taken to St. Mary's Hospital. Lewis Jackson, Negro, 1626 Central avenue, remained in the hospital with an injured back. The others, released following treatment for cuts and bruises, were: Robert J. Shockley, 2710 Market avenue; James Gaston, Negro, 1937 Trendley avenue; James Nelson, Negro, 1808 Piggott avenue; Lenoir Rives, Negro, 411 South Fourth street; Lucille Harris, Negro, 1814 McCasland avenue.

Rupert Wingerter of Chester, Ill., driver of the Gulf Transport bus, told police he was unable to stop on the icy pavement. After striking the City Lines bus, the Gulf Transport bus caromed against a parked machine and smashed a fire hydrant.

John Bergmann, 75 years old, suffered a fractured right shoulder when knocked down by an automobile, which failed to stop, while he was standing in a safety zone at Kingshighway and Fairview avenue late Saturday night.

Bergmann, who lives at 4918 Potomac street, told police he was waiting for a streetcar in the safety zone when the machine hit him. He was unable to describe the automobile. Following emergency treatment at City Hospital, Bergmann was transferred to Alexian Brothers Hospital.

LONG-DISTANCE CALLS SWAMP BELL FACILITIES

A flood of long-distance calls which broke all records here swamped the facilities of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. on the Christmas holiday weekend.

On the day before Christmas, 25,500 calls were placed in St. Louis, compared to 21,252 on the corresponding day of 1947. On Christmas day, 29,218 outgoing calls were handled, compared to 27,328 last Christmas. There were 18,738 calls yesterday, compared to the normal Sunday total of 10,250.

The 1133 operators on duty were so busy that at times there was no one available to accept new calls or answer inquiries, and persons who dialed 211, the long-distance number, could get no answer. Long-distance circuits were jammed, and on some calls there were delays of six hours or more.

SENATORS ASSAIL CLAY'S CLEMENCY IN ILSE KOCH CASE

the public to belief of possible impropriety as concealment."

The Senate report also found fault with officers directing the whole program of military trials and the Koch case, saying:

"There was an is o dearth of evidence against her. Undoubtedly she could have been conclusively proved guilty of a number of specific crimes which would have justified at least imprisonment for life."

Instead, Frau Koch was tried under a general charge and reviewing officers reduced her sentence as a result.

Along with the 12,000-word official report the Senate group also released some 90,000 words of testimony in the Koch case it took at closed-door sessions.

Closed hearings were decided upon, the report said, because the "sensational aspects of the testimony against Ilse Koch would serve but to confuse again in the minds of the public the issues involved in the trial."

Saw Tanned Human Skin.

Senators viewed at least three samples of the tanned human skin and a "shrunken human head" which had been exhibits at the original trials in Germany.

They also heard testimony that:

1. "An old lover" of Ilse Koch was the father of her illegitimate child conceived after she was imprisoned. The fellow prisoner dug a tunnel to her quarters. This unborn baby was credited by many with avoidance of a death penalty at the original trial. Some reports had credited an American soldier or other guards with being his father.

2. Associate Justice Jackson of the Supreme Court regarded the Koch sentence reduction as a "most unfortunate occurrence." William Rogers, chief investigator and committee counsel, said he talked with Jackson about it. Jackson participated in the Nuernberg trials of top Nazi officials. Rogers quoted the Justice as saying pro-Nazis would use the Koch case to claim that atrocity killings were untrue, as large groups of Germans now believe.

3. The Koch woman would have been freed completely if the recommendations of the first three reviewers of her trial had been accepted. They held that the case against her participation in the general charge had not been proved. But they were overruled by Lt. Col. Clio Straight who upheld proof of guilt but reduced the life sentence to four years. About a dozen other Army officers including Gen. Clay then approved this.

4. Secretary of the Army Royall found it difficult to "understand why they were for a reduction in sentence." He also said the "fact that one case where we may have made a mistake, has aroused all of this prejudice and passion which it has, is unfortunate."

5. Col. Koch, husband of the woman, was found guilty by Nazi officials of murder and mistreatment of prisoners and sentenced to death. This was revised by top Nazi officials but he was tried again for embezzlement of some 6,000,000 Reichsmarks and again found guilty and sentenced to death. He was executed by the Nazi SS in January, 1945, before Americans captured the horror center he commanded.

6. Frau Koch wore suggestive clothing before prisoners and then had them beaten when they stared at her. One former inmate told of digging a ditch when "Ilse Koch appeared above them, astride the ditch, improperly clad," the report said. "As they looked up, she said 'What are you doing looking up here?' and beat them across the face with a riding crop." Other former inmates told of her watching prisoners being stripped for search and beatings.

Frau Koch's reduced sentence will expire next October. Upholding the original life sentence, the Senators said the woman "violated the laws of war and the standards of common decency," and declared:

"Four years imprisonment is not just punishment for her acts."

While upholding American rules against "double jeopardy," the report noted that Frau Koch was tried along with 30 male camp officials and inmates only for crimes against non-Germans. Hence the findings that she could be tried for crimes against Germans.

The committee listed the crimes for which it said Frau Koch was legally responsible as "killings, beatings, tortures, starvations, abuses and indignities."

12 Below Zero at Union, Mo.

It was cold throughout Missouri yesterday. The mercury got down to 12 below at Union, and to 5 below at New Florence. Tarkio, as usual, was the coldest place in the state. Temperature there yesterday morning was 19 below.

The cold weather which brought sub-zero readings to many parts of the United States yesterday was moderating today, but the temperature in the Gulf Coast states was below the freezing point this morning. Mercury fell to 25 at Atlanta, Ga., today. Highest minimum this morning in the country was an unusually low 52 at Corpus Christi, Tex., and Yuma, Ariz. Lowest today was 28 below at Big Piney, Wyo.

U.N. REJECTS SOVIET ORDER FOR RETREAT BY THE DUTCH

be undignified for the Council to vote again on the same matter without any adequate reason.

"I decline to be put in a false position by comment or resolutions from other delegations," Jessup said. "The record of the United States is known to the world, and I believe it is appreciated by our friends in the Indonesian republic. The action of my government is on the record and well known."

Jessup said the proposal for a withdrawal of Dutch troops, a section of the original American proposal, would have been adopted "if the Soviet Government had been genuinely concerned with results." The Soviet Union abstained on that proposal Friday.

Some Prisoners Released.

The votes came after The Netherlands informed the Council it has released 14 political prisoners in Indonesia, but refused to say whether it would comply with a Council order for a cease-fire. Identities of the 14 republican prisoners released in Indonesia were not given in the Dutch message to the Council. It was doubted, however, that they were the top republican leaders, including President Soekarno, Premier Mohammed Hatta and others who were captured in a Dutch airborne attack which took the republican capital of Jogjakarta in Java last Sunday.

(Reliable reports from Batavia said that Soekarno, Hatta and others already have been removed from Java to internment on a smaller East Indies island. At The Hague, a Dutch Government announcement said that "a number of republican authorities" would be removed from Java.)

The Dutch Position.

J. H. Van Royen, Dutch delegate, outlined his country's position at the start of today's Council meeting. Of the cease-fire order he said only:

"The Netherlands Government has given the resolution of the Security Council its serious consideration, and has communicated with the Government of Indonesia in order to obtain additional information and advice to enable it to determine its position with regard to the resolution."

Van Royen told the Council that the "operational phase of the action in Java now has practically reached its end." He refused to predicted the strength of guerrilla resistance.

He said the Government had ordered that U.N. military observers "be given the opportunity to study the course of events." That was in answer to an Australian demand for freedom of movement of observers who last week were ordered to return to Batavia from the field.

The Russian Reply.

Malik called the statement made to the Council by Van Royen a "refusal to stop military action."

"During the four days since passage of the Council's resolution, The Netherlands has done nothing to comply with this resolution," Malik said.

Tarasenko brought the United States into the debate by charging that "without United States financial help, The Netherlands would have been unable to wage war for two years in Indonesia."

"The United States Government cannot escape responsibility," he said.

He called the Dutch action "illegal, shameful, and contrary to the U.N. Charter," and said that "this attack can compete with similar ones by Hitler."

DUTCH IN 'MOP-UP' OPERATION ON JAVA

By HARRIS JACKSON

BATAVIA, Dec. 27 (AP)—The Dutch claimed further gains today against Indonesians in Java and Sumatra.

A Netherlands army communique said "mopping up operations" are being carried out around Soerakarta and Magelang in Java.

The army communique said two Dutch fighter planes had gone down "as a result of an accident over central Java." No casualties were mentioned.

The Dutch said they have occupied Laboenan and Menes in west Java, Plosso in east Java, and Fort Van Der Cappellen, Sumatra.

A military spokesman said the republican army is fleeing into the mountains and preparing for guerrilla activity. He declared the republican forces lacked leadership, food supplies and popular support.

The Dutch Embassy in Paris said yesterday The Netherlands forces had suffered 19 killed and 43 wounded since their "police action" began in Indonesia nine days ago.

Meantime, Dutch military sources said Netherlands forces occuping Magelang found 30 Indonesian prisoners executed by the republicans just before the Dutch entered town. Two others were still alive, they said.

The informants said the Dutch found out the 32 had been arrested in connection with a Communist rebellion in the republic last September. They quoted a republican police inspector as saying the prisoners had "done nothing against the republic."

The U.N. Good Offices Committee informed the Security Council yesterday it would try to observe and report on observance of the cease-fire order issued by the Council in Paris Friday. The committee explained, however, that it apparently would be impossible for its observers to distinguish reliably between internal security measures taken by Netherlands forces and hostilities between Dutch and republican units.

The Chinese daily Keng Po said today that on Christmas night, Indonesian republicans occupied the market place of Tjikampek, an important rail center 45 miles east of Batavia, and held it 10 hours before the Dutch drove them off. The attack, Keng Po said, was preceded by a rail workers' strike which continued throug yesterday. A freight train was said to have been derailed south of town Saturday, and a railway bridge was reported destroyed near there yesterday.

Another Chinese paper, Sin Po, quoted official republican sources as saying a military government of the embattled republic had been set up in South Sumatra under Dr. A. K. Gani, vice premier of a former cabinet.

HUNGARY ARRESTS CARDINAL ON SPY, TREASON CHARGES

Government in 1946 arrested and tried the head of the Yugoslav Catholic Church, Archbishop Alojzcic Stepinac, and sent him to prison for 16 years on charges of collaboration with the Germans. In that case, the Vatican's Congregation of the Council excommunicated all Yugoslav Catholic officials in any way connected with the Stepinac case.

Property Taken Over.

Romania only recently took over all the property of the Uniate (Romanian rite) Church and declared that the church ceased to exist there. In Poland, the church has been warning Catholics to steer clear of Communist doctrine and propaganda, and Government press has been assailing Catholic leadership.

Virtually from the moment World War II ended, the spiritual leader of Hungary's Catholics—they represent 67 per cent of that nation's population — has been battling the Communists.

Some Government action against him had been expected. Police had been reported keeping close watch on his home. Only a short time ago, his trusted chief private secretary, The Rev. Ondras Zakar, was arrested on charges of treason.

Mindszenty was an irritating thorn in the side of the Communists who run Hungary. He blasted them incessantly. He threatened ex-communication to Hungarian Catholics who had dealings with them. He opposed tooth and nail the state seizure of Catholic schools which Parliament finally accomplished this year.

There had been talk in Hungary that the government was willing to discuss peace with the church—but the price was the removal of Mindszenty. The clergy rallied to the Cardinal and nothing came of the peace feelers. Moreover, students, in the usual type of planned Communist demonstration, denounced the Cardinal with cries of "hang him."

Made Cardinal in 1946.

Cardinal Mindszenty was elevated to the purple in February 1946, at the great Consistory in Rome. He was late for the Consistory. The Russians threw all sorts of delays in his path. He finally got to Rome through the intervention of Maj. Gen. William S. Key, then chief of the United States military mission in Budapest, who took him to the Eternal City in a United States Army plane.

Back from Rome, clothed with the authority of a prince of the church, he resumed his battle with the Russians and their satellites.

He denied vigorously Russian charges that his clergy incited the people against the Soviet Union and the occupying Red army. He protested with equal vigor that Catholics were being mistreated in Communist-dominated countries. He fought an uphill and an obviously losing battle with hard-bitten Communist Matyas Rakosi, the vice premier and real power in Hungary, who called the Cardinal warmonger, reactionary and royalist.

In 1947, the Government put into motion the machinery for abolishing compulsory religious education in the schools. Midszenty threatened excommunication for any Catholic Parliament member or official who supported it.

Letters Returned Unopened.

Early this year the Government complained bitterly that the Cardinal refused to recognize it and returned the President's letters unopened. The Cardinal, meanwhile, went on with his battle against nationalization of church schools. In June this year, he ordered Catholics to stop reading Government newspapers and threatened excommunication to any who repeated language offensive to the church.

The Government, for its part, hinted broadly at reprisals and called the Cardinal an "American agent." The Government, through Communist Minister of Transport Erno Gero, declared that 'the liquidation of clerical reaction is now the order of the day."

The Government since then has cracked down on the Catholic press, hampering it through holding up its newsprint. Some leading Catholics have fled the country. Others have been reported arrested. The controlled press and radio is filled with denunciations of the Cardinal.

SEASONAL EMPLOYMENT
Now is the time of year when a niphomicronomist has work to do. This is something we wouldn't have known if one of our friends hadn't told us. Niphomicronomy is the science of measuring snow, and the niphomicronomist is the one who does it. The work doesn't appeal to us because it is too seasonal, and we intend ot stay in business at Bevo Mill. Folks enjoy dining with us the year 'round, and Julius says this kind of business is more to his liking than niphomicronomy or anything else, for that matter.

33 DIE IN FIRES OVER CHRISTMAS WEEKEND IN U.S.

CHICAGO, Dec. 27 (AP)—At least 33 persons perished in fires Christmas weekend. (A United Press survey put the toll much higher—69.)

At New Brunswick, N.J., seven members of one family perished in a fire which destroyed their home Christmas day.

Three young children, their parents and a grandfather died in a fire yesterday at Barre, Mass. Firemen said they believed the mother, her father and the children were trapped in an upstairs bedroom in the one and one-half story cottage. The father had been sleeping on a couch on the first floor. Sub-zero temperatures and high winds hampered firemen fighting the blaze.

4 of 5 in Family Killed.

Four of the five members of a family were burned fatally in a fire which destroyed their one-room home on the east edge of Kansas City, Mo. Dead were Mrs. Cleta Green, 36 years old, and three sons, Fred Jr., 7, Leo 4, and Glenn Daniel, 2. The father, Fred Green, 36, was said to be in critical condition from burns. Green told firemen the house was cold when he arose yesterday morning so he threw kerosene into the stove to revive the fire. An explosion followed.

A mother and two young children perished at Terre Haute, Ind., yesterday when a blaze destroyed their home. The father awoke to find the converted chicken house in flames. He smashed his way through the thin side of the structure but the flames prevented him from saving his family.

There were 47 fires reported in Philadelphia. In one a 58-year-old housewife and her 10-year-old granddaughter burned to death yesterday and in another a 24-year-old woman died of burns.

Warns Others, But He Dies.

At Scarsdale, N.Y., Allen E. Norman, 46, died in an early morning fire yesterday, but his warning shouts saved the lives of his wife and 10-year-old son. They leaped from a second-floor bedroom window. Mrs. Norman broke her ankle and hurt her back; the boy was uninjured. Norman, secretary of Fawcett Publications, Inc., was found dead on the kitchen floor where he apparently had tried to check the spread of the flames. Firemen reported the blaze apparently was caused by a short circuit in electrically-operated Christmas candles.

Three persons died in an automobile fire near Falmouth, Ky. The three were Negroes. The fire occurred when the automobile turned over after failing to make a curve.

At Springfield, Ill., Fred Washington, 79, Negro, died in a fire in his trailer home.

SOVIET MINISTER DENOUNCES AMERICAN FILM, 'IRON CURTAIN'

MOSCOW, Dec. 27 (UP) — The Soviet vice minister of cinematography yesterday called the American film, "The Iron Curtain," "scurrilous and defamatory," and promised an all-out assault by Soviet film-makers against "Hollywood propoganda."

Vassily Shscherbiny, addressing a conference of song-writers, said Soviet films must "militantly and actively participate in the struggle against imperialism and . . . boldly castigate and expose the efforts of warmongers in the imperialist camp." Referring to the "Iron Curtain," Shscherbiny promised Hollywood "blow for blow against this scurrilous, defamatory film assaulting our culture, Socialism and the people's democracy."

He called Hollywood a "Tool of Wall Street," saying "American reactionary business men attach an enormous role to the ideological struggle. Consequently it wasn't accidental that as Hollywood's ideological leaders were designated such Wall Street tycoons as Eric Johnson and former Secretary of State James Byrnes."

MISSOURI EX-CONVICT CAUGHT AFTER DENVER JAIL BREAK

Charles E. Lawson of St. Louis was one of the six prisoners who escaped yesterday from the Denver county jail at Denver, Colo., where they were being held on suspicion of burglary, it was learned here today.

Lawson and four others were captured by police within a few minutes. One man still is at large. He was identified as Russell P. Sexton of Kansas City, Mo. They escaped by overpowering two guards, taking a knife from one, then seizing Warden Steve De Angelis and forcing him to open the outer gates.

Lawson escaped with three other inmates from the Intermediate Reformatory at Algoa in 1935. They kidnaped Dr. H. I. Taylor of Jefferson City and forced him to supply them with clothing and drive them away from Jefferson City. Lawson was captured in April 1936 and given a five-year sentence for the escape and kidnaping.

BOY, 4, BURNED TO DEATH IN FIRE; 2 CHILDREN ESCAPE

Frank Cruise, 4-year-old son of Mrs. Altha Cruise, was burned to death early yesterday when fire from an overheated furnace broke out in the basement apartment in which he lived at 1019 Market avenue, East St. Louis.

The child's mother was not at home when the fire started. A brother, 11, and a sister, 7, who were sleeping in the same room with Frank managed to escape. His body, badly burned, was found in the bedroom.

Fire Chief Russell Wright estimated damage to the building at $1500 and to the contents at $500. Firemen extinguished the flames after two and one-half hours.

SENATOR-ELECT MUNDT APPOINTED TO THE SENATE

Named to Succeed Mrs. Bushfield to Get Priority on Committees.

PIERRE, S. D., Dec. 27 (UP)—Representative Karl E. Mundt (Rep.), South Dakota, who is a Senator-elect, today was appointed Senator to succeed Mrs. Vera C. Bushfield, widow of Senator Harlan J. Bushfield.

The appointment was made by Gov. George T. Mickelson, who simultaneously accepted the resignations of Mrs. Bushfield as Senator and Mundt as Representative.

Mickelson said Mundt is not expected to qualify as Senator until tomorrow. The resignations and appointment were made under an arrangement to give Mundt priority to committee appointments over other Republican Senators-elect by qualifying him before the Eighty-first Congress convenes Jan. 3.

Mrs. Bushfield was appointed last Oct. 6 to succeed her husband, who died Sept. 27. Mundt was elected to a regular six-year term as Senator at the November election. Mundt's successor in the House will be Harold O. Lovre (Rep.), Watertown, S. D.

WOMAN REPORTS MAN POSING AS MINISTER ATTACKED HER

A young married woman reported to East St. Louis police early today that she was criminally attacked by two men, one of whom said he was a minister when offering her a ride in his automobile after she missed bus connections in St. Louis.

The woman, whose home is in Illinois, said she became confused in the bus terminal at 701 North Broadway and missed a bus to Oklahoma shortly after midnight. A man, who said he was a minister driving to El Paso, Tex., to attend a meeting of clergymen, offered her a ride to Oklahoma, she said. He explained that his car was being repaired, but would be ready in a few minutes.

When the machine arrived with the man at the wheel the woman got in, she told police. The man drove across MacArthur bridge and to a dirt road, where he stopped the machine, seized her by the throat, choked her and attacked her. A second man, who had been hiding in the back seat, also attacked her, the woman stated. The men drove to the 6200 block of State street, where they put her out of the machine. The woman went to a home in the neighborhood and reported the attack. Police took her to St. Mary's Hospital, where she was reported in serious condition from shock.

FIRST-LINE TRAINERS LACKING FOR FULL AIR FORCE RESERVE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 (AP)—The Air Force says it lacks enough planes to provide the entire Air Force Reserve with first-line aircraft for training purposes.

C. W. Whitney, Assistant Secretary of Air, made this comment in a letter to Senator Wiley (Rep.), Wisconsin, who had asked information on plans for Air Force Reserve units.

Whitney said the Regular Air Force, the Air National Guard and "certain foreign aid programs" all have a higher priority than the Air Force Reserve.

CHILD SWALLOWS FUEL OIL

Charles Dorsey, 2-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Dorsey, 1731A Franklin avenue, was in serious condition at City Hospital today after swallowing an undetermined amount of fuel oil.

His parents told police the child had been playing with other children in a room of the Dorsey flat where a 5-gallon can of fuel oil was kept. They said they found him with a water glass that smelled of oil and they also detected the odor of oil on his breath. None of the other children could say how he obtained the oil.

NAVY IS TESTING 22,000-LB. MAULER PLANE ON CARRIER

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 (AP)—The Navy is conducting tests of its hardest-shooting single-engine warplane, aboard the carrier Kearsarge off the East Coast. Announcing this last night, the Navy said tests will run for several weeks.

Operating from the carrier are models of the Martin AM-1 "Mauler," well-named because of its imposing armament of torpedoes, rockets and machine guns.

The Mauler weighs more than 22,000 pounds, about the weight of the familiar twin-engine commercial airliner, yet lands and takes off from a carrier flight deck. The Navy said it is one of the heaviest airplanes ever designed exclusively for carrier operation.

It carries only the pilot, and is powered by a single Pratt & Whitney engine, to provide a maximum speed in excess of 300 miles an hour and a range of more than 2000 miles.

Homing Device Works for Bombers in Eighth Arena Victory

Smawley's 28 Points Clog Jets

It was good to be home again. The Bombers just off the rough road on which they have won only four out of 12, were back in their Arena stride today with their eighth victory in 10 games on the home court.

Indianapolis, a team which had managed to defeat the Bombers in the season opener at the Indiana city back in early November, was the Bomber victim by a 75 to 65 score last night before a small crowd of 2565 persons.

For a time it seemed as if Indianapolis, last place club in the western division of the Basketball Association of America, would give the Bombers a run for their money. The score was tied at 17-all at the end of the first quarter and the Bombers led by only 38,-34 at the half.

But in the third period the St. Louis team began to click and ran up an eight-point lead at 49-41 before Indianapolis cut down the margin to 51-48 at the three-quarter mark. With a 24-point final period the Bombers then secured their 12th victory in 22 games.

Belus Smawley, hitting on 11 of 18 field goal tries, rang the bell for 28 points despite an injury that put him out of action briefly in the final period and a rest on the bench during most of the second quarter. He also made six of eight free throw attempts.

In the last stage of the game Smawley and Ace Maughan totaled 18 points to hold off the Jets, who had narrowed the margin to 55-54. John Brookfield scored four field goals in the Indianapolis rally, but then the visitors' Charley Black, John Manic and Carlisle Towery fouled out of the rough game.

Sharing honors with Smawley was the Bombers' old reliable, Johnny Logan, who carried the offensive burden in the second period with an eight-point effort that helped to give St. Louis its halftime advantage.

It will be home sweet home again for the Bombers—they hope—when the eastern division leading Washington Capitols call at the Arena Thursday night. The Caps have lost only three of 24 games and top both divisions with their .875 percentage.

232 of 260 Fouls In B.A.A. Converted.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27 (AP) — The games were regulation length, but the whistle-tooters worked overtime in the Basketball Association of America last night.

The referees called 260 fouls in four games, an average of 65 per contest. And the teams made 232 points on free throws.

Minneapolis and Rochester set a couple of records in the free throw department. Minneapolis converted 43 charity tosses out of 48 attempts in whipping Rochester, 99 to 90. The two clubs set a combined mark of 81 successful free throws. Seventy-six fouls were called in the game.

Washington and Fort Wayne committed more fouls, 77, but were less proficient at the free throw line, making only 68. Fort Wayne beat the Caps, 91 to 73. It was only the third loss of the season for Washington, which has won 21 games.

St. Louis whipped Indianapolis, 75 to 65, as 55 fouls were called and Chicago moved into second place in the Western Division by defeating Boston, 84 to 73, with only 52 fouls.

Rigoni and Oldani Gain 10-Pin Lead in Match With Berra, Garagiola

A couple of catchers like Yogi Berra and Joe Garagiola should have no trouble catching their opponents in a bowling match that will be continued at Palace Recreation next Sunday morning.

Berra and Garagiola trailed Lou Oldani and Joe Rigoni by just 10 pins after yesterday's first five games of their 10-game engagement. The score was 1719 to 1709.

Rigoni rolled 220 with a high game of 233. Garagiola had 886, Berra 823 and Oldani 799.

High Teams in Opening Soccer Tourney Games

A noteworthy advance in the development of soccer here is the Christmas week high school tournament which opens this afternoon. Eight schools have entered.

Today's games, to be played at Fairground Park, starting at 2:30 are as follows:

DeAndreis vs. McBride, Grounds One; Chaminade vs. St. John's, Grounds Two.

Tomorrow's program, on the same fields, same time: St. Louis U. High vs. Christian Brothers; John Burroughs against St. Mary's Semifinals will be Thursday and the championship game Friday.

Bayless Beats St. Louis U. High In Normandy Tourney, 36 to 23; Kohl of Losers Misses Contest

By Harold Tuthill

The Normandy tournament was off with a bang this morning when St. Louis University High School's fourth seeded team in the Red Division became a 36-23 upset victim of Bayless.

Back luck befell the Junior Billikens yesterday when Coach George Hasser called a Sunday practice just to keep the team in shape for the tournament. Ed Kohl, St. Louis's scoring star, suffered an ankle injury and was unable to play against Bayless.

The victory was the tenth straight for the Bayless team which, although it was unseeded in this tournament, has not been defeated since it lost its season opener to Lutheran in the Bayless tournament.

Bayless led at every quarter and held the Junior Bills to just three points in the third period.

Elmer Balzer sparked the opening attack of the Bayless team with five of his six field goals in the first half. James (Wink) Reynolds then took over and scored nine of his 14 points in the second half.

The setback was the first for St. Louis in six games.

Clayton advanced through the first round with a victory over Soldan, 46 to 39, in a hard-fought contest in which the score was tied a dozen times.

Toward the close of the third quarter with the count knotted, 36-36, Clayton pulled away to a two-point lead and was never headed thereafter, scoring eight points in the fourth period to three for Soldan.

In the third first-round game, another county school, Jennings, opened up after a low-scoring first-half to hand St. Mary's a 30-21 defeat. The score at half-time was unusually low, 8-7, in St. Mary's favor, but Jennings went ahead and pulled away by scoring 11 points to the losers' three in the third period.

Boyer and Wehmeyer each had eight points for Jennings; Ebert had the same total for St. Mary's.

Clayton is to meet Bayless, conqueror of St. Louis U. High in a red division quarter final match at 11:30 o'clock Wednesday morning.

Bill Rulon led Clayton with 16 points while Ed Deutch and Alvin Towbin were high for Soldan with 10 points each.

Rulon had a technical foul called against him.

Kirkwood Against McBride.

McBride will get its first taste of tournament competition tomorrow in the 10 p.m. Green game against Kirkwood. Beaumont, ranked first in the Red division which it won last year, will start the defense of its title tonight at 10 o'clock against Chaminade. The Bluejackets were seeded second to McBride in the field of 32 teams, but only 16 are permitted to play in one tournament according to state high school regulations.

The night session, starting at 5:30, will find John Burroughs meeting Brentwood. Maplewood tangles with Bismarck at 7 and Hancock plays Central at 8:30 before Beaumont and Chaminade take the floor.

Cleveland, the defending Green champion and beaten only by Collinsville this season, will open tomorrow's session against Wellston at 11 a.m. The sixteenth annual tournament will come to a close New Year's eve.

Half of the eight-team field at O'Fallon will see action tonight as New Athens opposes Carlyle at 7 o'clock and Mascoutah meets Lebanon at 8:30.

Today's schedule:

RED DIVISION.

5:30—John Burroughs vs. Brentwood.
7 p.m.—Maplewood vs. Bismarck.
8:30—Hancock vs. Central.
10 p.m.—Chaminade vs. Beaumont.

At East St. Louis.

7:30—Collinsville vs. Chicago South Shore.
8:45—East St. Louis vs. Kewanee.

Williams Called 'Fighter of Year'; Robinson Told to Quit as Welter

NEW YORK, Dec. 27 (UP)—As the Ring Magazine issued its annual ratings yesterday, it named Lightweight Champion Ike Williams "Fighter of the Year," and it advised Welterweight Champion Ray Robinson to give up his title.

In a copyrighted story accompanying the ratings, Editor Nat Fleischer predicted that the current boxing slump would continue through 1949, at least.

Williams's selection as the No. 1 fighter of 1948 was not surprising; for earlier in the month the explosive Negro from Trenton, N. J., had been voted the Edward J. Neil award by New York boxing writers for his outstanding contributions to the sport in '48.

Three Defenses of Title.

Editor Fleischer emphasized that Williams's willingness to defend his 135-pound crown against any worthy opponent at any time made the lightweight division tops during '48.

Fleischer said:

"Though he rates tops as a boxer and hitter, unfortunately his division has suffered because Sugar Ray finds it difficult to make the weight (147 pounds) and therefore he has shunned competition among the welters.

"By his actions he has prevented promoters from building up the division into a gate appealing class. Ray should have engaged in several title defenses, yet he fought in defense of the crown only once."

Fleischer then said it would be "in the best interests of boxing" were Sugar Ray to vacate the title since he finds he can't make the weight without weakening himself. It would be better for him to campaign as a middleweight.

Robinson's abdication would enable the outstanding contenders—Kid Gavilan of Havana and Frankie Fernandez of Honolulu—to fight for the vacant crown.

Here's Robinson's Chance.

Fleischer stressed that if Robinson gave up the 147-pound crown he might be able to force Middleweight Champion Marcel Cerdan into a fight for the 160-pound title. He said a Cerdan-Robinson fight would be tops for 1949, if it could be arranged.

Cerdan, of Casablanca, Morocco, will receive a medal for being the second ranking fighter of 1948. He earned that by winning the championship on an upset knockout over veteran Tony Zale.

Joe Louis was ranked after Cerdan because of his knockout victory over Jersey Joe Walcott, and Freddie Mills of England was rated No. 4 because of his upset victory over Gus Lesnevich for the light heavyweight championship.

The Cerdan-Zale bout was rated the fight of the year, and the "round of the year" was the eleventh round in which Louis knocked out Walcott. The surprice of the year was Sandy Saddler's knockout victory over Willie Pep for the featherweight crown.

Fleischer admitted that the fight game was sufferings from a lack of attractive talent; but he emphasized that boxing, in that respect, was no worse off than other professional sports like baseball and ice hockey.

Falling Off in Boxers.

He estimated that more than 3200 professionals had quit the ring in all countries during 1948 because they found they could not make a living with their fists. When the year opened there were 6700 pro scrappers in the United States and 3000 in other countries. Approximately one in every three had hung up their gloves. It was a record-breaking retirement.

Rocky Castellani was named Rookie of the Year because of his seven straight victories over Jimmy King, Leo Sawicki, Harold Green, Mickey Zangara, Herbie Kronowitz, Walter Cartier and Sonny Horne.

Williams, Cerdan and Castellani will be presented with ring medals at the boxing writers annual dinner next month.

Six Matches at The Same Time On Net Program

Six matches will be going at one time as the National Junior and National Small Boys tennis tournamets move into action this evening at the Armory, Market street at Spring avenue.

In order to get in the scheduled 117 matches before New Year's eve, the tournament committee finds it necessary to run off 22 matches a day. The comparatively late start of 5 p.m. today is to accommodate players coming from out of town Tomorrow's action gets under way at 10 with a respite between 2 p.m. and 5 p.m.

Among the Juniors four players are conceded especially good prospects. They are the following, seeded one to four: Tony Trabert, University of Cincinnati; Dick Osburn, Texas Christian University; Steve Potts, Memphis and Allen Fischl, New York.

Trabert, who draws a first round bye, holds both the Western and Tri-States championships for junior players, and is ranked No. 2 nationally.

Ted Rogers of Washington, D.C., who also drew a first round bye, is the outstanding contestant among the Small Boys. He is ranked No. 6 nationally. Coming here with Rogers is his doubles partner, Tim Cross, ranked No. 10 in the country.

JUNIORS.

7—Ted Jax, Hamtramck, Mich., vs. Wallace Gundlach, St. Louis; Ray Smith, Chicago, vs. Ned Pfeiffer, St. Louis; Allen Fischl, New York, vs. William Jenna, Iowa City, Ia.; Livingston Taylor, Charleston, Ill., vs. Mike Weatherley, St. Louis; Robert Shure, Chicago, vs. Louis Keller, St. Louis.

Edwards Gives Up Coach Post, Now Executive

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 (AP)—Turk Edwards, head coach of the Washington Redskins for three years moved up today to the job of executive vice president.

His successor as head coach of the National Football League club will not be announced for at least three weeks.

Edwards told a news conference he felt he could do the club more good in his new position.

"I think it works out better," said Edwards, "if someone other than the coach actually takes care of the signing of the players."

"Furthermore, if the person signing the players does not know what he is doing, he can break a ball club, by the amount of money he will spend."

Under Edwards, the Redskins had their gloomiest years.

The 1946 team won five, lost five and tied one, the worst record a Redskin team ever had had up to that time.

But the 1947 season was worse yet. The Redskins won only four games on a 12-game schedule.

Oh, Macauley Come Back--- Bills on Way

By Robert Morrison

Bob Hope, Ed Macauley and a number of other bell ringers are due to appear at a sports banquet in Los Angeles this evening, then sometime around midnight the Billiken basketeer should be winging his way back to New Orleans.

There tomorrow morning, if all goes well, All-America Ed will rejoin the main unit of the St. Louis University basketball task force which will attempt to take Holy Cross, Kentucky or Tulane, and the Sugar Bowl championship by storm, starting Wednesday night.

It is a close schedule for Hope and Macauley, if not for Coach Ed Hickey and his Billikens who depart for the South at 6:30 o'clock this evening from Union Station. At last reports the radio comedian, who is supposed to serve as toastmaster at the Los Angeles affair, was in London.

It Would Be Terrible.

Whether Hope gets where he is supposed to be probably would be no great tragedy, but if Macauley doesn't make it back to New Orleans by tomorrow—or at least by Wednesday night—it will be a calamity.

While all Billikens studied weather charts and flying conditions with great care yesterday, the momentous decision was made to risk it and Macauley, accompanied by his mother and Athletic Director Bill Durney, departed by air for the coast.

Hickey and the Blue and White company are willing to take any reasonable chance in order to oblige people who want to honor St. Louis U. or its athletes. So despite questionable weather in the west, the die was cast.

"Maybe," said Warne Boecklen, Billiken publicist, who helped do the worrying, "if Macauley can't get back in time for the Sugar Bowl games, we could have Bob Hope stop off at New Orleans to play center. I don't know if the coach would approve of having a comedian on the team, however."

Just a Few Kind Words.

All the Billikens were in fine spirits as time for the holiday jaunt approached. While Macauley prepared to fly in the face of possibly bad weather, Trainer Bob Bauman administered a good humor prescription.

"Say, Ed," said Doc, "they always pick the tallest guy to reach out and scrape the ice off the wings."

With Hickey and Bauman on the train tonight will be a traveling squad of 11. The lucky number included Joe Ossola, Bob Schmidt, Lou Lehman, Marv Schatzman, Ed Scott, Bill Gardner, John Cordia, Joe Brehmer, Bill Edwards, Joe Schmidt and Jack Wrape.

Billikens One of 22 Major Unbeaten Fives.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27 (AP)—Kentucky vs. St. Louis, the game basketball fans were demanding nine months ago, finally may be played this week.

It all depends on which way the round ball bounces. Kentucky, the NCAA champion, is paired against Tulane in the Sugar Bowl basketball carnival at New Orleans Wednesday night. On the same card St. Louis, the national invitation tourney champ, meets Holy Cross, Eastern NCAA runnerup.

If both win, Kentucky and St. Louis will tangle Thursday night. If they don't—well, it was a nice dream, anyway. Of course, there's a chance they both might lose, and then they'd still meet. Such a chance is at least as remote as Siberia.

The Wildcats have won seven in a row this season without losing; St. Louis has won five. Holy Cross has stumbled only before Kentucky in five games and Tulane won eight in a row before bowing to the Wildcats last week.

Kentucky and the Billikens are only two of 22 major unbeaten cage powers in the nation. And all but three of them risk their spotless records this week.

Other teams that have come out on top every time are Washington State, 10 victories; Bradley, 9; Stanford, 8; Canisius, Dartmouth, Hamline, Indiana, La Salle (Philadelphia), Purdue, Villanova, Lawrence Tech (Detroit), and Western Kentucky, 6; North Carolina and Minnesota, 5; Vanderbilt and Alabama, 4; Cincinnati, Duquesne and Mississippi, 3; and Army, 1.

Only Villanova, Mississippi and Army won't see action this week.

An eight-team affair starting tomorrow at oLs Angeles includes North Carolina State (6-2), Marshall (4-3), Hamline (6-0), Brigham Young (6-2), Loyola of Los Angeles (5-6), Pepperdine (5-4), Montana (1-7), and Wyoming (9-3).

Washington State takes its 10-game winning streak, the longest in the country, into a Pacific Coast conference tourney today at the Cow Palace in San Francisco. Also on hand will be Southern California (3-4), Stanford (8-0), Oregon State (6-3), California (6-6), Oregon (3-4), Washington (5-1), and UCLA (6-1).

Three of the unbeaten clubs—Vanderbilt, Dartmouth and Minnesota—converge on Des Moines, Ia., where they'll team with Drake in the annual Corn Bowl tournament Wednesday.

Oklahoma's once-beaten Aggies from Stillwater are favored to retain their title in the Oklahoma City eight-team tournament. The opposition will include Alabama (4-0), Auburn (2-2), Baylor (2-5).

SPORT CAMEOS by Red Smith

Ordeal of the Boulevards.

MR. LEW BURSTON, visibly shaken by the ordeal of strolling the boulevards and visiting the cafes of Europe's capitals on an expense account, has returned to these shores looking pale and drawn.

"What I go through for the love of Mike Jacobs," he moaned. Mr. Burston, the Twentieth Century Sporting Club's multiple ambassador to the dominions over the seas, recently toured a sizable chunk of the world overpowering fist-fighters at the point of a fountain pen and coercing them into a promise to fight for the American dollar.

"In Paris," Mr. Burston reported, "I saw a pea-soup fog like I only ever heard about and didn't know existed. Drivers on the Champs Elysees never knew how close they were to getting killed until the fog lifted and there they all were stalled and pointing every which way, not two feet away from each other In London I've heard about it, but Paris, no.

"On a Monday I flew to London, we cruised over the London airport for half an hour and then flew back to Paris. On Tuesday we made one run down the take-off strip in Paris, couldn't see to get off, and the flight was canceled. On Wednesday my reservation was switched from 5 to 3 o'clock. The 3 o'clock plane got down in England, and all flights after that were canceled."

Cauliflower Cartel.

"As to fighters," Mr. Burton said, "there aren't so many good ones over there that you could take two or three away from any center and leave 'em anything to do business with. So what I did, I made working agreements with Jack Solomons in London, Jo Longman in Paris and Rene DeVos in Belgium. Then when I signed a fighter I deposited the contract with the local promoter.

"Now, when we want one of those fighters, the local promoter will send him along and in return we'll send over guys that the promoter can fill in with while his guy is over here. It's the only cartel I know—and it is a cartel—that benefits the little fellow.

"I think the customers will like Luc van Dam, the middleweight champion of Holland. You know Cyrille Delannoit is a pretty fair fighter. Well, Van Dam beat Cyrille in one bout, drew with him in another and lost a very close one to him for the European championship.

"Luc's wife is his manager and it's legitimate, not one of those phony publicity build-ups. She's a fine, respectable woman, mother of three kids, and she knows all the angles. I know, because I did business with her. She's not too hard to get along with, though, if you're on the square"—

Mr. Burton interrupted himself hastily.

"Not that I believe in honesty," he said, "but I have discovered you can go a little farther with people if you give 'em a fair shake.

Please Order by Size.

"Ray Famechon, the featherweight champion of Europe, is a possible opponent for Sandy Saddler, either over the weight or for the title. He's a Frenchman, one of three brothers in a family of fighters.

"These fellows will be over here. So will Jean Walzac, the French welter champion. I can give you a pretty good rating on him. He beat Ernie Roderick when Roderick was the champion of Great Britain. Holman Williams made two trips to France. The first time, he lost a close decision to Marcel Cerdan. The second time—I forget whether Holman was supposed to fight Cerdan again or who—the match fell through and Walzac went in as a substitute and whipped him.

"Walzac is a Frenchman of Polish extraction. He'll bring his stablemate along, a small Italian featherweight named Gaeteo Annaloro. Spell it any way you like.

"The one interesting me most is Hein Ten Hoff, heavyweight champion of Germany. He's a Dutchman from Rotterdam but he's a German citizen. I checked his records on the Nazi business. Well, it seems his manager was in jail for talking against the Nazis and Ten Hoff got what the Nazis never got — they shipped him to the Russian front with a Panzer division.

On Being Pig-Rich.

"Both he and his manager are very wealthy. The manager was telling me how he had 3000 pigs he was raising for market. That's wealth, all right, but I asked how could a guy have 3000 pigs over there unless he had an army to protect 'em. Anyway, this guy has a butcher shop and a place where he makes wurst.

"The fighter, who is the manager's son-in-law, owns a brick kiln and operates a roadhouse with his mother-in-law. He has had 17 fights, won 14 by knockouts, and he had about a hundred amateur and Army fights. He'll be over in January."

"Who'll he fight here?" Mr. Burston was asked.

"I wish I knew," Mr. Burston said. "All I can tell you for sure is who he won't fight. He will not fight me."

Brisk Weather Greets Tigers At Jacksonville

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Dec. 27 (AP).

BRISK weather greeted the Missouri football squad of 45 players as it arrived here today for its New Year's day encounter with Clemson in the 'Gator Bowl.

Coach Don Faurot and his Midwest Tigers will make their headquarters at nearby Ponte Vedra Beach.

Clemson's squad is scheduled to arrive tomorrow by plane. Coach Frank Howard's team will work in the Jacksonville baseball park.

Simpkins and Schultes Score Victories in Pro Soccer League

Only Small Crowd Sees Two Games

By Dent McSkimming

It begins to look as though the St. Louis Soccer League will not see the fruition of its dream of big crowds until somebody does something about the weather.

Team managers and players and league officials are all striving to quicken the interest in the professional game here and there are times when a slight boost in the cash receipts seems to indicate they are on the right track. And then along comes a snow storm and the vision of filled stands melts to a foggy gray nothing.

An estimate of one thousand customers at Sportsman's Park yesterday is a generous guess. The games were just about as good as the 10 weekly shows that have gone before, so it must have been the weather that chilled the fans' enthusiasm.

There was heat enough in the striving of the players. Both the Steamfitters, beaten in the first game, and El Reys, losers in the second, kept pounding away at the objective, apparently believing themselves just as good as their more successful opponents. But from an air conditioned corner of the grandstand it appeared the Joe Simpkins team was fully three goals better in whipping the Fitters, 4-1, and the Paul Schultes were a solid one goal better than the El Reys whom they stopped, 3-2.

Star for New Clubs.

A few weeks ago the El Reys, trying to re-establish harmony in the clubhouse after a succession of defeats, released a couple of players who had a habit of disagreeing with the management. There was no serious objection to the playing ability of Charley Dubois or Harry Desmuke but they just didn't fit in. Since Dubois was picked up by the alert Simpkins club, he has scored three goals, two of them yesterday. He couldn't buy a tally when he played for the El Reys. Desmuke, playing for the Steamfitters, has not so distinguished himself as yet, but he's been useful. It's just too bad the El Reys didn't get some helpful players in exchange for this pair.

There was some question in the minds of spectators and players when Referee Ullenberg awarded the El Reys a goal in the first half of their game with Schultes. It appeared that Fullback Bob Fitzgerald fisted Bill Cohan's shot away from the empty goal before the ball had crossed the line, but the official ruled it a score. If the ball had actually entered the goal, Fitzgerald performed something of a miracle for the ball after leaving his fist went directly over the Schultes' goal line for a corner kick, without the aid of any trick breezes.

It was another day of disappointment as far as referees go. Three new officials tooted whistles as the league returned to the two-referee system. Of these, Tom Erbe did an acceptable job, Milt Zensen (substituting for Irv Wimer who was ill) kept out of serious trouble, but the third one, Charley Lynch, acted as though he had never seen a soccer game before.

He's Making the Rounds.

Willie Welsher is making the rounds of the league. He started the season with the El Reys, stopped briefly with the Schultes and is now with the Steamfitters. He was traded yesterday for Oscar Corona.

Henry Merlo was forced to retire from the field five minutes before the end of the game for a very excellent reason. He lost a lens from his spectacles. It disappeared in the deep snow.

Next Sunday it will be: Steamfitters vs. Schultes; Simpkins vs. El Reys, in the third round of the second half-season.

Herman Mugavero, for years a member of the Simpkins and their predecessors of The Hill, played yesterday for the El Reys. He was traded just before game time.

Frank Adams was missing from the El Reys lineup. The Scott Field soldier was at his home in New Jersey on furlough.

But Eddie Begley's team looked better with the return of Joe Spica whose injured knee appeared perfectly well again.

Gil Hodges Signs New Contract

Forecasters' Casualties High

By Oscar Fraley

NEW YORK, Dec. 27 (UP)—So many guys went out on a limb and had it sawed off this year that the tree of prophecy is barer today than your wallet will be when those Christmas bills come due.

If you're dreaming of a black New Year's, with every check you have to write, save yourself some time and don't bother muttering "never again." Those predictions are difficult in retrospect.

Consider just a few of the prophesies which backfired in the sports world during 1948.

There's a gent over in Brooklyn named Burt Shotton. He managed the 1947 Dodgers and moved out for the returning Leo Durocher last season. Burt's retort was that he would "never again manage a ball club." But there was Shotton, back in business, when Leo moved to the Polo Grounds.

Dilligent research, producing where memory fails, gives us the name of a fighter called Jersey Joe Walcott. Some of you may remember him as the fellow who promised to knock out Joe Louis in their second fight. The prophecy and the result backfired. New Jersey Joseph went down and out in 11 heats.

Then there was the dire forecast of H. O. (Fritz) Crisler, when he retired as Michigan football coach, that Walverine football fortunes were ebbing. Yet Michigan at last reports still was the mythical national collegiate football champion.

Amateurs Miss, Too.

Dr. Carl Leib, president of the NCAA, told those learned gentlemen that basketball "soon" would leave the public gold camps and return to the campus. At this moment, money still is running ahead.

The father of Bob Chappuis, a much sought after football player, announced to all concerned that son Robert would play for the Pittsburgh Steelers. Chappuis immediately turned up with the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Spring training found Marse Joe McCarthy of the Boston Red Sox claiming his Bosox would "be there" when they handed out the American League pennant. The gentlemen who post odds for a profit made the Yankees the choice and picked the Cardinals in the National League.

Just to show you how it goes, Cleveland's 20 to 1 shots won in the American League with the Red Sox second and the Yanks third. The Cards finished second, so far back in the National League that they practically headed a second division composed of seven clubs.

Joe Louis Gets the Palm.

The double crossed palms with scallion cluster would seem to go to Joe Louis who, after beating Walcott, said he "definitely" would not fight again. Several weeks later he said there "isn't a chance" he'd change his mind. Now who do you suppose he'll fight in June?

Dan Topping, financial pride of the Yankees, denied emphatically along in September that there was a rift with Manager Bucky Harris. The print wasn't dry when Bucky was given his walking papers.

One of the few who didn't stray from the trunk of the tree far enough to give the woodsmen a chopping chance was Ford Frick, National League president. He saw major league expansion to the coast but was content to explain that it was "inevitable." Which gives him a few years.

Iowa State and Harvard Play In First Game

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 27 (AP)—Every team, including guest Harvard University, is a dark-horse in the third annual Big Seven Conference basketball tournament opening here tonight.

Not one of the teams could be rated favorite on a basis of early season records. Only the University of Kansas Jayhawks (3-2), who have met only one major team, has won more games than it lost.

Harvard (3-3) and Iowa State (3-4) open the four-day meet at 8 p.m. Kansas State (3-5) and Nebraska (3-4) follow at 9:30 o'clock.

Completing the first round tomorrow will be Kansas and Missouri (2-4) at 8 o'clock and Colorado (1-2) and Oklahoma (1-4) at 9:30.

Notwithstanding the fact that the Big Seven with only six victories in 31 games has made its poorest start in recent years, executive-secretary Reaves Peters of the conference insists most of the teams are stronger than a year ago.

"The teams have many lettermen back from last season when we batted better than .500 per cent against major outsiders," Peters commented, "and I'm confident each team is ready to start playing better ball."

Each of the coaches was busy denying his team should be made the favorite.

Semifinals Today in Parochial Soccer Series

Semifinal games of the Parochial Soccer League playoffs will be held this afternoon in two public parks. At Sublette, St. Engelbert opposes Our Lady of Sorrows; at Sherman the opponents are St. James and Holy Name.

Starting time is 3:45 p.m.

Zenthoefers Win, to Play Dallas in Next Open Match

The task of retaining the National Open championship in soccer for St. Louis rests in the strong hands of the young Zenthoefer club. In defeating the Plaza club, 4 to 0, at Fairground Park yesterday, the Zenthoefers succeeded to the role played by the Joe Simpkins club last season.

The Simpkins did a fine job of it, going all the way through, winning the title. However, since the Zenthoefers are almost entirely the team that played last season as a junior club under the name Schumachers it is not generally expected they will go very far in intercity competition that lies ahead.

Bob Rooney

Their first test in this line should not be too difficult. They will go to Dallas to oppose the Texas champions, the Alpine club.

Bob Rooney scored two of the Zenthoefer goals, Joe Molina one and Bill Davis the other, while Goalie Al Pidgeon and his defense mates contrived to shut out the Plazas.

Final survivor for St. Louis in the National Amateur championship tournament is the Santa Cruz club which clinched that honor by defeating the American Legion Post, 5 to 2, yesterday, also at Fairground Park. Mickey Mayor scored three of the winner's goals. He played earlier in the season with the El Rey club. Bob Shelley and Bill Dowling also tallied for the Santas, Frank Licavoli getting both the losers' tallies.

Carrying the banner for St. Louis in the National Junior Cup matches will be the Windsor A.C., victor over the Natural Set Ups, 3-0. All three goals in this game were scored by a halfback, Stellern.

An experiment in soccer without goaltenders was played by two Midget League teams, the Giesler-Jorgens defeating Holy Name, 4 to 3. All other Municipal and C.Y.C. games were postponed.

Jack Bales Will See Only Limited Service In Cigar Bowl Game

MARSHALL, Mo., Dec. 27 (AP)—The Missouri Valley College Vikings boarded a bus here this morning for the first leg of their trip to Tampa, Fla., and New Year's day football engagement with St. Thomas College in the Cigar Bowl.

Ashford, who gave his squad a final checking over yesterday, said the general condition of the squad was "very good," but added that the services of Jack Bales, star back who is suffering from a knee injury, may be very limited.

"I believe the boys will be in good mental condition for the Cigar Bowl, too," Ashford commented. "Losing to Evansville in the Refrigerator Bowl didn't take anything out of the lads. If anything, I believe it has made them more determined to beat St. Thomas."

Thirty-eight players are included in the party.

Ben Hogan Top Money Winner In Golf Ranks

CHICAGO, Dec. 27 (UP)—The Professional Golfers' Association today named Ben Hogan, Hershey, Pa., golf's top official money winner for 1948 with a total of $32,112 won in P.G.A. listed tournaments.

Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago was runner-up to Hogan in official money winnings. Mangrum, however, finished an easy first in overall money won with a grand total of $45,898.32. Of this total $31,289.99 came from tournaments affiliated with the P.G.A. The remaining $14,608.33 was won in contests outside P.G.A. listings.

Hogan also won the Vardon Trophy and headed the Ryder Cup listings with 916 points. He received the Vardon award, which is awarded for the lowest average number of strokes in tournament play, with a 69.3 stroke average.

Mangrum finished second to Hogan on the Ryder Cup list with 701 points, but was disqualified from the Vardon Trophy contest because he "picked up" in the Jacksonville Open.

Clayton Heafner, Charlotte, N. C., finished second to Hogan in the Vardon Trophy race with an average score of 70.43 strokes per round. Johnny Palmer, Badin, N. C., finished third with a 70.54 stroke average.

Other leading money winners listed by the P.G.A. were Jimmy Demaret, Ojai, Cal., $26,074.99; Bobby Locke, South Africa, $23,468, and Skip Alexander, Lexington, N. C., $18,998.43.

Check the Price—check the Policy—
"Buick's the Buy!"

EVER since this '49 Buick made its bow, we've been telling you it's a buy.

We've invited you to match it—feature by feature and dollar for dollar—with anything else offered to you. You can start with the delivered prices shown here.

But don't stop with that. Check the policy under which Buicks are sold—and see for yourself that Buick means a better deal as well as a better buy!

Briefly, our Four-Square sales policy is this:

1. NO PRICE PADDING! We guarantee our prices to contain nothing but charges that were standard practice in figuring prewar delivered prices. You receive an itemized bill of sale showing all charges. And we display our prices in our showroom.
2. NO "LOADING" OF UNWANTED ACCESSORIES. All cars are delivered with accessories as ordered. We pledge ourselves to add no "extras" you do not want.
3. NO COMPULSORY TRADE-INS. Selling used cars is part of our business. Naturally we like to take cars in trade. But you do not have to sell your car to us! We will take your order, and deliver your car, without requiring a car in trade!
4. NO COLLUSION WITH "GRAY MARKETEERS." We will not knowingly be party to a sale of Buick cars to any individual who operates in the "gray market."

In other words—you know exactly where you stand when you buy a Buick. What you get—what you pay—all the details of the deal open and aboveboard.

So we repeat: Check the price. Check the policy. Buick's the buy any way you want to look at it.

Bisons' Three-Goal Second Period Beats Flyers

Steve Black, Trigg Tally For Losers

BUFFALO, N. Y., Dec. 27 (AP)—The Buffalo Bisons defeated the St. Louis Flyers for the first time this season last night, 5-2, in an American Hockey League game before a crowd of 9184.

Kenny MacKenzie opened the scoring for the Bisons on a breakway late in the first period. Steve Black tied off a faceoff 15 seconds later.

Buffalo pulled ahead to stay with three goals in the second period. Len Halderson, up from the United States League, drilled home Tommy Cooper's pass, George Agar tallied in a wild scramble and Art Lessard, the recently suspended defenseman, soloed for another score.

Roger Leger made it 5-1 with a screened shot from the blue line in the third period. Ernie Trigg racked up the Flyers' final goal on a combination play, and the Bisons later played two men short for one minute and 12 seconds without allowing a score.

Lineups and summary:

ST. LOUIS.	Pos.	BUFFALO.

Reds Lead by 20 Points.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27 (AP)—Providence's Rhode Island Reds are dominating play in the American Hockey League by the process of making the most goals and throwing up the best defense against opposition.

The Reds have scored 162 goals this season—22 more than the closest challenger in this department, St. Louis. The 80 goals they have allowed also is the lowest in the circuit.

The Reds won again last night, defeating the Springfield Indians, 5-2, to strengthen their hold on the eastern division lead. They have 47 points—20 more than second-place Hershey.

In other games, Indianapolis downed Pittsburgh, 5-4, and New Haven blanked Washington, 2-0, for the new Rambler coach, Neil Colville.

The Reds played with three revamped lines as a result of injuries to three players—Roger Bedard, Pete Kapusta and Jack McGill. But they showed all-round superiority and Goalie Harvey Bennett had a shutout until seven minutes before the end of the contest.

Indianapolis' Don Morrison pulled a three-goal hat trick in the Capitals' triumph over Pittsburgh. His last two goals furnished Indianapolis the margin of victory in a close game.

Colville, former New York Rangers ace, set the pace for New Haven in the shutout over Washington. The Ramblers scored in the first and third periods while Emil Francis made 24 saves.

Football Greats to Be Pallbearers for Dobie

ITHACA, N. Y., Dec. 27 (AP)—Pallbearers were announced yesterday for J. Gilmore (Gloomy Gil) Dobie, whose 36-year football coaching career was ended Thursday by death.

Services will be held in the Presbyterian Church tomorrow at 2 p.m., with many men who played under Dobie among the bearers.

Miss Jane Dobie, the nationally-famed coach's daughter, said in Trenton, N. J., the pallbearers would be:

Ray T. Hunt of New Brunswick, N. J., who played under Dobie at the University of Washington and coached with him at Cornell; Robert Kane, athletic director at Cornell; Edward Guinlock, who played under Dobie at Cornell. Also George Pfann, all-America back and star of the great, all-conquering Cornell teams of 1921-2-3; the ranking naval officer at Cornell, representing the Navy; Floyd Ramsey, a Dobie player.

Honorary bearers: Rym Berry, former graduate manager at Cornell; Foster Coffin, director of a Cornell hostelry; Leo Sullivan, of Ithaca, a family friend; Frederick Rowe, with whom Dobie often played golf in Ithaca. Also, Bruno Latici, of Putnam, Conn., a neighbor; Bart Viviano, of New York, who played under Dobie; Emmett Murphy, president of the Alumni Association of Cornell; and Assemblyman Ray Ashberry of New York, former Cornell athletics manager.

Raadik Signs for Bout.

BUFFALO, N.Y., Dec. 27 (AP)—Promoter Jack Singer said he had signed Anton Raadik of Chicago to a Jan. 25 bout here with the winner of Tuesday night's middleweight go between Joey De John of Syracuse and Ossie Harris of Pittsburgh.

Birthday for Turf Babies

All over the world, January 1 will be birthday for horses. On that day each race horse is officially one year older. In a preview of their birthday party to be at their Gulfstream, Florida stable, are a couple of prize yearlings owned by C. H. CLEARY of Kentucky. Both these sons of the former great sprinter, Omission, will run as two-year-olds in 1949. JAMES DONN, president of Gulfstream Park track, presents the cake.

Wizards of Odds Did Not Let Statistics Stand in Their Way In Making Their Bowl Choices

NEW YORK, Dec. 27 (AP)—It's obvious the wizards of odds didn't let a little thing like statistics stand in their way when they made the favorites for next Saturday's bowl games.

The National Collegiate Athletic Bureau, which specializes in such things, has ground out another batch of figures sizing up principals in some of the main Jan. 1 football attractions.

These statistics show, among other things, that five of the eight teams which have been rated underdogs in the bigger bowls actually have better offensive records than their favored adversaries.

This is true in the cases of California in the Rose Bowl, Oklahoma in the Sugar, Oregon in the Cotton, Oklahoma A. and M. in the Delta and Wake Forest in the Dixie.

The exceptions—that is, chosen elevens with superior attacking records—are Georgia in the Orange, Missouri in the Gator and Nevada in the Harbor Bowl.

The N.C.A.B. listed records of teams in two other bowls—the Salad and Sun—on which no odds have been announced. In these, Arizona and Texas Mines have done more with the football than their rivals of the day—Drake and West Virginia, in that order.

The boys who have made Northwestern a six-and-a-half-point choice over unblemished California in Pasadena's Rose Bowl didn't take too much stock in the fact that the Bears moved the ball farther both by land and air the past season than did Northwestern—and also scored more points.

California's average yardage per game was 372.6 yards compared with 287 for the Wildcats. The Bears scored 277 points to 171 for Northwestern.

A similar situation exists in the Sugar Bowl, where Oklahoma takes one of the best offensive marks in the country, only to find itself a one-and-a-half-point underdog against North Carolina.

The Sooners averaged 380.2 yards a game, 296.4 by rushing, while North Carolina's average was 303.9. Oklahoma registered 336 points for the year, their Dixie rivals 255.

Southern Methodist is a six-and-a-half-point favorite over Oregon at Dallas although the Webfoots ran and passed the ball an average of 337.9 yards a game compared with the Mustangs' 318.9. S.M.U. scored the most points, however—229 to 194.

Oklahoma A. and M. had a better season's mark than William and Mary in ground gaining and scoring but the Indians are favored in their clash at Memphis by six points.

In the Dixie Bowl at Birmingham, Baylor is rated six points better than a Wake Forest team that has average nearly 100 yards more a game and scored 215 points to 147.

Detroit Wins, Regains Lead in National Loop

NEW YORK, Dec. 27 (UP)—With the Detroit Red Wings once again the top team on the National Hockey League see-saw, everything was all set today for a showdown scrap between the Wings and the second-place Boston Bruins, Wednesday night.

While the Bruins were idle last night, Detroit leapfrogged from second into a one-point lead again by whipping the Montreal Canadiens, 3 to 1, at Detroit. Boston had taken over the lead the night before and thus was in front only 24 hours.

In a rock-em-sock-em game before 13,853 fans, goals by Leo Reise, Pete Horeck, and Bud Poile gave the victory to Detroit. Harry Lumley made 24 saves for the Wings, allowing only a goal by Maurice Hichard, while Bill Durnan made 17 stops for Montreal. Wednesday's big clash with Boston will also be at Detroit, and there will be no other action in the league until then.

In the only other game last night, the Chicago Black Hawks visited New York and beat the Rangers, 2 to 1, to keep them from climbing out of the cellar. Ex-Ranger Sugar Jim Henry excelled in the Chicago goal, making 31 saves and missing a shutout when Nick Mickoski scored with four minutes to play. Jim Conacher and Roy Conacher scored for Detroit, each time when the Rangers were shorthanded.

Ira Thomas' Wife to Be Buried Wednesday

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 27 (AP)—Funeral services will be held Wednesday for Mrs. Katherine Thomas, wife of the chief scout of the Philadelphia Athletics.

Mrs. Thomas, who was 68, died Saturday in Nazareth Hospital after an illness of 14 weeks.

Soldevilla Retains Title.

BARCELONA, Spain, Dec. 27 (AP)—Antonio Soldevilla, Spanish middleweight champion, retained his title yesterday by knocking out Jose Llorente in the third round of a championship bout.

Baltimore Woman Sets New Duckpin Record

BALTIMORE, Dec. 27 (AP)—Mrs. Elizabeth Barger of Baltimore broke the women's world duckpin record for 15 games yesterday in the Evening Sun's twenty-fourth annual bowling tournament.

Mrs. Barger rolled the afternoon's high set of five games—a 663. That gave her a 15-game total of 1986 to top the nine-year-old record of 1939 set by Ida Simmons of Norfolk, Va. Mrs. Barger scored 702 and 621 in last week's rounds.

The American Duckpin Congress is sanctioning the tournament. Record claims will be formally approved at the close of the tourney.

Sets Polo Scoring Mark.

CHICAGO, Dec. 27 (AP)—Billy Zimmerman banged in 13 goals for an International Polo League record yesterday to lead the Chicago Ramblers over the Detroit Gold Hats, 27-13. Romeo Mura scored eight goals and Tom Cross added six for Chicago. Volney Bayley and Dan Peacock led Detroit with six apiece.

GARMENT UNION PROPOSES NON-RED OATH FOR BOSSES

Executive Board Indorses Labor Bill as Substitute for Taft-Hartley Act.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Dec. 27 (AP)—A substitute for the Taft-Hartley law to make employers issue financial reports and sign non-Communist affidavits was indorsed here last night by the executive board of the International Ladies Garment Workers' Union.

"We favor the non-Communist affidavit of the Taft-Hartley law," said President David Dubinsky, "but we want it expanded to include employers as well as employes."

The labor leader, whose union claims more than 300,000 members, said the board also favored submission of financial reports and added, "we want management to submit full reports on their assets and salaries paid. It should not be a one-sided affair."

The board voted to give $250,000 to United Jewish Appeal for Palestine for rehabilitation work and to lend the agency $500,000 for six months.

EX-ST. LOUISAN KILLED WHEN RUN OVER BY TRAIN AT JOLIET

Frank Vishneau, formerly of 4302A North Twentieth street, died today in a hospital at Joliet, Ill., as the result of injuries suffered yesterday when he stumbled and fell in the path of a switch engine. Both legs were severed above the knees.

The engineer, William Nussmeyer of Joliet, said he did not see Vishneau until the engine was about 50 feet from him. Several cars passed over him.

Vishneau, a section hand employed by the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad, slipped on ice and fell as he crossed the Baltimore and Ohio tracks in Joliet, police said. He was 52 years old.

MAN DIES, 6 IN HIS FAMILY ILL AFTER HOLIDAY DINNER

Coroner's Physician Uncertain Whether Food or Monoxide Gas Was Responsible.

Otis Grace, 2728 Hereford street, died yesterday and six members of his family became ill following a Christmas dinner at the Grace home. Dr. John J. Connor, coroner's physician, was uncertain whether food poisoning or carbon monoxide poisoning was responsible.

In serious condition at Missouri Pacific Hospital were Grace's daughter, Mrs. Naomi Roberds; her husband, Carlos Roberds, and their 10-year old son, Roger. The Roberdses live at the Hereford street address.

Another daughter, Mrs. Eunice Sagez, 3935 Westminster place, and Mrs. Sagez's foster daughter, Barbara Jean Glover, 12, were in serious condition at City Hospital. Mrs. Sagez's husband, Nelson, became slightly ill yesterday but declined medical attention.

Illnesses of the Roberdses and of Mrs. Sagez and her daughter were diagnosed tentatively as food poisoning at both hospitals, but Dr. Connor reported following an autopsy on Grace's body that there was a possibility that he had died as a result of carbon monoxide poisoning.

Gas Heater Inspected.

Following discovery of indications of carbon monoxide in Grace's blood, police and Laclede Gas Co. servicemen went to the Hereford street house and found that a gas room heater there had not been installed according to company specifications.

The diameter of a pipe used as a flue was the correct four inches at the heater, but was only one inch at the point where the pipe went through an exterior wall. A Laclede serviceman said the reduction of the pipe's size would force some fumes to back up in the heater.

Roberds said he had installed the heater himself about 15 months ago, and added that it never had been inspected by a gas company representative. There was a strong odor of gas in the room, police reported.

Food to Be Analyzed.

The contents of Grace's stomach and samples of the Christmas dinner were to be analyzed to determine whether food poisoning was responsible. Samples collected by police included roast pork, gravy, cole slaw, hard candy and chocolates.

Roberds a railroad roundhouse foreman, told police he left for work about 4 p.m. Christmas day after the family had eaten dinner about 2 o'clock. He telephoned to his house a few hours later and found that the members of his family were ill, and then summoned a physician, he said. He became ill yesterday.

Grace, who was a foreman at the Blackmer & Post Pipe Co., was 76 years old. An inquest will be held Wednesday.

$16,852,309 SPENT BY RED CROSS FOR 319 U.S. DISASTERS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 (AP)—The American Red Cross spent $16,852,309 in giving aid after 619 domestic disasters in the last two years, it reported last night.

That was the greatest number of relief tasks undertaken in any comparable period in the 67-year history of the organization, said Basil O'Connor, its president.

Since it was established, O'Connor said, the Red Cross has helped in 3954 domestic disasters, in which it has spent $139,000,000.

O'Connor said the organization "now is better able than ever before to cope with catastrophe." He cited a new radio communication system as one of its disaster aids.

BRITISH ENVOY TO MOSCOW LIKELY TO RETIRE FROM POST

MOSCOW, Dec. 27 (AP) — Informed foreign sources said today that Sir Maurice Peterson, British Ambassador to the Soviet Union, probably will retire early in the new year.

This would mean two new western power envoys to the U.S.S.R., as Gen. Walter Bedell Smith generally is not expected to return from his present trip to Washington.

Peterson, who is 59 years old, was appointed Ambassador to the Soviet Union May 17, 1946.

LABOR ZIONIST DISTRICT HEAD

Israel Rosen, 750 Westgate avenue, University City, was re-elected chairman of District 7 of Farband, national Labor Zionist fraternal order, at the conclusion yesterday of the group's nine-state annual district conference at Sioux City, Ia.

Rosen is a partner in the I. Rosen real estate concern at 722 Chestnut street. Zionist projects and ways of raising funds to support Zionist activities were discussed at the conference.

Dewey Insurance Job Denied.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27 (UP)—The Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., largest firm of its kind in the country, has formally denied a recent radio report that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey will become its president in 1950. Notices were sent to each of 35,000 employes.

TRUMAN CHARGES RUSSIA BLOCKS WAY TO PEACE

not identify the letter which he dropped into a street corner box.

Truman, in a jovial mood, joked with press photographers about their gaudy sweaters and hunting caps and promised to wear one if they gave him a similar cap.

"I found an old hunting cap in the attic," he said, "but it was size seven and one fourth, and was too small since my head has grown since I've been in the White House." To make sure they knew he was joking, he added, "that's a lot of foolishness. I've always worn size seven and three eighths."

A high point in Truman's message will be recommendations on legislation substituting a new labor relations formula for the Taft-Hartley Act against which the President campaigned.

Civil Rights Laws to be Sought.

The message also will call for a whole series of civil rights laws, outlawing among other things, lynching, the poll tax as a requirement for voting and racial and religious discriminations in hiring.

Other phases will cover housing, anti-inflation, social security expansion, a broad, national health program and kindred proposals for which Truman spoke in his 31,500 miles of stumping.

Connelly and Ross returned from Washington by plane yesterday with Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, Army aide, and Brig. Gen. Robert B. Landry, Air Force aide to the President. With them was Donald Dawson, administrative assistant to the President, particularly on personnel matters.

There has been no information from the President's staff on prospective changes in the Cabinet and in other high Administrative posts. Heads will fall, but only as replacements are found.

The President ate two Christmas dinners over the weekend. He had his turkey Christmas day at his home on Deleware street with Mrs. Truman, his daughter Margaret and the Wallaces, Mrs. Truman's folks.

Yesterday the three of them drove to nearby Grandview, Mo., to share another turkey dinner with his kin, J. Vivian Truman, his brother, and Miss Mary Jane Truman, his sister, and Vivian's children and grandchildren.

"Greatest Salesman."

Truman was termed the "world's greatest salesman" in a letter signed by John D. Hilburn, president of the Advertising & Sales Executives club of Kansas City, which presented the chief executive with a lifetime membership card.

"The fact that you made a 'sale' almost singlehanded against what many people considered overwhelming odds makes your performance even more remarkable," the letter said.

$800,000 Loan for Missouri Co-op.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 (AP)—The Rural Electrification Administration has announced an $800,000 loan to the Three Rivers Electric Co-operative, Linn, Mo., for extension of service to rural areas.

4 EAST SIDE TAVERN OWNERS ARRESTED IN VICE RAIDS FINED

Operators of four taverns on United States highway 40 near the Fairmount race track pleaded guilty today to informations charging them with keeping a disorderly house and paid fines of $100 each in Madison county court at Edwardsville.

The defendants, arrested in a series of vice raids Dec. 18, were George Halstead, operator of Halstead's Tavern; Tom York, operator of Pla-Mor Inn; Louis Giovando, operator of Club Lu-Jo, and Bert Miller, operator of Club 40.

Twenty-one women arrested in the raids were fined $50 each when they pleaded guilty last week of being inmates of a house of ill fame.

BUSINESS OUTLOOK

1949 to See Minor Readjustment Only in U.S. Economic Status, Poll of 34 Authorities Indicates

Drop From 194 to 192 Points in Federal Reserve Board Index of Industrial Production Held Likely by June—'Relative Stability' Predicted by 59 Per Cent.

By J. A. LIVINGSTON

IT'S too soon yet to fret. If 34 high-ranking American economists who answered my questionnaire* read their crystal balls truly, we're headed into a year of minor readjustment—nothing more, nothing less.

That forecast goes, notwithstanding recent layoffs, "slow" pre-Christmas sales, tendencies to stop new plant expansion, and worries about higher taxes. As the economists see it, by June the Federal Reserve Board index of industrial production will be down only 2 points—from 194 to 192. By the end of December, the index will slip a trifle further—to 189. That's tantamount to saying that the current high rate of industrial activity will persist throughout the year, that the plateau will continue.

Greater Conformity.

But the economy as a whole will be looser. As workingmen become more accustomed to their postwar jobs and as more and more plants use postwar machinery, efficiency will pick up. Less manpower may be needed; also less raw materials (as waste diminishes). Thus, in 1949, it will be possible to have production on a plateau while the economy gains much-wanted elbow room.

Economists seem to be less pessimistic and more like-minded. A year ago, a third predicted a recession or worse, as against 15 per cent today. Similarly, a year ago 39 per cent expected the status quo to continue. Today that proportion is up to 59 per cent. Here's the story:

Forecast	Yr.Ago	Today
Recession (decline of 10 pct. or more)	33 pct.	15 pct.
Minor drop (5 pct. to 10 pct.)	28 pct.	26 pct.

Either economists have more confidence in business stability or less confidence in their own capacity to sniff change. They remember the error after the stock market crash of September 1946. Prior to the break, economists were unanimously bullish. After the break, they were almost as unanimously bearish. They reasoned that the drop in stock prices augured a recession a la 1920-21. When the recession failed to come, they began to feel that maybe postwar history would not repeat.

Labor economists are most "bullish." They expect both production and prices to go up from here on out. On the other hand, investment economists are most "bearish." They expect production and prices to go down. A psychiatrist might explain this in this fashion: Labor economists are afraid of higher prices because they squeeze workers. Investment economists are afraid of lower prices because they produce declining stock prices. So, maybe in their forecasts, labor and investment economists are projecting their fears.

This is what the year ahead looks like to the economists—item by item. Total value of goods and services will go down from the recent level of 256 billion dollars to 246 billion. That's partly because physical production will dip slightly, partly because prices will be off a bit. The consensus figures that the wholesale price index, now around 165, will register 157 this time next year. The cost of living, now 172, will go to 168.

Automobile production will remain stable throughout the year. Unemployment is expected to rise from 1,800,000 to 2,500,000—hardly an alarming amount in an economy of 60,000,000 employed. Department store sales will slide 8% — this because slightly less merchandise will be sold and at lower prices. The Dow-Jones industrial average is in for another year of stagnation. Now around 175, it's expected to wind up the year at 173. Two blue chip stocks—U. S. Steel and General Motors—will move along with the average. They'll get nowhere, too.

Interest rates will rise slightly. So will federal spending. Presumably the economists feel that further tension with Russia will mar 1949, that increased appropriations for armament will be ordered. Result: The Treasury's cash surplus is expected to drop from $8.6 billions to $1.6. Consumer credit—no doubt because of increased sales of autos—is due to go up slightly. Exports will remain more or less stable, and so will residential building. Apparently, the forecasters don't think home-buyers have been priced out of the market.

Farm Outlook.

As for the farmer, he's in for "readjustment," too. The index of prices of what he sells is expected to drop from 271 to 250, or nearly 10%. One estimate goes as low as 200. But with crops as large as they're expected to be, earning and buying power of farmers will still be high by prewar standards.

So, all in all, the outlook for '49—as the consensus has it—is more plateau. An extension of '48.

Polls' Errors Laid to Takers' Poor Judgment

Canvassers Thought Methods Were More Accurate Than They Were.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27 (AP).

POLL TAKERS who failed to foretell the outcome of the recent presidential election "acted in good faith but showed poor judgment," a Social Science Research Council committee says.

The committee's report, released yesterday, said a study disclosed that the forecasters "could have seen the possibility of a close contest had they looked more closely at their data and past errors."

The council is a privately maintained organization which reports on social and economic matters.

Expressing doubt that election predictions can be consistently accurate "in the present state of knowledge," the report added.

"In interpreting the results of the pre-election polls and presenting them to the public the pollsters went far beyond the bounds of sound reporting. . . . They attempted the spectacular feat of predicting the winner without qualification."

List of Errors.

The committee said its survey showed these errors on the part of the pollsters:

"Errors of sampling and interviewing.

"Errors of forecasting, involving failure to assess the future behavior of undecided voters and to detect shifts of voting intention near the end of the campaign."

The pollsters, the committee said, were led by "false assumptions into believing their methods were much more accurate than in fact they are. The election was close. Dewey could have won by carrying Ohio, California and Illinois, which he lost by less than 1 per cent of the vote.

"In such a close election no polls, no advance information of any kind, could have predicted a Truman or Dewey victory with confidence. The failure of the polls was due to neglecting the possibility of a close election and the necessity of measuring preferences very accurately just before the election to determine whether a flat forecast could be made with confidence."

The committee, headed by Prof. Samuel S. Wilks of Princeton, said, however, that failure to predict election results should not be taken to measure the usefulness of such polls "in fields in which the response does not involve the expression of opinion or intention to act."

WARREN AUSTIN HAS NO INTENTION OF QUITTING U.N.

KEY WEST, Fla., Dec. 27 (AP)—Warren Austin said yesterday he had no intention of resigning as head of the United States delegation to the United Nations.

Austin arrived at the "Little White House" here a week ago from Paris to rest and recuperate from an unspecified illness. His reply to a question about the possibility of resigning was an explosive "No!"

"The work to which I consecrated myself on resigning from the United States Senate is only in its beginning," Austin said.

"With the help of God and skillful surgeons and physicians the wonderfully generous hospitality of the naval station and hospital I expect not only restoration but an increase of my strength for the cause."

Mr. and Mrs. Austin are staying in the same house used by President Truman on several Key West vacations.

NICARAGUA'S SOMOZA WARNS COSTA RICA ON BORDER FIGHTS

MANAGUA, Dec. 27 (AP)—Gen. Anastasio Somoza, strong man of Nicaragua, gave warning today his country will defend its territory if border clashes occur with Costa Rican troops.

Costa Rican forces are operating near the border against a group which, Costa Rica charges, invaded the country from Nicaragua in an effort to overthrow Jose Figueres, head of the Government junta.

Britain's Coldest Day This Year.

LONDON, Dec. 27 (AP)—Britain had its coldest day of the year today. Temperatures sank to 28 in London and to 18 at Mildenhall, northeast of London. Two hurdle race meetings were postponed because of the frozen ground. Several rugby and soccer games were called off.

CIO and British Trade Union Group To Plan World Labor Federation

Conference in London Next Month to Consider Ways to Counteract Soviet Opposition to European Aid Program.

By HAROLD W. WARD

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 (AP).

THE CIO and British trade union group, spurred by the Soviet fight against recovery plans for western Europe, will meet next month in London to discuss a new World Labor Federation.

The British and the CIO were charter members, along with the Russian Trade Union Organization, in forming the World Federation of Trade Unions (WFTU). Policies of the WFTU have been disrupted by the clash between the Soviet and Western nations, however.

The AFL, up to now unwilling to take part in any world group along with its American rival, CIO, is watching the development with interest.

Shift in AFL Opinion.

There has been a marked shift in opinion among the AFL leaders in the past year which might lead to joint participation of the two big United States federations—if the circumstances suit:

The AFL has invited the same British trade union chiefs to Miami for a conference beginning Jan. 31. The AFL's 15-member executive council gathers there at that time.

Both the AFL and CIO moves were dictated by their recent convention. The steps are significant and come at a time when the role of labor unions in world diplomacy is on the upswing. Some Americans, like Eric Johnston, former head of United States Chamber of Commerce, have recommended appointments of some outstanding labor leaders as United States diplomatic representatives.

The top two United States Marshall plan representatives, W. Averell Harriman and Paul Hoffman, both have praised the part played by the AFL and CIO in supplementing their work among the trade unionists of Western Europe.

The CIO is sending four leaders to the British conference.

They are CIO Secretary-Treasurer James B. Carey, President Walter Reuther of the United Auto Workers, President L. S. Buckmaster of the Rubber Workers, and Secretary-Treasurer David J. McDonald of the Steelworkers.

The four will sail from New York on Jan. 8 and will be joined in London by Elmer Cope, the CIO member of the WFTU staff in Paris.

The CIO said in a formal announcement yesterday that the London conference is expected "to discuss the future policies of leading non-Communist labor movements, which in recent months have voiced increasing displeasure over the conduct of WFTU affairs."

The delegation will report to the CIO executive board when it meets in Washington Jan. 26. The break with the Communists and their left-wing sympathizers inside the CIO was sharply defined at the Portland convention last month by CIO President Philip Murray.

The CIO announcement of the London meeting conceded that "sharp differences between Communists and non-Communists labor groups in the WFTU arose over the question of attitude towards the European recovery program."

The CIO said that as a result of proposals by its representatives and other non-Communist labor groups at WFTU meeting in Rome last spring, "decisions were reached which prevented the WFTU from being used as a sounding board for anti-European recovery propaganda."

"Since that time, however, there has been no successful compromise obtained to achieve a working program for the WFTU which would serve the trade union interests of its nearly 70,000,000 members," the CIO said.

The CIO convention authorized its officers and executive board to consult with the British and other free trade union groups, and to "take whatever action in relation to the WFTU and the International Labor Movement will then accomplish CIO policies and objectives."

Berlin Air Lift Is Giving U.S. Safety Lessons

By RADFORD MOBLEY

The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch. Copyright, 1948.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27—

THE Berlin air lift is teaching us lessons that may help save lives at home. It is also proving that some of the oldest air safety devices are still among the best.

The chief problem of commercial aviation in America is to find means of flying in all kinds of weather. The Berlin air lift is a concentrated job of getting this know-how. The Air Force is trying almost everything that can help safe flying. The result is that we are telescoping a lot of information into a few frantic months.

Aligned Approach Lights.

One of the best means to combat snow, sleet and fog is to have a system of aligned approach lights. That was known in the days of cow pasture airports. Now this system is revived, with modern trimmings, for top airports of the world. It is presently called the system of slope line approach lights, with intensity lighting, and within a few years should be standard equipment for United States airports.

The lighted sentinels are graduated from an approved height down to ground level for those last few precious yards which a pilot must frequently handle in the old-fashioned way. Intensity lighting and radar guidance keep the pilot from hitting the markers.

The Civil Aeronautics Administration is striving for all-weather procedure to bring the pilot home at any time. Present plans, if Congress provides the money, is to have a five-year program for making flying comparatively safe at any time. The cost is going to be large. It may reach $350,000,000 before completion. The expense will be shared by federal and local governments, the airlines and private airport projects.

Unreliability of flight schedules costs airlines $20,000,000 a year. Airport owners have an investment running into billions of dollars, and for 15 per cent of the time their air strips are now closed because of the weather. National defense wants to keep all airports open all the time.

List of Projects.

Here are the projects being worked on and being tested in Berlin:

1. Static-free radio. At home this will require a new airways network on a band set aside for the specific purpose of route directing. No bothersome ear phones.

2. Use of radar. Watch the dial. Distance measuring and course line. An instrument is

Low Morale Threatens Efficiency Of U.S. Air Force Repair Base in England for Berlin Air Lift Planes

Men Live in Cold Quonset Huts, Have No Recreation Center or Newspaper, and Medical Facilities Are So Poor the Seriously Ill Must Be Flown to Hospitals in Germany.

BURTONWOOD, England.

NOTWITHSTANDING a Christmas that was, on the whole, satisfactory, there is still a serious morale problem at this United States Air Force repair base. Unless morale improves, the work productivity of the 3000 American officers and men kept here to service B-29s and cargo-carrying C-54s from the Berlin air lift will be impaired, in the opinion of responsible officers.

You hear a great variety of complaints from both officers and enlisted men from the moment you step onto the base.

"The only thing that keeps morale up at all is we can have all the dates we want," is a remark you hear frequently. The boys say that the girls are so plentiful when they go into Warrington, five miles away, or Manchester, 20 miles, that "we have to beat them off with a stick."

The enlisted men have a legitimate gripe about their quarters. A three-star Pentagon general who inspected the base recently exclaimed, "Why, the men are living under wartime conditions." And so they are. There is allegedly a peace on, but enlisted men's quarters are the temporary improvisations of wartime.

Cold Quonset Huts.

The men are living in quonset huts—10 and 11 to a hut—with cold cement floors and tiny coal-burning stoves. The fire goes out during the night and the men get up at dawn in an ice-cold room. Many of the men have colds. I talked to one man so hoarse he could hardly talk.

Extra blankets were issued, but some of the men complained there were vermin on them—and they hadn't been cleaned since the war."

The lights in the huts are so dim it is impossible to read or write by them.

The community wash rooms are dirty and cold and their cement floors damp. The men say it is rare to have hot water in the shower baths. One told me that he took his baths at a friend's house in Warrington.

Burtonwood is one big pigpen, with mud puddles everywhere. The roads and paths that wind through this sprawled-out base are allegedly hard-surfaced, but you can't walk far in any direction without going in over your ankles.

This means an extra laundry and dry cleaning problem, not to mention the extra labor of polishing your shoes. Dry cleaning, incidentally, costs $1.40 a uniform.

Officers Handicapped.

Bringing the boys home is not the answer. We have to keep them here as part of our defense program in a world menaced by Russian aggression. The answer is to fix up the base.

The officers in charge are trying to do that, but they are handicapped, as armed forces always are in peacetime, by a money shortage. They are handicapped by a shortage of materials. They are handicapped by slow-contractors. Finally, they are handicapped by policy uncertainties.

One general says, "If we spend too much money fixing up Burtonwood and then pull out and leave it within a few months, we'll be criticized for wasting the taxpayers' money." He says they are going to take a chance and fix up the living quarters. Huts will be painted, concrete floors will be covered with linoleum, larger stoves will be put in, loads of gravel will fill up the mud holes, but the boys are skeptical about how soon all this will happen.

There is an officers' club on the base, and one for non-coms, but none for enlisted men. Col. Russel Scott, the base commanding officer, blames slow private contractors. They were hired to fix up a building for an enlisted men's club, he said, and this project was given priority over everything else. But they still are working on it.

Present as Guests.

It is more difficult to get things done now than it was in wartime, since we are here only as guests, at the invitation of Britain. We cannot just issue an order. Some things are accomplished only after considerable diplomatic negotiating.

Maj. Gen. Leon W. Johnson, commanding our Third Air Division here, had to negotiate the right to put American mail, carrying American stamps, on British trains for dispatch to our bases a couple of hundred miles from London following arrival in London by plane. The British could have insisted on our putting British stamps on the letters to carry them this last 200 miles.

Slow mail, incidentally, is a universal gripe. Many boys are correcting this situation by using the open British and American mails

Jap Premier Unbothered by Reds in China

Feels They Are First of All Chinese, Hints U. S. Can Win Them Over.

By KEYES BEECH

The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch Special Radio, Copyright, 1948.

TOKYO, Japan, Dec. 27.

PRIME MINISTER SHIGERU YOSHIDA doesn't think it will make much difference to Japan if the Communists do take over the Government of China. He thinks Chinese Communists are first of all Chinese.

Yoshida, conservative, oldtime diplomat and politically the strongest man in Japan today, is of the opinion that it is unnecessary for Japan to be drawn into the Communist orbit even if China does go in that direction.

"There will still be trade between China and Japan whether it's legal or smuggled," he declares.

Yoshida is convinced, however, there must be stability in China and that "the United States must continue to help the Chinese people regardless of whether the Communists are in power," because Russia won't be able to help, he says, implying that the United States can woo the Chinese Communists away from Russia.

The Prime Minister made these statements as the Japanese Diet (Parliament) prepares to dissolve in preparation for a test of strength in the general elections of Jan. 23. It was at the demand of Yoshida himself that the Diet voted non-confidence in the Coalition Cabinet. The Prime Minister's hope is that the election will give his party a clearcut majority, thus paving the way for the enactment of his program.

Yoshida's prediction is that the Reds will gain strength in the Lower House—an opinion shared by Allied observers.

Jap Communists are more dangerous than Chinese because they are "fanatics," the Prime Minister says.

It is generally felt here that Communist gains in the Diet are unlikely to be significant, however. They are expected to be mostly at the expense of the left-wing Socialists who need only a push to become Communists, anyway. The Reds now hold four seats in the House out of a total of 466.

Here's how . . . to have "New Look" furniture

These MORRIS Products and Many Others Are Here to Help You Do a Very Fine Job

There are scores of furniture pieces you may finish at home and enjoy every minute of the work. Both men and women get wonderful results for the task is neither difficult or laborious.

You get more delightful results from your efforts than from most hobbies . . . more fun. The most important phases to finishing furniture are (1) To have the right finishes, (2) apply them according to a few very simple rules.

If you are going to ENAMEL new furniture, first sandpaper and then use Morris undercoater. When dry, use fine sandpaper, wipe off dust carefully and apply finish coat.

If you are refinishing old furniture, remove old finish with Liquid Dynamite Remover.

To stain and varnish furniture, sand unfinished wood, stain with Morris oil stain in desired color, then shellac, and either wax, or varnish it with Speed Spar.

If the wood grain is "open" as in oak, elm, mahogany or walnut, the surface should be filled unless an open-grain finish is desired. Often an open-grain finish is desired in which case this is unnecessary.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

What Fruits?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch has long had an enviable reputation as one of the handful of papers in the world which maintain a relatively unbiased, unprejudiced point of view. Your paper also has the reputation of delving below surface indications on all subjects of public import, and editorializing on the real facts. Therefore it was with considerable disappointment that I read your editorial of Dec. 7 entitled "First Fruits."

You make, or imply, three points: (1) that President Truman received an election mandate to bring about compulsory health insurance; (2) that the program is a solution to all our medical ills; and, (3) that the American Medical Association is guilty of great wrong in having a different viewpoint.

May I remind you that your paper, in other issues, has echoed the thoughts of other informed individuals in raising a serious question whether President Truman received a mandate on any subject, and if so, what subject, and to what extent. With less than one-half of the nation's popular vote, and with much of that portion of the vote apparently based on many, and often conflicting, promises to different classes of the electorate, President Truman's mandates are certainly not clear as yet, and most especially not on the subject of compulsory health insurance.

It seems self-evident that sparsely-settled and poor areas will still be without adequate service, since, human nature being what it is, doctors will continue to practice in areas where they will get the most monetary return for their time and effort. Hospital and nursing facilities will continue to be reasonably adequate in the better urban areas, and inadequate elsewhere.

If compulsory health insurance is put through by this Congress, medical service will be put on a par with "sick call" in the Army. We millions who experienced that know what a completely uninspired, lackadaisical medical service this was.

The A.M.A., true, is reaping poor public relations by reason of its resolve to raise a fund with which to fight compulsory health insurance. It must be admired for its stand, however, in recognizing and fighting this gigantic boondoggle. Acceptance of the program would, in a sense, establish a sinecure for every physician now practicing, for the rest of his lifetime. A.M.A.'s rejection of the program shows real moral courage.

Expenses in Turkey

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

As one who has recently spent several weeks in Turkey, I would like to echo the sentiments expressed in the editorial of Dec. 16 on the $13.50 cost of living bonus given the 275 American Army personnel in Turkey. This allowance, converted at the legal rate of exchange, amounts to 37.50 Turkish lira per day. The Park Hotel in Ankara, where most Americans can be found while staying in the capital city, charges 6.50 lira per night (reduced rates for permanent guests). Ankara's most luxurious restaurant, just across the street from the Park, provides a full course dinner complete with bottled water, wines, and service for less than 5.00 lira. Assuming that the voracious American appetite requires three such meals a day, the total maximum cost of living would be 21.50 lira a day, or 16.50 lira ($5.90) less than is allowed.

In Yugoslavia, on the other hand, where the disadvantageous fixed rate of exchange compels members of the embassy and legation staffs there to expend about $20 a day for reasonable hotel living, our personnel are having a difficult time making ends meet.

If our goodwill is to be maintained on the basis of dollar diplomacy, we are following the right channels for immediate success and ultimate collapse. If our goal is not to leave a string of "half-Americans," envy, and worship of the "Goddess—Success" in the rest of the world, let the Hoover Commission look further than the United States Post Office in its attempts to economize on Government expenditures.

TEDFORD LEWIS.

For a Non-New-Deal Party

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

All true liberals of both major parties, and independents south and north, east and west who oppose this New Deal foreignism course for us should now, regardless of past ties, and to preserve this republic, join forces, either to "capture" the Republican party, or to be more practical and effective, abandon that party entirely and join the Jeffersonian wing of the Democratic party.

With the Republican or "Me too" party largely abandoned, the two mentioned groups of the Democratic party would then constitute a real opposition or two-party system.

WILLIAM R. SCHNEIDER.

Killer and Waster

If the carnage at railroad crossings is as great in 1948 as it was in a recent year for which statistics are available, it will show a toll something like this:

6000 accidents in the United States.
4500 accidents involving autos and trucks.
2000 people killed.
5000 more people injured.

St. Louis always makes its contribution to this tragic toll of needlessly wasted lives. Last week it was a 60-year-old father whose life was snuffed out when a jeep he was driving was demolished by a Missouri Pacific train at Sulphur avenue. Five years ago, 11 people died as a result of the collision between a Public Service Co. bus and a Wabash train at Etzel avenue.

There is only one way to make grade crossings safe and that is to do away with them. Obviously, all 227,500—that is one estimate of the number in the United States—cannot be eliminated overnight. But the worst can be removed by grade separations in a reasonable length of time. In a 10-year span from 1934 to 1944, about 20,000 crossings were eliminated and some 10,000 new ones were created, for a net reduction of 10,000.

* * *

Railroads have as much of a stake in cutting down these accidents at crossings as have the cities and other governmental jurisdictions, which seek to protect their citizens. A frequent result of a grade crossing accident is that a piece of the wrecked automobile or truck causes a derailment. A derailment always means loss of time to the train—for which the railroad must pay. Not infrequently, trainmen are injured, all too often, fatally.

Such an accident in Georgia comes to mind. The brakes on a model T failed. Its farmer driver in panic piloted his vehicle into the fifty-third car of a freight train. The impact was great enough to overturn a tank car onto the track beyond, where it fell in front of a fast-approaching passenger train. In a matter of seconds this one grade crossing ran up a property damage bill into many thousands of dollars for repairs to railroad equipment and right of way.

As we pointed out last week, the crossing gate is no solution. In New Orleans one crossing gate was broken down 71 times in a year. Neither is the crossing watchman protection enough. Every year crossing watchmen are killed. Automatic lights help, but neither do they guarantee safety. Cars have been demolished and occupants killed because a train on a siding appeared to be working the warning signal whereas the approach of a fast train was hidden by the waiting train.

What the modern city should do is what New York is doing—get rid of the grade crossing as fast as possible. Robert Moses, New York City Construction Co-ordinator, reported to Mayor O'Dwyer a few days ago that there soon will be no more grade crossings in New York City as a result of a $50,000,000 program started more than 25 years ago. The period of greatest progress was between 1938 and 1944. By the latter year 78 of 115 scheduled eliminations had been achieved within New York. Plans are under way for the completion of two major projects involving 32 crossings. Said Mr. Moses:

> In rendering this report, I am happy to advise that we shall soon have no more railroad grade crossings within the city and that the hazard, inconvenience, as well as waste which they caused, will be a memory and before long will be entirely forgotten.

Indianapolis, which has railroads entering from almost every point of the compass, is another city that is eliminating these death traps. The war had not yet ended when the Indiana capital launched a $6,000,000 program with some nine major projects. The first to be completed found the city, county and railroad producing a four-lane separation on a 40-40-20 basis. Los Angeles is still another city where every year shows progress in this elementary safety measure.

A time of shortages and high materials and labor costs is not the time to try to get rid of all the grade crossings in St. Louis. But it is an excellent time in which to make plans. The City Hall apparently does not even know exactly how many such crossings there are inside the city limits. The estimates run all the way from 190 to "more than 400."

The city should find out, determine which are the most dangerous and organize an elimination program. Then St. Louis will be ready with a sound public works project for the future—a program which could be launched with a reasonable number of eliminations for the months ahead.

The grade crossing kills men, women and children. It destroys property which is difficult and costly to replace. It wastes time. Does anyone ask for more indictments?

Lumber is slumping, according to news reports. And according to many a purchaser of new houses, it can't be as bad as buckling.

For the CIO and the AFL

Realizing the important role which labor was destined to play in the postwar world, the World Federation of Trade Unions was formed in Oakland at the same time that the United Nations charter was written in San Francisco. The basic motivations of the WFTU and the UN were identical, and both organizations soon ran into the same trouble: Russian obstructionism.

The representatives of Soviet labor organizations have been even more successful in crippling the WFTU than the Soviet diplomats have been in hamstringing the UN. British and American trade unionists finally have decided that it is hopeless to try to work in the WFTU framework. They have refused, however, to give up the idea that international labor co-operation can make a contribution to world reconstruction. So representatives of the CIO and the British Trades Union Congress are to meet in London next month to discuss the formation a new world labor federation.

There is hope that the AFL, too, will join in the movement. It was pettiness rather than statesmanship that kept the AFL out of the WFTU just because the CIO had been invited to the Oakland sessions. The two American federations are no longer the jealous rivals they were a dozen years ago. Their officers recognize that they have many common interests. Surely, they have a common obligation to work for peace and prosperity on the international level.

The whole American labor movement—and not just half of it—should be in the fight to keep unions free and democratic under free and democratic governments everywhere. No internal differences are allowed to weaken the Communist effort in the opposite direction.

Long ago, the State Department indicated how much labor statesmen can do for better understanding between nations. It is hard to think of anything which would afford greater opportunities for such efforts than the contemplated successor to the WFTU. It calls for intelligent, united American participation from the start.

The Dutch Test the UN

In ordering the Dutch to cease fire in Indonesia, to withdraw their troops to the old truce lines, and to release native leaders, the United Nations Security Council has done a bold thing. It has staked its prestige for righteousness' sake. In a world divided between East and West, the Russians have shown scant respect for the UN; what if a Western power—and a small one at that—now should continue to defy the world organization?

So far, they have not obeyed the cease fire order. Their troops have taken the principal Indonesian cities, and it has been announced at The Hague that the Netherlands' position on the UN command will not be disclosed until Friday. What sort of rationalizing will the Dutch resort to then?

The Security Council order is well-founded. Last January the Dutch Minister of Overseas Territories, Jan Jonkman, stood up in the States General, the parliament in The Hague, to say that no matter what might happen in the future in Java, the Dutch would not resort to arms unless authorized to do so by the UN. The breach of this promise in itself justifies the council's command.

But there is the further testimony of the UN's committee in Indonesia. This contradicts the Dutch claim that force had to be used because the Indonesian republicans were concentrating threatening forces. The committee said that it was "not aware of any circumstance connected with the concentration of republican forces or maneuvers of the republican army which should have given rise to apprehension and alarm leading to precipitate action on the part of The Netherlands."

Disagreeing further with the Dutch excuse, the committee said that "not only have the possibilities of negotiations under the auspices of the committee not been exhausted, but they have not been adequately explored."

The conduct of the Indonesians may not have been exemplary in every respect, but the plain fact is that stubbornness in The Hague broke the so-called Renville agreement which provided for a truce under which the UN Good Offices Committee sought to bring the adversaries together in a permanent accord. The men of The Hague would not listen even to such a Dutch representative as Van Mook. To them, the Indonesians are a lesser breed beyond the pale, a breed which should accept what the white man is pleased to grant—and to ask for no more.

Is this not a strange contradiction of the spirit which led to the rise of the Dutch Republic? Have the men of The Hague forgotten their own history?

Have they also forgotten their country's current economic plight? Already the United States has impounded funds allotted for Indonesian recovery. Funds to be used for the same purpose in The Netherlands also may be held up.

Will the Dutch continue to ignore the UN order? Will they risk the unity of the West and the prestige of the UN? Or will they correct a grave error of statesmanship as gracefully and as quickly as possible?

A Wild Idea From Texas

Strange reasons have been brought forward by the tidelands oil grabbers, but Representative Gossett of Texas now comes along with the wildest of them all. Says he:

> The Federal Government raid upon the tidelands is a big step toward national socialism and a severe blow to states' rights generally. The next step to be taken by those who fathered the tidelands controversy will doubtless be to take over and nationalize the entire oil industry.

It will doubtless be nothing of the kind, and the idea is so fanciful that it is impossible to take seriously. We doubt that Mr. Gossett will find anyone so unrealistic as to believe that there is any prospect whatever of nationalizing the oil industry in the United States.

The private oil industry is in no danger of socialism. It is in danger, like all the rest of the country, of subjugation to another country if this nation should squander the natural resources required for its self-defense. One of the foremost of those resources is oil.

In bringing suit against Louisiana and Texas to establish its paramount right to tidelands oil, the Federal Government seeks to conserve and utilize that resource for national defense. Its course is for the benefit of the private oil companies, although they are too short-sighted to see it.

The extravagance of such arguments as Representative Gossett's shows how hard pressed the tidelands grabbers are to find any plausible argument in support of their claims.

Lester Cole Wins

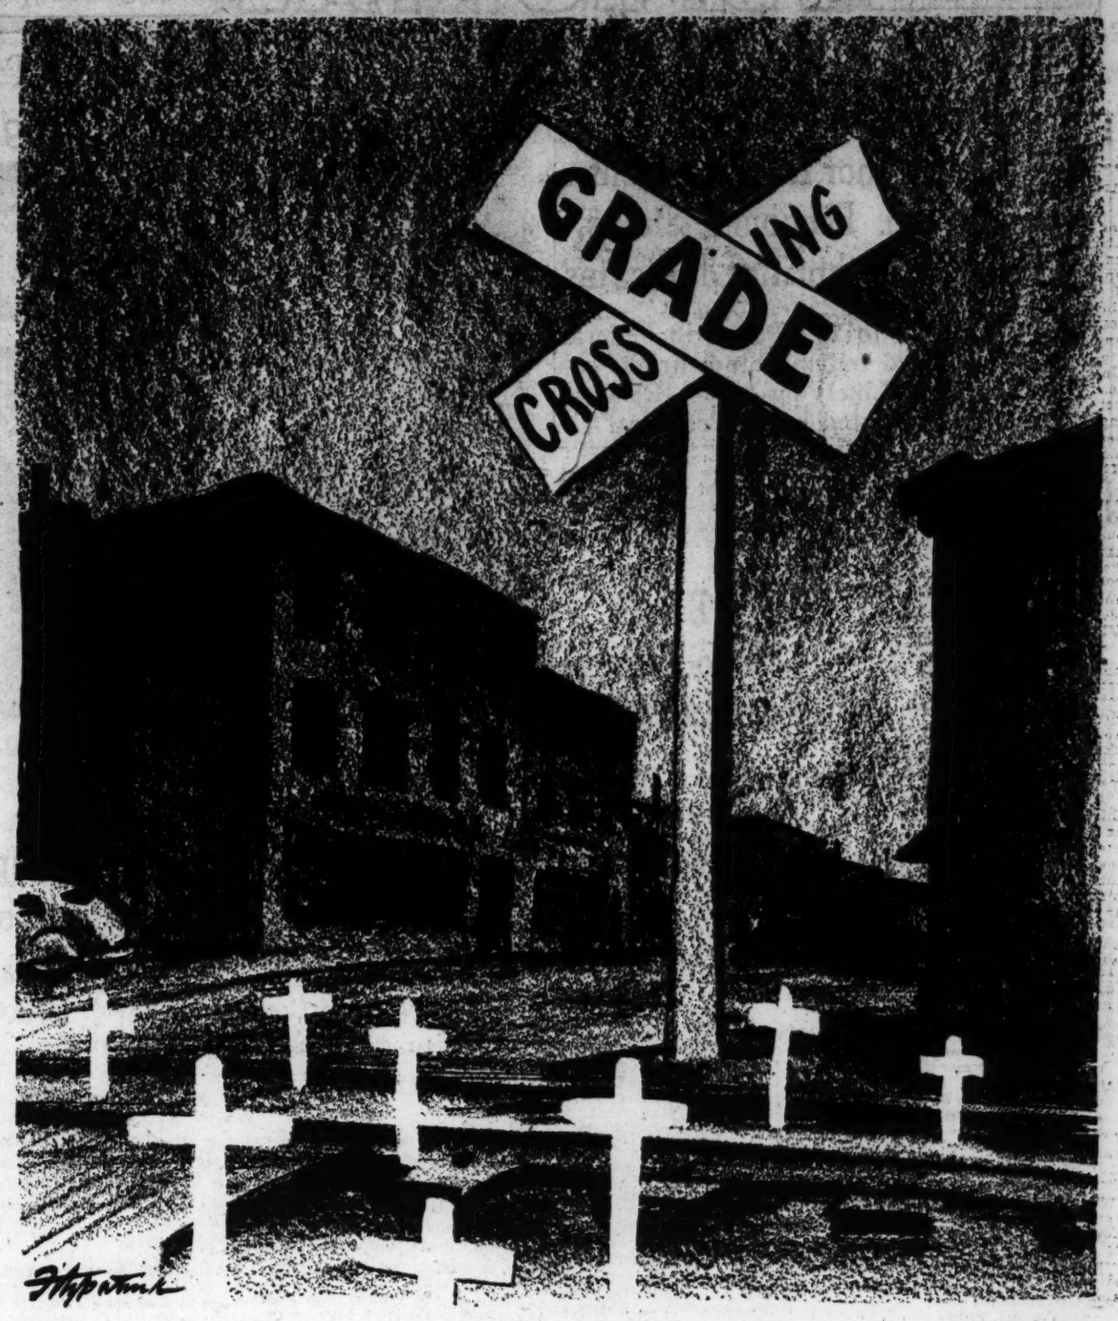
Lester Cole, one of the 10 Hollywood writers suspected of being a Communist by the House Un-American Activities Committee, has won his job back. Cole's successful suit was decided on the simple ground that he had a contract with the movie company and had done nothing to violate it. Not at issue in the case were his political views.

Like the other nine men, Cole refused to answer the question, "Are you a Communist?" He stood upon his constitutional rights. The question remains unanswered, but even if it had been answered in the affirmative, Cole would have been guilty of no crime. It is not unlawful in the Unites States to be a Communist, and the Republican candidate for President, in his Oregon debate with Harold Stassen, argued against making it unlawful.

The rumpus over Communism in Hollywood had as its objective the preservation of the films from the propagation of Communist ideas. It was not shown conclusively, however, that there had been any real infiltration. Of course, during the war, there were some films friendly to Moscow. The most noted of these, however, "Mission to Moscow," was based upon the book by former Ambassador Davies, a man of great wealth who could hardly be called a Marxist.

Presumably Mr. Cole's victory in court will be followed by the reinstatement of the other nine. If so, the Republic, we are bound to feel, will be in no mortal danger. Red propaganda is easy to spot and the higher-ups in the movie industry ought to be vigilant enough and intelligent enough to keep it out of the films. Meantime, let it be said to the point of being tiresome that the United States need not fight Communism by using Communistic methods itself.

Well, it certainly has been a wonderful year for subjects to make New Year's resolutions about.



HOW MUCH LONGER?

The Mirror of Public Opinion

The Communists have tried to make their sector the show place of the Eastern zone, says a correspondent; but it presents a sharp contrast of luxury and misery; Russians and their political accomplices fare rather well, but others see the airlift and sigh.

From the Manchester Guardian

It is easy to forget that the three blockaded Western sectors of Berlin represent in fact only two thirds of the population of the city and barely one half of its area. The three Western sectors are layered from north to south—French, British and American.

The Soviet sector covers the whole of eastern Berlin and is nearly double the size of any other one sector. Since it has always been supplied by its Soviet occupying power, it is not under blockade.

There has, indeed, been a definite effort to make it the "show-piece" of the Soviet zone. This is in keeping with Russian propaganda in favor of Berlin's becoming the capital of the zone which surrounds it; perhaps, finally, the capital of a united Communistic Germany.

What distinguishes the Soviet sector from its counterparts in the west of the city? First, it is an "East End," and has most of the characteristics of one. Its crowds are more picturesque than those of western Berlin. There is the occasional Negro or Chinese—ordinary enough in Soho but somehow surprising in Berlin. There are semi-legal "exchange marts" along the pavements and shops which deal openly in Russian "export" cigarettes, manufactured with the express purpose of driving American tobacco off the market. The ruins have not been tidily cleared up; rubble sprawls over the pavements and blocks whole streets.

Caviar, Red and Black

After dark — although there is street lighting here and not in western Berlin—the streets are empty. They are unsafe, and Treptow park is the most frequent scene of robbery, rape and assault in the city. Luxury lives cheek by jowl with the direst poverty.

Close by the Opera House is a Russian run Intourist hotel catering for foreigners and accepting only certain foreign exchanges in payment. There are 79 items on the menu, including red and black caviar and a wide selection of Russian dishes. There is a long wine list and excellent cheap vodka, a manager who scrutinizes every guest, and a band which can, if pressed, play "Tipperary" but prefers Russian folk-songs and Hungarian dances.

At Karlshorst a great area of the town has been wired off to make a Russian settlement which includes the military and administrative headquarters of the sector. All people entering must carry a pass signed by the Soviet Commandant, but the sightseer can get a glimpse by traveling on the public tram, which passes directly through without stopping. Russian troops and families live mainly in separate compounds wired off from the German population.

Food of Low Quality

For the last two months the Soviet-licensed press has been filled with stories of the special effort to supply Berlin from the Soviet sector. There have been pictures of Polish coal, Czech butter, Danish eggs and Russian wheat.

The coal tells a part of the fuel story in the Soviet zone. This winter eastern Berliners will get a fair ration of coal—a family of four, for instance, will receive nine hundredweight in place of a prewar average of 40. They will do better for firewood than their Western-sector neighbors — in spite of the cutting down of the Grunewald. But lack of hard coal is having its effect on Berlin's heavy industry and the production of machinery, which was once her most paying export.

In the Soviet sector the food is less plentiful and of worse quality than in western Berlin. There is one exception, potatoes—for the inhabitants of western Berlin must eat the dried potatoes which are flown in on the airlift, and they lose heavily in the bulk they badly need.

The Westerners often see real coffee, cocoa and tea; the Easterners only acorn coffee. Westerners, again, are putting great hopes in Gen. Clay's promise of "special issues." The Easterner gets no special foods and exists on a bleakly dull diet. A specimen day's feeding is: breakfast, dry bread and ersatz coffee; lunch, potatoes, gravy and ersatz pea meal; supper, cereal soup. Only quantity is in any sense adequate. The total ration is now actually higher in the Western sectors by about a hundred calories a day.

Food distribution in the Soviet sector is notoriously unequal. Soviet-owned firms, the Sowietische Aktien Gesellschaften, give free so-called "Sokolovsky lunches" to their workmen and sell extra food in their canteens. Various categories of the Socialist Unity party, the Communist trade unions, and the industrial aristocracy get "Pajoks" or Stalin "parcels," which are in the form of stamped chits enabling their holders to buy about 300 cigarettes and 20 pounds of high-quality food each month.

Nose for Propaganda

The best food too is habitually sold by the Communist-controlled co-operatives, whose favored clients are those of the same political persuasion. Special rations, again, go to "cultural" performers, such as actors and opera stars, who can, in addition, buy cheap first-class meals at the stage club.

The eastern Berliner suffers many small disadvantages which are more considerable than they first appear. He cannot buy Western-licensed papers, and when a brushmaker was asked what he believed in his own Communist press he answered: "Only one thing: the date." Hitlerism has at least made Germans quick to recognize propaganda for what it is.

The eastern Berliner's currency is worth less than a quarter of the Western mark, and officially he is not allowed to handle the better currency. He is controlled by a Communist police force which is supported by, perhaps, 15 per cent of the population. He is subjected to political pressure through his district administration, which is being ruthlessly purged of anti-Communists, and he is liable to dismissal from his job because he is a Liberal or a Socialist.

Chain of Barriers

He is liable to be kidnaped and deported, and most of the 5000 disappearances which have occurred in the last three years have been from the Soviet sector. He sees the Government as an enemy—if he is a merchant his foe is the price commission, if a workman the labor office.

Curiously enough, he is just as much blockaded as his Western neighbor. In spite of police checks the Soviets have discovered that they cannot draw an actual dividing line through the middle of a great city. Goods slip through into blockaded western Berlin, so goods must be prevented from entering eastern Berlin too.

All round the city's eastern boundary is a chain of barriers manned by "people's police" and Russian soldiers. This lack of freedom is the ultimate criterion of the unhappiness of the eastern Berliner. That is why he, too, believes in the airlift, which he can see all day long from the decayed, somber streets of the Soviet sector.

GOOD TIME HAD BY ALL.

From the Louisville Times.

Deer-hunting with bows and arrows has become popular in Missouri. From all reports it's a happy pastime for all concerned. The hunters enjoy freedom from business routine and the deer enjoy freedom from fear.

Between Book Ends

Fond Recollections

SOUTH SHORE TOWN, by Elizabeth Coatsworth. (The Macmillan Co., New York, 200 Pages, $3.50.)

There was a time when Elizabeth Coatsworth lived in a colonial house on a rise of hill facing down Hingham Harbor in an old town that was among the early settlements of New England and had grown so slowly that it retained for the most part its eighteenth century appearance. She went away from there to distant places, but the remembrance of the south shore town ever lived in her heart wherever she went. On a Sunday morning she could hear the old church bells answering one another, voices for the serenity that blessed the town and spoke a benediction upon all who lived there, even those who had once lived there and had gone away. To Elizabeth Coatsworth it was like a spell that had been put upon her, something that at last compelled her to write about it. So she wrote a book and called it "South Shore Town."

Elizabeth Coatsworth

It must have been at night when this woman, possessed by memories that banished sleep, dreamed wakefully of old Hingham, for, as she says, it is at night that the past returns, and promised herself she would write a little book to be a gift to all who cherish memories and welcome their visits in the stillness of the night. Even as she promised the pact was sealed by memory's magic. She was lying again in her curtained four-poster bed in the old colonial home, with a long branch from the ash tree at the corner scraping insistently along the roof, and in the darkness of the room the embers of a fire still glowed among the ashes of the fireplace and added their odor of applewood or birchwood smoke to the air.

Under the compulsion of the memory she begins her book with the telling of how it was in the old colonial house. She goes on from there to describe the street on which it stood above the wide meadows that were once a cove; and she recalls the nesting bobwhite whose call sounds clear and cool across the long evenings of May; when the mournful mooing of the foghorn can also be heard, or sometimes the honk of a wedge of geese flying under the moon.

It is by such suggestive words that Elizabeth Coatsworth tells of South Shore Town. When she has finished her story, she wonders whether the gift to her readers has been as good as she wanted it to be. "But this is my Hingham, gentle reader," she says at parting, and nothing more needs to be said.

F. A. BEHYMER.

The Conscientious Prince

INCOGNITO, by Robert Hichens. (Robert M. McBride & Co., $3.50.)

One doesn't often find a modern dress novel about European nobility these days. Monarchies are few and far between and handsome princes in search of adventure are old hat. The few remaining nobility who practice their trade in the world are pretty conventional and rule by the grace of the people or some local strong-armed boy. Consequently, they are in no mood for any funny business. Handled with the license of a novelist, however, they could make for some pretty interesting reading.

"Incognito," though it does not have the imaginative treatment that's needed, has a limited interest. As the story of a prince who professes to hate title and rank, but yet is a slave to his training and background, it is a good one. It might be the problem of conscientious nobility in a democratic world. The character of the prince is well treated. The other characters are neglected.

Mr. Hichens' book is long on words, but short of something to say. The author has some 23 novels to his credit, including the popular "Paradine Case." This book is not one of his best.

MARQUIS CHILDS

America's Need for a Positive Foreign Policy.

THERE was one Christmas present that diplomatic Washington fervently prayed for. If this gift could have been promised for the coming year, there would have been general rejoicing among the diplomats who must cope with the ins and outs of American policy.

This gift would be a clear and unmistakable course in Europe, and above all, in Germany, that would end the zigzags of the past year and a half. Such a policy fixed at the top would leave no one in any doubt as to what line the United States intended to follow not merely during the coming year but for the next decade.

Gen. Clay.

This would mean a determination by President Truman to make sure that a consistent policy was carried out. The confusion of a Pentagon policy, a General Clay policy, a State Department policy and, perhaps, a White House policy would be ended.

Victory for the French.

The French believe that they now have won what is, at any rate, a temporary victory. As the result of French insistence, the British and the Americans have apparently agreed to an international force that would exercise top supervision over the German management of the Ruhr.

According to current reports, this has been brought about with at least the tacit support of the State Department. It means that the Gen. Clay-Pentagon policy of turning the Ruhr industrial complex back to German direction and control has been overruled.

Public opinion in this country undoubtedly played a part. There was a strong revulsion against restoring the discredited past to authority. A lively and positive interest has grown up in the proposal to give supervising direction in the Ruhr to the International Co-operative Alliance.

War of the Specialists.

At a recent press conference President Truman declared that cartels would never be restored in German industry so long as he was President. But the capable commission sent to Germany by Secretary of the Army Royall is discovering, according to a report to the New York Times, that in certain fields the same old cartel structure is being put together again.

The truth is that without a firm policy resolutely laid down from the top, what you get is a warfare of the specialists, each with his own favorite specialty to push. In Germany this has gone much further than is realized in this country.

Thus the military specialists are beginning to argue that it is unwise, in view of the Soviet menace, to waste German military manpower. The industrial specialists in the European Co-operation Administration are suggesting that since the United States must provide most of the rearmament for western Europe, German plants could be turned in part at least to production of arms for the Western alliance.

The Franco Build-up.

That may be the function of specialists—to argue the case for their special responsibility and special job. But such talk scares the wits out of Germany's western neighbors who live in fear of a Germany that would seek to wield the balance of power between East and West, ready to thrown in with the side that offered the most. And behind this fear, too, is the fact that the specialists have from time to time won their way.

Busiest of all the Germany policy-makers is Under Secretary of the Army Draper. Mr. Draper, who has given every evidence that he believes in restoring the old industrial structure, works at his job intensively in close liaison with Gen. Clay.

A President's Assistant?

This warfare of the specialists is not confined to Germany. From the Pentagon came the drive to restore Franco Spain to grace. The deep concern in France was that this move meant a strategic decision to hold a line on the other side of the Pyrenees, abandoning the rest of Europe to another long occupation in the event of a Third World War.

These are gloomy thoughts for this season of the year. But it must be realized that they are the thoughts of the professional diplomats who watch the involved evolution of United States policy.

At one time consideration was given to naming a special assistant to the President to advise him on foreign policy. That proposal has now been put aside, since it was feared it would lead to rivalry and controversy. That might have been true. But the fact remains that a new and positive approach is essential in the year to come and afterward.

'BORN YESTERDAY' BACK AT AMERICAN

Jean Parker Shows Delightful Comedy Sense in Rowdy Play.

That rowdy and sometimes ribald comedy hit, "Born Yesterday," returned to the American Theater last night with a new cast, headed by movie players, and again demonstrated that Author-Director Garson Kanin has a sure-fire sense of shrewd and skillful commercial theater.

Jean Parker, the movie actress who made an impressive debut on Broadway a couple of seasons back, was just about perfect as Billie Dawn, the junk king's dumb mistress, whose education, reminiscent of that of Galatea in Shaw's "Pygmalion," forms the crux of the plot. It is difficult to properly apportion credit for a performance like this, when the intriguing bits of business and the whole character were established by the original star, Judy Holliday, and the director three years ago, and are now merely being faithfully followed. But, anyway, even if the creation of the character isn't hers, Miss Parker shows a delightful comedy sense.

Lon Chaney, the veteran of horror and Western B-pictures, is rather on the animalistic side in his portrayal of the domineering junk millionaire, Harry Brock. Even though Harry is a crude, heavy-handed and ruthless bully, it would seem essential that he have had some native cunning to supplement his bellowing and fists to have amassed his millions. But Mr. Chaney's performance grows on one, once his conception is accepted. Scott McKay, another recruit from Hollywood, was well cast as the liberal magazine writer who is a civilized, democratic foil for Brock's brand of Fascism in the rough. Carroll Ashburn repeated his very acceptable performance of the cynical attorney he did when the play was here before, two years ago.

The fair-sized audience seemed to enjoy the show. It will run eight days, through next Sunday night. M.S.

Familiar Community Issue Before Senate: Selection of Preacher

Present Chaplain Elected Over Opposition of Democrats When Republicans Took Control in 1947.

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 (AP)—When the Senate meets next week, it will have to solve a problem that has been a burning issue at one time or another in many a town. The problem—Should it change preachers?

The problem may be solved very simply, of course. It could quietly pass a resolution keeping the Rev. Peter Marshall, D.D., as chaplain.

But if history repeats, it could be a dog fight.

Sharp Argument in 1947.

Maybe you didn't know it, but the Senate has had one loud argument over its preachers already. It was the opening floor fuss when the Republicans took over in 1947. They benched the Rev. Frederick Brown Harris, Senate chaplain for four years (at $1680 per year), and elected Dr. Marshall.

This maneuver didn't at all appeal to Senator Barkley (Dem.), Kentucky, who will be the new Vice President. Said Barkley:

"It seems particularly unfortunate, in view of the previous record of the Senate and House in regard to the chaplaincy, which ought to be above politics, that Dr. Harris should be denied re-election because of a change in the political complexion of the Senate."

Republicans protested politics wasn't involved.

Said Senator Wherry (Rep.), Nebraska, of Dr. Harris: "I have enjoyed his prayers as much as any other Senator."

Explained Senator Bridges (Rep.), New Hampshire: "We felt that no mistake would be made if we turned to the pastor of the church of Abraham Lincoln, the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church. We thought that would be fitting and appropriate."

Post Given to Dr. Marshall.

Samples:

"If there be any here sulking as children, deal with and enlighten him."

"May we say what we mean, and mean what we say. And may it be worth saying."

"We know, our Father, that there is a time to keep silence. Help us to tell the one from the other. When we should speak, give us the courage of our convictions. When we should keep silence, restrain us from speaking, lest, in our desire to appear wise, we give ourselves away."

But lurking in the background is what Barkley said in the Senate as the debate raged:

"I think it should be said in good faith that they (the Republicans) are setting us a very poor example for the time when we resume control of the Senate two years from now."

That sounds pretty much like a threat.

MRS. WILLIAM PALEY BEST-DRESSED WOMAN

Duchess of Windsor, Mrs. Harrison Williams on List of First 10.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27 (AP)—A one-time fashion editor—who stresses simplicity in dress—tops the list of the 10 best dressed women of 1948 named by the New York Dress Institute.

She is Mrs. William S. Paley, the former Barbara Cushing Mortimer, wife of the head of the Columbia Broadcasting System. Mrs. Paley detests the term "clothes horse" and buys only one or two new outfits each season.

The annual selection of best dressed women by the institute is based on a poll of 150 fashion editors and designers around the country.

Mrs. Millicent Rogers, the Duchess of Windsor, Mrs. Andre Embiricos (the former Beatrice Ammidn), Mrs. Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt; Mrs. William Randolph Hearst Jr. (the former Austine Cassini of Washington and New York), Mrs. Harrison Williams, the Duchess of Kent, Mme. Louis Arpels of Hollywood and Mrs. Howard Hawks of Hollywood.

Five other women, although receiving votes to rate the top 10, were placed in a special category because they are fashion designers themselves, or closely connected with the fashion industry.

They are: Mrs. Adam Gimbel (Sophie, the dress designer), Mrs. George Schlee (Valentina, the dress designer), Gene Tierney (wife of designer Oleg Cassini), Janet Gaynor Adrian (wife of Adrian, Hollywood designer), and Mrs. John C. Wilson (the former Princess Paley, associated with Mainbocher, the designer).

Mrs. Paley says that she hopes skirts will remain long next year, "but not so long that they touch my ankles when I walk."

Woman Picks Truman as Best-Dressed Man in U.S.

MOUNT VERNON, N.Y., Dec. 27 (UP)—President Truman is the best dressed man in America, Mrs. Veronica Dengel, president of the American Women's Institute, said today.

Mrs. Dengel said her list of best dressed men was based on her own survey. The President, she said, has the "ideal look."

VALLEY GROUP HONORS DR. EVARTS A. GRAHAM

Dr. Evarts A. Graham, Bixby professor of surgery at Washington University Medical School, has been selected to receive the annual honor award of the Mississippi Valley Medical Society for 1949, it was announced today.

The award will be presented at the organization's fourteenth annual meeting here Sept. 28. Dr. Nathaniel G. Alcock, Iowa City, Ia., president-elect of the organization and head of the department of urology at the University of Iowa, will receive the society's annual distinguished service award.

Dr. Graham, who is also surgeon-in-chief at Barnes and St. Louis Children's hospitals, was the first man to remove successfully one entire lung from a patient suffering from cancer. He also developed a technique making possible X-ray photography of the gall bladder.

Among many honors he has received are the St. Louis Award and the Lister Medal of the Royal College of Surgeons of England. He lives on Old Jamestown road in northern St. Louis county.

MICHELANGELO STATUE TO BE SHOWN BY JAN. 20

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 (UP)—The first statue by Michelangelo ever to be exhibited in the United States will be put on view at the National Gallery in time for President Truman's inauguration Jan. 20. The masterpiece, which is lent for exhibition by the Italian Government, arrived aboard the U.S.S. Grand Canyon. It is from the Bargello Museum in Florence, Italy. Michelangelo is thought to have started the work in 1525 but never finished it.

The 58¾-inch piece of marble was in "perfect" condition on arrival. Critics think that a block under the man's foot was an unfinished facsimile of Goliath's head and that, therefore, the statue is of David. Others think Apollo was the subject.

WILLIAM J. BRUEMMER DIES; REAL ESTATE FIRM OFFICER

Funeral services for William J. Bruemmer, secretary of the Carl S. Stifel Real Estate Co., will be at 9 a.m. Wednesday at Our Lady of Mount Carmel Catholic Church, 1300 Veronica avenue. He was 42 years old and died of cancer Christmas day at St. Mary's Hospital. He lived at 2447 Petrova court, Jennings.

Mr. Bruemmer was secretary of the St. Louis chapter of the Mortgage Bankers' Association of America and was a former chairman of the St. Louis County Planning Commission and the Jennings Zoning Board. He was a former president of the St. Louis County Real Estate Board and the Rotary Club of University City.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Barbara Cook Bruemmer, his mother, Mrs. Anna Bruemmer, two sons, William Jr. and John Bruemmer, and four daughters, Misses Shirley, Nancy, Susan and Barbara Ann Bruemmer. Burial will be in SS. Peter and Paul Cemetery.

MISS MARGARET TARRANT DIES

The funeral of Miss Margaret E. Tarrant, a teacher at Brookes Bible Institute, 3465 South Grand boulevard, for 27 years, will be tomorrow at 2 p.m., at the Hoppe undertaking establishment, 4911 Washington boulevard, with private burial services.

Miss Tarrant, who was 70 years old, died yesterday of cancer at her home, 6125 Simpson avenue. Surviving is a sister, Miss Mary M. Tarrant, with whom she lived.

MRS. JOSEPH P. METTE DIES; FUNERAL TO BE TOMORROW

Funeral services for Mrs. Ada Mette, 708 Luckystone avenue, Glendale, will be tomorrow at 9 a.m. at Mary Queen of Peace Catholic Church, Beverly avenue and North Berry road, Glendale. Burial will be in SS. Peter and Paul Cemetery.

Mrs. Mette died Christmas day at her home, following a paralytic stroke. She was the widow of Joseph P. Mette, an accountant, who died in 1936. Mrs. Mette was a daughter of the late Dr. Hugo Auler, at one time Coroner of St. Louis and president of the Board of Education.

She lived with a daughter, Miss Stella de Mette Liazza, an instructor at Villa Duchesne Convent of the Sacred Heart and a former mezzo-soprano with the San Carlo and Metropolitan Opera companies. Also surviving are two other daughters, Mrs. Edwin J. Falk and Mrs. Paul Hartzke.

SAND SUBSTITUTE IN PAINT CUTS USE OF LEAD TWO THIRDS

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK, Dec. 27 (AP)—Discovery of a new method of substituting sand for lead in outdoor paint was described today by officers of the National Lead Co.

Paint lead has been taking about 7 per cent of the annual lead supply. For making the same amount and same quality of paint, the discovery cuts the lead down to one-third.

Formerly paint was made with solid lead particles mixed with the oils. The new way uses particles of sand that are completely coated with lead.

Lead makes paint last longer. The good effects of lead are due to the surface of the metal. But the inside of each little bit of lead was idle.

Fourteen years of laboratory work and testing finally produced finely ground sand and methods for putting on the metallic coats.

Four pounds of lead in a gallon now does the equivalent of 12 pounds previous to sand-coating.

THE REV. DR. WESLEY H. HAGER PASTOR OF GRACE METHODIST

The Rev. Dr. Wesley H. Hager, Mount Vernon, N. Y., will be the new pastor of the Grace Methodist Church, 6199 Waterman avenue, Bishop Ivan Lee Holt of the Methodist Church in Missouri announced yesterday.

Rev. W. H. Hager

Dr. Hager, pastor of the First Methodist Church in Mount Vernon, will assume his post here about Feb. 1, Bishop Holt said. He succeeds Dr. Amos Thornburg who left St. Louis Nov. 1 to take the pastorate of the First Methodist Church of Hollywood, Calif.

Announcement was made by Bishop Holt at the 11 a.m. service at Grace Church yesterday. Dr. Hager studied at Hamline University, in St. Paul, Minn., and at Union Theological Seminary, New York. The Rev. Fay H. McDonald, assistant pastor of Grace Methodist Church, has been serving as pastor since Dr. Thornburg's departure.

108,000 VETS IN HOSPITALS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 (AP)—The Veterans' Administration estimates that about 108,000 war veterans are in hospitals this holiday season. Of that number about 50,000 are long-term patients—men and women who have been hospitalized for a year or more.

The agency's chaplaincy service says it wouldn't be a bad idea for the public to drop in on those veterans who are able to have visitors.

1,051,000 VETERANS OF LAST WAR WERE IN SCHOOL NOV. 30

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 (AP)—There were 1,051,000 World War II veterans in school Nov. 30, the Veterans' Administration said today. This is a decline of 185,000 from the Nov. 30, 1947, total. The record high was 1,245,000 in December 1947.

BARKLEY TO ATTEND INAUGURATION OF ADLAI STEVENSON

Symington, Sullivan and Adm. Denfeld Also to Be Present Jan. 10.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Dec. 27 (AP)—Vice President-Elect Alben Barkley will head Washington officials who will attend the inauguration of new state officers here Jan. 10.

Invitations have been accepted by Navy Secretary John Sullivan, Air Secretary Stuart Symington and Adm. Louis E. Denfeld, navy chief of staff.

The oath of office will be administered to Gov.-Elect Adlai E. Stevenson and the other state officials by Chief Justice William J. Fulton of the Illinois Supreme Court.

The swearing in ceremonies will take place in the state armory at 12:15 p.m. Stevenson will give his inaugural message at 12:30 p.m., on a program broadcast by more than 40 Illinois radio stations.

Those who will attend the inauguration include Mayor Martin H. Kennelly of Chicago, Senator Scott W. Lucas and Senator-Elect Paul H. Douglas.

Gov. Dwight H. Green will ride with his successor in an automobile from the executive mansion to the armory.

Adjt. Gen. Leo M. Boyle, who is supervising the inaugural program, said more than 20,000 requests for admission tickets have been received, and there will be only 5700 seats available. He estimated that 9000 can be accommodated for the ball.

After Stevenson gives his inaugural message, Carl Sandburg, the poet, will recite an ode composed for the occasion.

WOMEN REPORTED HIGHER, WIDER AND MORE HANDSOME

CHICAGO, Dec. 27 (UP)—Today's women are higher, wider and more handsome than ever before, a corset manufacturer says.

The foundation maker found in a survey that women have become heavier in the shoulders, hips and bust, and an inch taller on the average.

The company's veteran designer, Miss Louise Douglas, said the women are "a lot better to look at."

Women began to expand when they freed themselves from the old whalebone garments with their "rib crushing restrictions," Miss Douglas said.

The evolution has extended down to the feet, Miss Douglas said. In fact, a revolution has taken place at that level. Women are now more likely to buy shoes that fit rather than pinch.

'Most Bombed Bishop' Dies.

HEREFORD, England, Dec. 27 (AP)—Dr. Richard Godfrey Parsons, Bishop of Hereford, died last night after a year's illness following an accident. He was 66 years old. During the war he became known as "London's most-bombed bishop" because four large churches near his home were destroyed by bombs. He was then bishop of a South London diocese of the Church of England.

DISPUTE DEVELOPS OVER UNIFYING OF LABOR AGENCIES

Top Officials of NLRB and Mediation Service Reported to Oppose Joining Labor Department.

By MAX HALL.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 (AP)—Strenuous fights are developing over the Labor Department's efforts to pull the National Labor Relations Board and the Federal Mediation Service under its wing.

Labor Department officials have recommended that both agencies be placed in the department for "house-keeping purposes"—leaving the NLRB independent in its judicial rulings and the Mediation Service free to be impartial in labor disputes.

An impression—right or wrong—has seeped around town to the effect that the Herbert Hoover commission, studying the entire Federal Government, may give the Labor Department some support. The Hoover commission is reported to be favoring more centralization of federal agencies, in order to achieve more efficiency and economy of operations.

But it became increasingly clear today that the two agencies will battle hard to keep their complete independence.

They made no public statements on the matter, but White House officials are well aware of their position. And the position of top officials in both agencies is strongly against entering the Labor Department for any purpose whatever.

Congress must ultimately decide what to do about it. But the recommendations of President Truman will be of great importance.

So far as the NLRB is concerned, Truman's attitude is a big question mark. He is not committed one way or the other by the Democratic platform. His advisers are split on the issue. He alone can decide what to recommend. And it is reliably reported that he hasn't yet decided.

The case of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service is somewhat different. The Democratic platform, on which Truman campaigned for re-election, calls for the return of this agency to the Labor Department. The President is expected to recommend this to Congress.

Business leaders are especially aroused over this issue. They are preparing to use all their influence to preserve the mediation board, now headed by Cyrus S. Ching, as an independent body. They say labor-management mediation cannot succeed without having the confidence of both sides, and their own confidence in the agency would sink seriously if it went back under the Secretary of Labor, where it used to be before the Taft-Hartley Act was passed in 1947.

The same kind of argument is being made with respect to the NLRB, which has never been a part of the Labor Department.

Those who argue for the independence of the mediation service and NLRB point out that the law which created the Labor Department directs it to foster the interests of laboring people. They say this makes the department a "special pleader." They argue that even if the Labor Department made no attempt directly to control the two agencies in their activities, the Secretary of Labor would still exert powerful influence in the field of budget estimates and choosing personnel.

On the other hand, Labor Department officials argue—as they have argued in previous years—that all labor agencies should be brought under one head for administrative purposes. They say this is "essential" in order to have a "unified federal labor policy."

They deny any intention to influence the NLRB in deciding cases where employers or unions are charged with unfair labor practices.

LOW MORALE FOUND AT BIG AIR FORCE BASE

instead of the APO, although it costs 20 cents to send a letter airmail in the open British mail and only a nickel with the APO.

There is no camp newspaper at any of the bases and no arrangement to offer an up-to-date daily news service. Under an absurd improvisation, the Stars and Stripes is flown in from Germany—and copies are three weeks old by the time they are passed out. On Dec. 13, the latest date available at Burtonwood was Nov. 22.

Inadequate Medical Facilities.

Medical facilities are inadequate. There is a 25-bed dispensary, but there are no nurses yet—10 are supposed to sail in early January—and really serious cases must be flown to Germany for treatment in American Army hospitals there. Capt. Eugene H. Betlach, the medical officer at Burtonwood, sends an average of three to five a week to Weisbaden.

Many of the men here are in the dumps, because they have had to leave their families behind them. Only about a half-dozen have them here. About 100 more have made application to bring them over, but at the moment, a man must go out and find a place to live before he can get permission to bring his family across. This is difficult.

Since Burtonwood is a permanent base, this problem of separation from families is a serious one. (The United States Air Force personnel at Burtonwood—officially called the United Kingdom Air Materiel Area headquarters — is made up of the Fifty-ninth Air Depot and the 313th Supply and Maintenance Groups.)

The problem is not so acute with the B-29 boys at our four bases in East Anglia—Scampton, Waddington, Markham and Lakenheath. They are here on temporary duty for not more than 90 days. After that, they rotate and are relieved by fresh groups.

But even some of the B-29 boys are having their troubles. Their wives nag them because they are "never home." They may be in England only 90 days, but after a couple of weeks at home they may be sent off for duty in Germany or somewhere else. One airman of Scampton is being divorced because he is home so little.

One thing the boys don't gripe about any more is food. When they first arrived they ate British rations for a month and were very unhappy. Now they have American rations and they all say the chow is good. There are fresh eggs and fresh grapefruit for breakfast.

Doctor, Mother and Two Children Found Dead in Mountain Cabin

BIG BEAR, Calif., Dec. 27 (AP)—The table was set for Santa Claus, but death came instead for young Dr. Jerome G. Schnedorf, two of his children, and his mother.

Death from Two Causes.

Coroner R. E. Williams announced today that the deaths were caused by carbon monoxide poisoning and asphyxiation. The coroner said blood tests were completed by Fred Greusel and that his findings were concurred in by Dr. C. S Small, county pathologist.

Williams said it was found that Dr. Schnedorf and his mother, died of monoxide poisoning in the cabin where a heater was burning when the bodies were found yesterday. The coroner said the son "undoubtedly died of monoxide poisoning," but that more tests were being made, and that the daughter died of asphyxiation.

The bodies were discovered by the physician's wife, Mrs. Mary Margaret Schnedorf, 37, formerly of Cape Girardeau, Mo., when she awoke from a coma of more than 30 hours. She and the eldest child, Jerry, 10, were in a rear bedroom and thus narrowly escaped the fate of the others.

On a table, in keeping with an old world Christmas custom, a plate was set for Santa Claus. Next to it was a note in an envelope addressed to the three children. It read:

"Dear Judy, Jerry and Tom, it was too cold to bring a baby girl kitten and female canary to Big Bear Lake. With this letter you can get a bird and kitty later if you are good.

"So tell your mother and dad, and to all a good night. Thank you for the milk and steak. It was very good.—Santa Claus."

Sheriff's Deputy Kendall Stone said he found a butane gas heater burning, and that the high-banked snow may have stopped up one or more of the vents. Chief Deputy Coroner E. P. Doyle advanced the theory that the heater may have burned up all the oxygen in the room.

He said Mrs. Schnedorf and Jerry collapsed on the floor and thus had the advantage of the last traces of oxygen. Both were taken to San Bernardino County Hospital where the boy is in serious condition.

Mrs. Schnedorf told investigators the family went to the cabin Thursday and spent Friday decorating the tree and wrapping presents. They ate dinner early Christmas Eve and went to bed at 9:30, leaving a turkey ready for roasting in the oven.

That was the last she remembered—until she awoke at dawn the morning after Christmas. Her weak cries brought neighbors who summoned officers.

The father was found in a chair before the tree. The other bodies were on beds.

Dr. Schnedorf, a Northwestern University graduate, set up practice in Santa Barbara 18 months ago after resigning a commission in the Army Medical Corps. He met his wife while both were Northwestern students. They celebrated their eleventh wedding anniversary on Christmas Eve.

The doctor's wife is a member of a prominent Southeast Missouri family. Her father, Charles A. Lamb, has been for many years professor of manual training at Southeast Missouri State College at Cape Girardeau.

A sister of Mrs. Schnedorf, Mrs. C. C. Conrad, lives at Little Rock, Ark. Another sister Mrs. James Bittles, lives at O'Fallon, Ill. A third sister is Miss Maurine Lamb of Winnetka, Ill. A brother, Charles, lives in San Francisco.

Flashes of Life

A Dog Tale.

CHICAGO — Policeman Harry Kropidlowski, driving a police auto, was wondering how he was going to find the puppies his wife wanted for Christmas.

A stranger called him.

"Officer," he said. "I've got a problem." He drew from his coat pocket two small puppies. "I took these animals from a couple of boys who said they were going to destroy them. Who should I go to to find a home for them."

Tale Still Wagging.

A Warming Deal.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. — Cold facts and not holiday leniency brought about the release yesterday of all "drunks" in city jail.

POLICE PLANNING MORE EFFICIENCY IN JUVENILE CASES

Juvenile Court Probation Officer Would Be Notified Each Time Arrest Was Made.

Plans are being made by the Police Department and the juvenile court for a more efficient handling of juvenile delinquency, it was disclosed today.

One of the proposals calls for a limitation on the leeway of police officers assigned to juvenile work in disposing of cases called to their attention. Also proposed is a requirement that police notify the juvenile court probation officer each time an arrest is made, so records of juvenile offenders may be centralized.

Circuit Judge Waldo C. Mayfield, in charge of the juvenile division, said today he had written last June to H. Sam Priest, president of the Board of Police Commissioners, sugbesting that police officers notify the probation division of each arrest of a juvenile.

Judge Mayfield said his suggestion was made at the request of Miss Grace M. Gorman, chief probation officer of juvenile court.

Conferences Held.

Several conferences have been held among representatives of the Police Department and the Juvenile Court, and an announcement is expected soon on the program developed. A study made by the Social Planning Council of St. Louis and St. Louis county on the problem of juvenile delinquency and the resulting recommendations have also been considered in the new program.

Police Chief Jeremiah O'Connell said that relations between his department and the probation officers have remained amicable. He pointed out that under the present system police officers handling the case of a juvenile arrested suspected of a felony may dispose of the matter without notifying the Juvenile Court.

The proposed plan would include an arrangement whereby the probation office would be notified before final disposition of such cases. Ultimately, the juvenile would be released by the police officer, on approval by the probation officer, or he would be sent to Juvenile Court for further action.

Effect of Plan.

The effect of such a plan, it was pointed out, would be to prevent a police officer from abusing a privilege of releasing a juvenile without referral to Juvenile Court. Under present practice, only the more flagrant cases of juvenile delinquency are turned over to juvenile authorities immediately.

George Kelly, acting chief probation officer, told a Post-Dispatch reporter today that his department was "definitely" in favor of the present practice of not giving a juvenile offender "a record" by putting his name on the police blotter.

Father, Son Drown When Skating.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Dec. 27 (AP)—A University of Michigan professor and his young son drowned yesterday after breaking through ice during a skating party on the Huron river. The bodies of John E. Eaton, 62 years old, professor of German, and his son, Michael, 5, were recovered today.

RESERVE BOARD REPORTS DROP IN BUSINESS LOANS

'Abrupt Slackening' in October and November Termed Sign Inflation Is Waning.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 (AP)—The Federal Reserve Board said today bank loans "slackened abruptly" in October and November, another sign that inflationary forces are waning.

Loans to finance purchases of automobiles, refrigerators, furniture and similar items also were "sharply reduced" in October, the board said. But it ascribed this to the reimposition of consumer credit controls in September.

"Diminished growth in credit to real estate buyers and consumers probably accounted in large part for the reduced loan expansion in October at banks outside leading cities," the board's monthly bulletin commented.

Nevertheless, the slowdown in bank loans to business was cited as the "most striking of recent bank credit developments."

"The increase in business loans in October and November was less than one third that shown in the same months in previous postwar years," the bulletin said.

It added that one reason was that businesses were getting an "increased volume of funds from other sources"—using part of their "record high profits" for capital and borrowing more from insurance companies.

The insurance companies, in turn, raised money for business loans by selling government securities to Federal Reserve Banks—a policy which the board has hinted may lead it to ask Congress for regulatory powers over insurance company lending.

The board report noted that New York City bank loans to business increased less than $100,000,000 in October and November, compared to $600,000,000 in those months of 1947.

Another difference was that last year, loan growth reflected credit given to manufacturers in all major lines and to the trade, utility, service, finance and construction industries. This year the milder growth was in loans to oil and clothing industries, retailers, and utilities, the board said.

SNOW, RAIN, DUST STORMS PERILS ON CALIFORNIA ROADS

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 27 (AP)—A treacherous pattern of snow, rain and dust storms added to the hazards of holiday travel in California today. Automobile accident casualties mounted as icy or rain-slicked highways added to the perils in heavy traffic. There were 39 traffic fatalities up to midnight.

A violent wind and dust storm whipping across Highway 99—the inland route leading to Los Angeles—was so blinding that motorists were detoured around the danger area.

The Lake county resort area some 75 miles north of San Francisco was digging out of the heaviest snowfall in years, with one sizable town, Lakeport, still isolated by drifts blocking all connecting highways. Middletown, near Lakeport, was cut off all of yesterday, but today regained contact with the outside. For a time telephone communications also were disrupted in this mountain-surrounded area.

BITUMINOUS COAL OUTPUT OFF

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 (AP)—The National Coal Association estimated from incomplete car loading reports that bituminous coal production in the country for the week ended Dec. 18 was 11,410,000 net tons. Production for the corresponding week last year was 13,020,000 net tons.

The association estimated production so far this year at 568,250,000 tons. At the same time in 1947 it was 603,750,000 tons.

STOCK MARKET SLOW, PRICE CHANGES MIXED

Sales first hour, 170,000; second, 210,000; third, 190,000; fourth, 150,000; fifth, 340,000.

There was no particular pressure on the selling side, and volume was noticeable for its absence in both periods of rising and falling prices.

The biggest losses were about a point, and with few exceptions the gains were in the larger fractions.

Steels kept to the downside most of the time while motors seesawed back and forth an eighth at a time. Mail order and retail shares were depressed, as were airlines, motion pictures and distillers.

Losers included Standard Oil (N.J.), United States Steel, Republic Steel, New York Central, Southern Railway.

Gainers included General Motors, Goodrich, Douglas Aircraft, Union Pacific.

There was nothing in the day that would indicate the start of the long awaited year-end rally which had been anticipated in Wall street. But the market's action nevertheless was not disappointing to those who expected a rise because it was holding on average at around the best point in more than a month.

Trend on the Curb.

Stocks in the curb market were mostly higher, although some of the more active issues were unchanged. Higher at times were American Gas & Electric, Kaiser-Frazer, Electric Bond & Share, Babcock & Wilcox, United Shoe Machinery, Pancoastal Oil and Pantepec Oil.

Bonds were moderately higher with rails among the more active loans. United States Government issues in the over-the-counter market were quiet and steady.

Eleven-month-reports of railroad net operating income continued to show a bulge over a year ago as a result of increased rates. The Association of American Railroads reported that freight traffic this year will be 2.3 per cent under last year but 43 per cent above the pre-war peak reached in 1929.

In the aircraft industry there was discussion of prospective orders from the fighting services, and representative Kennedy (Dem.), Massachusetts, said he would introduce a bill to increase the number of cargo planes available for an emergency.

On the anti-inflation front, the Federal Reserve Board noted a slackening in bank loans during October and November for business expansion and operation.

The mid-winter Montgomery Ward catalogue featured price cuts as high as 35 per cent on many major lines of merchandise. Mail order catalogues are always an index of the retailers' opinion on price movement.

The National Association of Purchasing Agents said December industrial production slowed down more than expected.

The magazine "Steel" found the steel industry cautious. Demand remains at record peaks and production is at its highest level. The magazine noted: "But the mixed situation in general business over the past several weeks has alerted producers and consumers for any sudden change which may develop in the steel situation."

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 27 (AP)—Selected railroad and utility issues moved forward in today's bond market but enough losers dotted the list to give it an irregular appearance.

Up major fractions to more than a point late were Detroit Edison 2¾s, Cincinnati Gas 2¾s, Peoria & Eastern income 4s and Southern Railway general 4s. Depressed were Michigan Central 4½s and Missouri Pacific general 4s.

Prices slid somewhat in a flurry of late trading. American & Foreign Power 5s were down a point at 84, Pennsylvania Central Airline 3½s off 1¾ at 55, Katy first 4s off 1 at 73 and Rio Grande Western income 4½s a point lower at 64½. Wisconsin Central, Superior & Duluth 4s climbed 1¾ at 47 and New Haven income 4½s at 46½ were up ½ a point.

Steel Rate Back to 97.3 Per Cent.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27 (AP)—Steel production reverts to near-capacity levels this week after the Christmas shutdown, the American Iron and Steel Institute said.

The institute estimated the mills would operate at 97.3 per cent of rated capacity, equal to output of 1,753,800 net tons of ingots and castings. This compares with a rate of 88.6 per cent and tonnage of 1,597,000 in the Christmas week.

A month ago the industry operated at 100.1 per cent with production placed at 1,804,300 tons. The figures a year ago were 96.4 per cent and 1,686,900 tons.

GRAINS RULE QUIET; TREND IRREGULAR

CHICAGO, Dec. 27 (AP)—Grains got nowhere on the Board of Trade today. They started out steady enough, but then spent most of the day a little under the previous closing quotations. Toward the finish the small losses were recovered.

For most contracts, the price range during the session was less than a cent. Trading was as light when prices were going down as when they were climbing.

Receipts of cash grain at terminals expanded, but arrivals really covered a three-day period. Italy was said to be in the market for some flour. The Government bid unchanged premiums for cash wheat and corn.

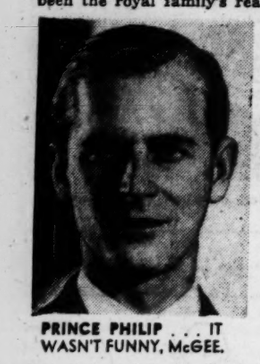
'How Do You Like That?'

Prince Rejects Advice From U. S. Father

By Bob Considine

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.

I LEARN from a news service that a British weekly paper, "The People," carried a story last week reporting what seems to have been the royal family's reaction to a mash note I wrote to Princess Elizabeth.



PRINCE PHILIP . . . IT WASN'T FUNNY, McGEE.

In the letter—and Uncle Jake, who traveled, and knew women, always warned me never to put anything in writing—I suggested to Liz that she and Philip give the kid more rein than reign.

I urged them to introduce him to Churchill rather than Cripps, urged them to send him over to an American state university for a spell, and suggested they uncloister him as much as possible.

Well, sir, it seems that British comedian Georgie Wood latched on to a copy of the piece and sent it to Philip. Philip replied:

"I admit I have no experience in parenthood but, even so, I think I can do better than Mr. Considine."

★ ★ ★

HOW DO YOU LIKE THAT? How do you like him, and his one child, talking disrespectfully to a man who is gradually becoming "the father of his county?"

Sure, let him sprout chest over his body—and he should, for the kid seems to be a fine lad.

But let Philip also be warned: The second child is somehow chastening, and the third further bleaches the male progenitor.

I can only guess at what subtle changes take place in the husband after that, but I've seen my multi-blessed pals, and they're never quite the same. They even seem to wear different suits after each addition to the family. And different ties. Their hats, once rakish, forget the side-saddle and suddenly straddle.

★ ★ ★

THE NEWS STORY READ: "The Duke of Edinburgh was reported today to have been highly amused at the 'impishness' of American columnist Bob Considine's open letter to Princess Elizabeth."

I can't conceive of anybody with size 12 feet being impish; that is, without being slugged. Didn't mean to be impish. Didn't try. Just couldn't resist giving advice to a new mother and father.

Didn't mean to amuse the Duke. Have had little experience in Duke-amusing, a medieval sport not even mentioned in Frank Menke's all-sport record book.

THE PIECE in "The People" apparently went on to say that if such a thing had been printed during the reign of Queen Victoria, she would have issued a stern warning to the effect that "We are not amused."

That's more than possible. How could an obscure writer from an obscure semi-colony hope to amuse Victoria, always assuming the writer might have been alive at that time and been so hard up for a column that he composed an open letter?

Besides, Victoria's paintings and photographs look as if she had never been amused. She probably would not have been amused by Helen Hayes's amusing interpretation of her great, unamusing life.

"Oldtimers at the court of St. James's said that the American writer need not worry that the young prince, who might one day rule Britain as Charles III, will be pampered or coddled in his upbringing," the story said.

★ ★ ★

WHAT OLDTIMERS? My only point was that when Eddie, the Prince of Wales, was exposed to America he lived a life so alien to our norm that he never could have known the low-down.

Chuck has a chance to learn more about us. This will probably annoy our British friends, but the United States, once the poor relation of a mighty and beneficial power, is now, in its charitable independence, that power's prime hope for the future.

We have indicated over the past 30 odd years that we will not stand by, for long, and see Britain molested. We will fight its enemies, sooner or later, and always help sustain it through its inevitable period of wound-licking.

The child who some day will be the royal head of that power should be given the opportunity to know his true contemporaries in this country. And in his own.

End of sermon.

His Mission

By Christopher Billopp

A HUSBAND can be of great help to his wife if he will condescend occasionally to do a small errand for her in town. This may consist of going by the silversmith's to pick up a repaired candlestick, bringing home a sweater from the cleaner's or looking for a small, inexpensive present.

When the husband returns home he will be asked if he has performed the mission. The changes are he will reply that he has not. He will, of course, be reproached for his neglect.

★ ★ ★

SHOULD HE TELL HER that the mission was insignificant as compared with all the other duties he has to perform? Should he describe a day packed full of important conferences and the making of vital decisions?

Should he picture himself as the key man of the organization without whose counsel nothing can be done? Should he suggest that had he put aside his business affairs and taken a half hour off to perform the mission the company very probably would have gone on the rocks?

★ ★ ★

SHOULD HE REMARK that women can never know the intense mental and physical strain men undergo during their working hours? Should he enlarge upon the frantic tempo at which business offices are run, and the grave risk involved in being found wanting and arousing the suspicion that he is losing his grip?

Should he assert that a man cannot serve two masters? That either he must devote his time entirely to her errands and let the office go, to keep his mind on business and cause her slight incovenience?

Or should he admit that the day at the office was no more than average, that he had plenty of time to drink water, sharpen pencils, exchange anecdotes with colleagues and take out an hour or more for lunch? As for the mission, should he confess the brutal truth that he "just plain forgot"?

What Am I Saying!

A character I know who plays when he works and works when he plays. You can take it from me—I should know that many actors firmly believe that a good small role is better than a good long loaf.

Small boats and sampans jamming Soochow creek at Shanghai, China, a condition brought about by the movement to the city of many Chinese who make their homes on the small craft on various rivers seeking sanctuary from the encroaching Communist forces. A person lucky enough to get some of the gold could sell each ounce on the black market for between 3000 and 4000 gold yuan, the Chinese government's new currency. Throughout the city the crush of the money-mad mobs killed seven persons and injured more than 100 others.

May Have Last Laugh on Hollywood

By Harold Heffernan

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 27.

FUNNY if Rex Harrison had the last, long laugh on Hollywood—and current events in his life are making such an ironic situation highly probable.

Scandalously involved in events leading up to the suicide of Carole Landis, the English actor not only was given a rough time by reporters at the inquest but his studio, Twentieth Century-Fox, indicated they would just sit by and let his contract lapse.

Going East, Harrison let loose with the most vitriolic series of newspaper-interview blasts ever coming from an important film personality. Hollywood reeled under his stinging, widely printed rebukes, yelled "sour grapes" and threatened. "Just let that guy ever try to come back here," chorused the indignant tycoons.

But here comes the joker. Harrison's Broadway starring venture, launched earlier this month, is a hit and so is Hollywood's banished bad boy. Critics have been raving about his performance as Henry VIII in the Maxwell Anderson show, "Anne and the Thousand Days."

Hollywood has never failed to bid wildly for any top Broadway star and so "Sexy Rexy," as the Twentieth Century-Fox publicity boys dubbed him, may soon return in great triumph to the town he so roundly cursed.

What's even more ironic, if such a situation does come to pass, Harrison would be forced to return to Twentieth Century-Fox, the lot that handed him his hat and gave him a slight push out the back gate after the Carole Landis affair. Angry as they were, the Zanuck forces have kept Harrison's contract in their vaults.

★ ★ ★

THAT ANNUAL year-end rush is on among all Hollywood producers—to get inside the wire for academy - award nominations. Rules of that august body demand that any picture eligible for voters must have at least a few hours' showing within the city limits of Los Angeles before Jan. 1.

REX HARRISON . . . A HIT IN NEW BROADWAY PLAY.

Reason for the big stampede is that producers, resorting to logic (for a change), realize that voters forget easily. An extraordinary production released in January or even June might be forgotten by the time the ballots are sent out. Hence, everyone races to get play dates the last couple of weeks in December.

Outstanding example of how the late-comers score was noted in the 1948 voting. Ronald Colman won his Oscar via "A Double Life," which was shown the last week of December in Los Angeles but never reached the public elsewhere until four months later. No one quarreled with the choice though, because it was recognition long overdue Colman. Some wonder, however, if Ronnie would have snagged the copper doorstop if his film had been displayed a few months earlier.

And so the worriers hereabouts are wondering whether the fine features of early 1948 will get the forgotten treatment. Among those supers that may have hit the trail too early are "Treasure of the Sierra Madre," "State of the Union," "I Remember Mama" and those delightful comedies, "Sitting Pretty" and "A Foreign Affair."

Still, the same experts who point out that "A Double Life" was a late-year release forget that Loretta Young won her Oscar for "A Farmer's Daughter," which was Los Angeles-shown in February, 11 months before the nomination deadline. That factor is lending some hope to R.K.O. and George Stevens, producer of "I Remember Mama." Stevens refused to hurry production on the Irene Dunne starring picture in order to get it under the academy voting wire last year. He insisted that the public and the voters would never forget, providing a picture had merit. We'll see, come next March, but the betting is that Hollywood will play true to form—quick to forget in every department.

EDMUND GOULDING is a top-flight director with a sure touch and a definite flair for getting the best out of his players—but as an actor he is something else.

Mostly because he looked upon it as an amusing experience, Goulding volunteered to play the role of a movie director in a picture-within-a-picture sequence for "You're My Everything," at Twentieth Century-Fox. He carefully went over the role with Director Walter Lang, had himself tested, ordered special wardrobe and otherwise gave the task much more thought than if he were directing something of his own.

Couple of days before scheduled to film the bit, Goulding bowed out, offering the weak excuse that he was too busy on the script of his next film, "Remember, Oh Remember."

Alan Mowbray was called in to play Goulding in the picture and did the whole job in a day and a half.

Fix It Yourself

Leaky Radiator Valves.

SOMEDAY someone is going to invent a waterproof and heat-proof finish for floors and when that day arrives it won't make much difference to the floors how many radiator shut-off valves leak—it will only bother the heating system. But for the time being it's wise to keep steam and hot water away from your floors.

A radiator shut-off valve will leak because the cap nut is too loose or because the packing inside the nut is no good. The first thing to do is tighten up on the nut and see where it gets you. That nut by the way is that big baby right under the valve handle. If tightening the nut doesn't solve the problem or makes it impossible to turn the valve handle then you'll have to do a little repacking.

If you are dealing with a hot-water radiator, allow the water level to drop below the valve you are working on. On a steam system, reduce the fire so you don't have much pressure in the boiler. Close the valve and remove the valve handle. Unscrew the cap nut and slip it off the valve shaft.

Some nuts are packed with special washers and others with a special packing compound. You can get either at heating and hardware stores. Work the packing into the nut, replace it on the valve and tighten it down as far as it will go without making it too difficult to open or close the valve.

My Day

'Always a Certain Letdown After Christmas'

By Eleanor Roosevelt

HYDE PARK.

THERE is always a certain degree of letdown the day after Christmas. All the presents have been opened and the excitement of the children is past. Then comes the putting to use of their various gifts. If the family is very patient, they will probably find themselves constructing all kinds of toys which are made ostensibly for children but which usually require an adult's aid before the children can master them.

Mrs. Roosevelt

Occasional flurries of snow in our area on Christmas day made possible use of skiis which had been acquired as gifts. These give a great deal of pleasure to the youngsters, though they also give the adults in the family a certain amount of anxiety.

IN OUR PAPER I read of one gift that is real Christmas giving in the sense that it will give pleasure and interest to many, and also be of great spiritual value, I believe, to a great number of young people for a long time. That is Myron Taylor's gift to Cornell University for an inter-faith hall as a World War II memorial, named after his wife. It is appropriate to have this gift associated with the Christmas season—a perfectly unselfish one. That is what Christmas giving should mean, but so often we forget its true significance.

Mr. Taylor's gift should help to train many young people in the value of understanding the numerous faiths by which men live. I am sure that it is vastly important to the young people of today to recapture some of that simple faith of their forefathers which characterized the early expression of faith in our nation.

WE MUST HAVE greater tolerance and understanding of other faiths and other customs, because the world has grown smaller and we live closer together. We cannot escape a rubbing of elbows which, of course, was unnecessary for our forefathers. They could seek far-away places in which they would not be disturbed by others who held different beliefs and followed different customs.

That is impossible for us today, and so we must learn, while holding our beliefs and living by them, to understand those of other people and to allow them to live in equal freedom in close association with ourselves. That is why this gift of an inter-faith house to be built at Cornell has a very deep meaning for the young people who spend such formative years of their lives in this great institution of our state.

Take My Word for It

Some Pronouncing Errors That Should Be Avoided.

HEARD on a newscast: "Vishinsky's attitude is not kun-DUCK-tive to harmony and understanding." The word "conductive" is incorrect in such a sentence, and it is certain that the word used in the news release was conducive, meaning, "helpful; tending to promote." The correct pronunciation is: kun-DYOO-siv; or: kun-DOO-siv.

Heard on a football broadcast: "It's time out now, and during the hy-EE-tuss let's pause for station identification." The word used is hiatus, "a break or slight pause." It's a rather bookish word for a sports broadcast. Moreover, there is no authority for the "ee" sound in the second syllable. The correct pronunciation is: hy-AY-tuss.

Heard on a movie "trailer": "Don't miss this exciting, SKIN-tillating comedy." The word used is scintillating, "sparkling, flashing brilliantly." The word was used correctly, but there is no hard "c" ("k") sound in the first syllable. The "c" is silent. Better say: SIN-ti-LAY-ting.

★ ★ ★

Heard at a luncheon club in introducing the speaker: "He served in the first World War as a captain in the Calvary." Calvary, of course, is the place outside Jerusalem where Christ was crucified. But a surprisingly large number of people confuse Calvary with the word cavalry, "a military force that serves on horseback."

These two words, so much alike in spelling, are worlds apart in meaning. Pronounce Calvary as: KAL-vuh-ree. Pronounce cavalry as: KAV-ull-ree.

Heard on a radio forum program: "We have seen nothing like it since Hitler's effort to mass-uh-kree all the Jews in Europe." The word massacre is from the French. In that language the pronunciation is: ma-SAK-ruh, the "ruh" being very brief and soft.

In the English pronunciation the accent falls on the first syllable; the third syllable is "ker" as in maker. Say: MASS-uh-ker.

Watch the words viscid and flaccid. Viscid means "sticky; adhering." Flaccid means "flabby; feeble; yielding." The "c" in viscid is silent. Viscid is pronounced: VISS-id. In flaccid the first "c" has the sound of "k," the second has the sound of "s," thus: FLAK-sid.

Special Spinach

Ingredients: Two to two and one-half cups well-drained cooked spinach, one teaspoon finely grated onion, one-fourth cup sour cream, salt and freshly ground pepper (to taste).

Method: After the spinach is cooked and well drained chop fine. (Or use quick-frozen spinach that is already chopped.) Put it in a saucepan with the onion, sour cream, salt and pepper to taste. Heat gently, stirring frequently and serve immediately. Four to five servings.

Financial Argument

By Dr. Paul Popenoe

MR. B. looked up from his account book disgustedly. "I knew we hadn't put something down," he grumbled. "You didn't put down those two blankets you bought last month. Can't you ever learn to enter expenses in an account book?"

"I don't spend any more money than we have," Mrs. B. retorted. "You know we needed those blankets."

"That has nothing to do with it. You keep demanding more money and then won't account for it when you get it."

"I don't get enough to account for," Mrs. B. snapped back. "If you had fixed the roof over the kitchen when it first began to leak—"

"Look here, we're not talking about the kitchen roof," Mr. B. shouted. "We're talking about the fact that no matter how much money you get, you don't seem to be capable of—." Well you know how it goes. It doesn't go anywhere; it just goes on, and on!

★ ★ ★

THE UNITED STATES SENATE has become somewhat conspicuous for filibusters. No one pretends that they lead to the passage of desirable measures. That isn't their purpose. They are merely intended to prevent someone from doing something he wants to do.

Filibusters are much more common in the home than in the Senate, and their effect is the same—creation of hard feelings and prevention of any useful action. Sometimes it is a double-barreled affair or, you might say, filibuster and counter-filibuster. Sometimes the wife out-talks her husband and he finally gives up. Then she is indignant because "he refuses to discuss things with me."

★ ★ ★

THE RULES of the United States Senate make it hard to stop a filibuster, and the Senate does not want to change its rules. But any married couple will do well to adopt such House Rules as will discourage filibustering in advance. Quarrels about money, for instance, can largely be avoided by agreeing on a reasonable budget, including a separate allowance for the wife; and then sticking to the agreement. Quarrels on other subjects can be avoided by appropriate planning.

Begin planning today, and stop filibustering.

Question: There seems to be very little neighborly co-operation in the town where I live.

Answer: That's characteristic of city life. A survey in England, of the way city dwellers spent their time, reports that "less than one person in a hundred mentioned any activity that involved co-operation with their fellow-citizens." We ought to be able to do better than that.

They'll Do It Every Time

RIDING AROUND TOWN

with BOB WOLFSON

NO ONE HAS ever accused me of being an etymologist! I approach an infinitive with the same caution that Frank Buck uses to ensnare a lion or tiger, with the objective of "bringing 'em back alive."

However, all the arguments which rage amidst the purists on the infinitive—to split or not to split, are as nothing compared to the lofty-brained skull sessions concerning "shall the letter be doubled when coining the plural?"

I happened to notice that our own transportation dispensary, the St. Louis Public Service Company uses just one modest little "s" in the plural of "bus." With no desire to tangle, etymologically speaking with the glad to have you aboard boys, I nevertheless checked with the Public Library, "Messrs." Oxford and Webster say "the plural of bus is spelled busses."

NO MATTER HOW YOU SPELL THE PLURAL OF "WASHOUT"—in the sense I'm about to apply it doesn't have anything to do with our better half's Monday morning chores. In the automobile business, "washout" is the science of disposing of one automobile traded in on another, at a profit or a loss (depending on whether the deal occurred in 1940 or 1948). It's my purpose, in bringing up this point of the "washout" to give you a look behind the 1948 automotive scene AND to place the Wolfson torso precariously on the limb of prediction by telling you what I think will be the picture in late December, 1949. (Maybe it's the influence of a long line of ancestors who were fond of titling at windmills or leading with their chins, I don't know.)

RIGHT NOW, probably as the result of the Macy investigation, there are reams of tables, graphs and charts pointing up various theories on value trends of "nearly new" current model cars. That this trend is downward is a fact well known to everyone. What caused it? My theory is (1) More production (2) Seasonal drop (look for the brief upward spurt along about March '49) and (3) Diminished buying power.

Let's travel in reverse as far back as the late '30s and the beginning of the '40s, when Chevrolets listed at prices around $850 to $950. More than 90 per cent of the dealers were "washing out" their trade-ins at a loss and darned glad to do so. Consequently in those days a prospective buyer who DIDN'T have an older car to trade, was considered far more desirable from the dealer's viewpoint. My, how tempus fugit.

Not having to worry about disposing of a used car, especially as he had plenty dough tied up in the 150 other used cars on his lot, the dealer would gladly make all kinds of concessions in order to close a deal with customer Zilch. With the gross profit on the car at that time approximately $225, the dealer secure in the knowledge of that fixed figure, could base his trading and concessions on it. He could, for instance take $100 off the list price — he could throw in something such as a heater, radio, white walls or what have you.

IN CONTRAST, there was the guy with the used car to trade. He very naturally did comparative shopping — getting bids from one dealer after another. Now the dealer had to be on the ball in appraising the used car so that it would "wash out" at a loss of less than new-car profit. Some people may not have realized those facts—and some, in view of the fact that the postwar period has found most dealers "washing out" their used cars at a profit, are reluctant to believe it. We assure you that prewar more than 90 per cent of the dealers were content to take a small loss on any trade-in. It should be noted in passing that Chevrolet through the years, has always maintained the highest trade-in value.

Contrast those facts with today's abnormal market wherein a year old, well-cared-for Chevrolet which has a higher "used" market value than the list price of the current model.

As the head of Feld Chevrolet, I, for one, will welcome the return to normalcy in the automotive industry. It will be a far healthier situation when we all have to go out and prove our ability to sell—in a buyer's market.

• • • •

NOW FOR THE YEAR'S END PREDICTIONS: I predict that a year from today, all dealers in the medium and high-priced field will be looking for straight deals at less than list price and "washing out" trade-ins at losses varying from $150 to $600. Chervolet, the leader and the other two cars in the low-priced field, will also approach a condition of normalcy.

I PREDICT: That sometime within the next 12 months the list price on most cars will have received their first postwar reduction. They won't get back to the range of the pre-war pricing but nonetheless it will be evident that the general downward pattern of list prices will have begun.

All of the above has been written with a sincere desire to give you the facts, past, present and future, on the automotive picture as I see it and foresee it.

MORE ABOUT THE FELD CHEVROLET CONTEST.

Things are beginning to shape up on the Feld Chevrolet contest—our twofold way of celebrating the move to our new quarters, Manchester and Laclede Station Road and the unveiling of the 1949 Chevrolet.

The contest will start simultaneously with the opening of our new building around late January and entries must be in by midnight, March 1st, 1949. We are in the midst of getting the official entry blanks prepared—said blanks to be available at the new building on the opening date. The contest concerns (a) opinion of the 1949 Feld Chevrolet and (b) opinion of our magnificent new building. The awards—are TWO 1949 FELD CHEVROLETS. So keep an eye on that opening date for both, the contest and our building.

To those who have already written expressing interest in our plans and in the column, I say heartiest thanks. Your letters are always welcome — so keep 'em coming to me at Feld Chevrolet, 2400 Big Bend in Maplewood.

The entire organization here at Feld Chevrolet joins me in a sincere wish to all of you for health and happiness in the coming year. I know that you join us in a New Year prayer of a world at peace.

My OPINION

By MARTHA CARR

Dear Martha Carr:

I HAVE a sister who is in love with a man my other sister and I do not think is good enough for her. He doesn't make enough to support her to begin with. So we have decided to see what we can do by way of breaking them up. We do all in our power to make him notice us, to get dates with him ourselves and keep him away from her as much as possible. She has never got up the courage to tell him how much she cares for him and I doubt that he has any real idea. Lately she has been begging us to stay away from him and give her more chance to be with him. This we have refused to do. Our parents don't approve of the way we are behaving, but then they don't know the whole story. We feel the only way to keep her from eventually making an unfortunate marriage will be for us to continue in the way we have begun. What do you think about this matter? She is 25.

F. J. J.

Your sister would breathe a sigh of thankfulness I am sure, had Heaven seen fit to send her less interfering relatives. Both of you girls, no matter what your age, should be turned over someone's knee and properly chastized. But what is wrong with the man in this picture? Has he no mind of his own? If he is as spineless as your letter would indicate your sister should be glad she has never spilled over and told him the state of her feelings toward him. I strongly suspect you girls have decided the marriage of your sister to this man would be "unfortunate" because unfortunately one of you hasn't landed him instead. Fie on you—stop this foolishness, heed what your mother has to say and let your sister manage her own affairs. At 25 she should be capable of this without your most un-charming assistance.

Dear Martha Carr:

THERE IS A GIRL 14 whom I like very much and would like to go with. At school I don t talk to her, as I don't have the courage. I walked her home once from a party but that is as far as I have got. It is the first time I ever went anywhere with a girl, and I didn't know what to talk about and couldn't say a word. Should a boy hold a girl's hand while he is walking her home? Is he supposed to kiss her goodnight? How can I get better acquainted with this girl?

D. S.

You a en't going to get better acquainted very fast if you continue to maintain that embarrassed silence. There are dozens of things to talk about, once you can learn to break the ice by forgetting yourself and wondering what kind of impression you are making. My "Masculine Popularity" leaflet will be of help to you, and so will my "Sub-deb" leaflet, though written primarily for the girls, still it can give a fellow some useful hints also. Send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope and I'll mail them to you. There is no rule saying you must hold a girl's hand while walking her home—there is no rule against it either, so use your judgment! As to kissing her goodnight—hold on there, wait until you have at least taken her out a few times, to say nothing of waiting until you have said something more to her than the few words you seem to have spoken to date, before making haste so fast in your mind!

Think Good Thoughts

BEFORE she'd been in the room five minutes, everyone was uncomfortable.

I don't know how they manage it, but there are people like that, people who spread an invisible aura of disagreeableness about them.

Some day I suppose we'll discover their secret and learn why one person is charming and attractive and another is as full of spines as a pup is of fleas.

PERSONALLY I have a hunch that it has much to do with the way we think about things and the things we think about.

Did it ever occur to you that we make our own world by our thoughts? We can.

We can make a rosy day as easily as we can make one dark with storm.

We may not have much choice about the things that happen to us but we can do anything we wish with them after they happen.

We may not have much to say about the big events in our life. They come and they go and there's little we can do about them. But we can do a whale of a lot about how we take them.

ONE MAN will take his bankruptcy with a grin. He doesn't want to be bankrupt—no one does. But he'll take it on the chin and stand it. The other fellow will need a wailing wall.

The first man doesn't like it any more than his brother does. He is involved just as deeply and is in just as tough a corner. But somewhere within himself he resolves to make the most of it. Some little valve clicks on that makes him act like a man instead of a mouse.

There's nothing new about these remarks but they come in wonderfully handy now and then. They're the stuff life is made of.

You make or you fail to make your own life. You are what you think.

Social Problems

By Emily Post

A MAN explains: "As a guest staying in the house, I was reading in the far corner of the living room when visitors arrived. Was it wrong for me to have gone back to my reading after getting up to acknowledge introductions and saying a few words? This happened to me lately and I was brought to task for rude behavior after the visitors left. I thought it was polite to leave my hosts with their friends and much more entertaining for me to read my magazine."

If before the visitors were seated you could have slipped out of the room, your leaving them might have passed unnoticed. But to sit down in their presence and deliberately read to yourself was certainly not very courteous.

DEAR MRS. POST: I am told that you do not approve of what is known as the guest prize at a bridge party. If this is true, will you please explain why?

Answer: It is entirely proper to give the guest of honor a guest prize, which is quite apart from highest score prize. If it happens that the guest of honor has highest score it is proper that she receive both the guest prize, which is a gift, and the first prize which she has won. My protest is against requiring the winner of highest score prize to give her prize to the guest of honor. This is not only incorrect, but certainly most unfair!

DEAR MRS. POST: When I was divorced, I discarded my very beautiful wedding band, for which I've since been sorry. I had no engagement ring, but a jeweled band of most unusual design. I was wondering whether it would be too late now to bring it out and wear the ring again—possibly on my right hand. Could it be criticized?

Answer: To wear the ring on your right hand will be quite all right.

'Listen to Music of Big Brass Band'

It Stirs Most Everybody, and Especially So if Group Happens To Be Crack Organization at Collinsville (Ill.) High School, Winner of National Awards—Top Credit to Long-Time Director

DIRECTOR FRANKLIN KREIDER . . . TURNED TO TEACHING MUSIC WHEN THE TALKIES PUT HIM OUT OF A JOB.

By F. A. Behymer

ON the stage there is the buzz and flutter to be expected when 76 boys and girls get together, even though they are the members of a top-ranking high school band, but the instant that the director steps briskly to the podium there is quick silence and the only movement is the alerting of instruments with military snap and precision.

That is the impression, amounting to an impact, that goes out to an audience at the beginning of a concert by the Collinsville (Ill.) Township High School Band, winner of trophies in three national contests and many district and state events and far-famed because of its annual tours to distant parts. This shows the training and discipline provided by Director Franklin C. Kreider that have brought the band to its eminence and to the town of Collinsville a unique distinction.

It was the coming of the talkies that ended the career of Franklin Kreider as a violinist and turned him into a director, and that was the beginning of the Collinsville High School Band. Born and reared in Collinsville, Kreider became a violinist and was playing professionally when along came the talkies and put him out of a job. That wasn't of itself so bad, for he had an interest in a Collinsville theater, but his heart was in music and he wasn't happy away from it.

So, as much for the fun of it as anything else, he organized a summer band about 18 years ago and gave a concert. School authorities had wanted to have music in the schools but the way had not opened. With the school board's approval Kreider was appointed band director. So in the fall of 1930 the Collinsville Township High School Band was started.

It was not an auspicious beginning. The only place that could be provided for training and practice without undue disturbance of the peace was the boiler room in the basement, with such competition as the whirring of three motors and the occasional dumping of coal into the chutes, with percussion effects and clouds of dust. There, under such conditions, the band got its start with 35 players and made such progress that it earned consideration for a better location. After a while the board bought an estate across the street with a de luxe barn on it that, when remodeled, was much better than the boiler room for band purposes. Also, it was well removed from the class rooms and less inimical to non-musical studies. So it was dedicated to what Director Kreider sometimes frivously calls stabilized music.

By the time Armistice day came around the barn-based band had become so well stabilized that Director Kreider felt that it could safely be taken out on the street for the town's American Legion parade. It was not as good as it was to become but it won the applause of the proud parents and the cautious approval of others.

AT the Washington University contests in the following spring the band placed in the first division, as it did at succeeding contests. That year the band entered in its first district contest at Centralia, Ill., as a class D organization, so classified because of the enrollment in the school that the band represented. The next year it had moved up into class B in the contest at Hillsboro, Ill., and in 1932 it captured first prize in the district contest in Collinsville against 15 bands and also the Washington University class B competition.

In 1934 the band won first in class B at Washington University, in the district contest at Belleville and in the state contest at the University of Illinois. The following year the band entered the national contest at Des Moines, and received a third rating. In 1935 it won first place in the national contest at the University of Kansas. In 1936 it was first in district and state and third in the national. In 1937 it was again first in district and state and first at the Fifth Division Convention of the American Legion at Salem, Ill.

In 1938 it was first in district, state and national contests. After that, on account of having won national contests, it was not permitted to enter district and state contests. Moving up to class A by reason of increased enrollment it won national firsts at Little Rock, Ark., and Kansas City, Mo. As winner three times in succession of national contests the band was barred thereafter from national competition.

To take the place of the annual contest trips Director Kreider and the Band Parents organization that had formed arranged annual concert tours, at first by special trains and later by bus fleets, with many of the parents going along, with an average of 150 making each trip. On the first tour concerts were given at Mattoon (Ill.) High School, Eastern Illinois Teachers' College at Charleston, State Teachers' College at Terre Haute, Ind., and Woodward High School, Cincinnati. Invited back to Cincinnati, the band played the following two years there and at Covington, Newport and Fort Thomas, Ky., to audiences totaling 12,000.

In the following years the band traveled to Memphis, Tenn., Louisville, Ky., Fort Worth, Tex., and the North Texas State Teachers' College, 10 concerts to 20,000 people, and in 1948 to New Orleans, where a week was spent and 12 concerts given, one of them for the general public.

Next year the tour will be to Duluth, Minn., Superior, Wis., Port Arthur and Fort William, Canada.

In the earlier years the band members were uniformed only in berets and capes, but at Collinsville's centennial, a festival and pageant sponsored by the Band Parents' Association and other civic organizations, funds were raised for complete uniforms.

Of great importance in maintaining the band at the high level that it has attained is the spirit fostered by the Band Parents' Association, for membership in which all parents of players are eligible. The organization, as a cross-section of the community, stands strongly behind the young musicians and has a social solidarity of its own, highlighted by the annual venison dinner for the members provided by Director Kreider.

The officers of the band are: Kenneth Cooper, president; Norman Schuette, vice president; Betty Riley, secretary; Carol Nuetzel, treasurer; Buddy Hamilton, reporter. The officers of the parents' association are: Randolph Kamm, president; Stephen Wright, vice president; Mrs. Frank Lacquement, secretary; Mrs. Victor Renner, treasurer. Both band and parents' organization are highly valued and viewed with proper pride by D. K. Darling, superintendent of schools.

THE band is regarded as a model for all schools that have musical organizations. At every concert there are in the audience large groups of players and their leaders from other schools.

An obvious difficulty in maintaining the band's efficiency is the fact that each year about one-fourth of the most highly developed young musicians are lost by graduation and an equal number of freshmen enter the band to begin their training. Last spring 30 seniors were lost and were replaced by 30 freshmen, but when the annual Christmas concert was given, in which the freshmen made their first appearance, the quality of the performance was fully maintained. Partial explanation of this is the practice of Director Kreider in testing grade pupils for musical requirements and beginning their training during the summer in preparation for them to be taken into the band in the autumn.

The program for the Christmas concert was a severe test for even the older members of the band, for it included the unfinished first movement of Symphony VIII, B minor, of Franz Schubert, the Reverie of Claude Debussy, a Victor Herbert suite of serenades and, by way of contrast, Handy's St. Louis Blues. In keeping with the custom of having important guest soloists, Harry Farbman, concert master and assistant conductor of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, played violin numbers. At the next concert, January 24, Edith Schiller (Mrs. Farbman) will be the piano soloist. Part of the concert, as always, was broadcast by Station WTMV, East St. Louis.

The value of the instruction given to the band members is reflected in the fact that more of them who have graduated are continuing their musical activities in colleges than students who have taken any other subject in the school. The cultural carry-over to the community is considered to be incalculable.

The largest enrollment that the band ever had was 88 in one year. Usually there are boys and girls in about equal numbers, but this year there are 49 girls to 27 boys.

For the instruction given by Kreider to groups of students composing sections of the band credits are earned the same as for academic instruction.

Last year the Chamber of Commerce looked around for a person to whom might be presented a plaque as the First Citizen of Collinsville. Somebody suggested Band Director Kreider and the search went no farther. So to Franklin C. Kreider was given recognition as a man "who has developed our young citizens year after year, awakened in them the love of music, taught them the value of co-operation, guided them to many high honors, brought cultural distinction to our school and community."

As the director steps to the podium and the 76 young musicians alert their instruments with military snap and precision, he sweeps them with a glance of kindling pride and gives them full measure of credit for what has been wrought.

Contract Bridge

By Ely Culbertson

A BETTER job of "card-placing" would have given South his vulnerable slam contract in today's deal.

South, dealer.

	♠AK42 ♥Q652 ♦J10843 ♣—
♠QJ863 ♥K107 ♦K5 ♣J108	NORTH WEST EAST SOUTH	♠75 ♥984 ♦6 ♣Q976432
	♠109 ♥AJ3 ♦AQ972 ♣AK5

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♠	1♠	2♠	Pass
3♣	Pass	3♦	Pass
3♥	Pass	5♦	Pass
6♦	Pass	Pass	Pass

West, with an eye to the safest possible lead, opened the club jack. Declarer let this lead ride to his own hand, discarding a heart from dummy; then he went to the board with a spade and took the finesse. West won and returned the spade queen. This trick was won in dummy, of course, but after aimlessly running a few trumps and discarding another heart from dummy on his second club trick, declarer ruffed his own last club and tried the heart finesse. This also failed and the slam was lost.

South should have given greater consideration to the bidding, and he might have realized that his finesse for the diamond king was a losing play. West, vulnerable, had overcalled one diamond with one spade, and since dummy had the A-K of the suit while South himself had 10-9, it was fairly obvious that West could not have been very strong in that one direction. So, the probability was that West had both of the missing red kings "as compensation." That being so, South should have ignored the opportunity to finesse in diamonds; he should have laid down the ace. The king would not fall, but he would nevertheless be in an excellent position. He now could ruff out dummy's low spades and eliminate clubs from his own hand, then throw West in with a trump. The forced heart return would give South the needed tricks; or if West led his fifth spade, dummy would discard still another heart, while South was ruffing.

Gin Rummy

By Oswald Jacoby

TOUGH LUCK.

THERE used to be a young man in Chicago who made a nice living listening to hard luck card stories. He charged a dollar for simply listening and increased fees up to as much as $10 for listening with extreme sympathy and tears. However, if he felt that the story teller had been the victim of some especially unfavorable act of a malign deity he would waive his entire fee. I am sure that the victim of today's hand would have been one of those cases.

Here is the story in the victim's words. "I am the most unlucky gin player in the world. Everything goes wrong for me. I dealt and turned up the queen of hearts which my opponent promptly grabbed. At the time I held the queen of diamonds and the ten of hearts so had to hold on to both cards. Two plays later he threw the queen of clubs so I let my queen of diamonds go. He took that card and I now drew the ten of diamonds. Obviously he held two sequences and my tens were both players. Then a few plays later he knocked and showed up with three queens. It seems that his discard of the queen of clubs had been an inadvertence but he certainly profited from it. Don't you agree that nothing worse has ever happened to a gin player?"

I must say that his experience is about the toughest luck I have encountered. Not only did he have to have the fourth queen to restore his opponent's matched set but he had to hold both the ten spots that should have played on the supposed sequences. Then the red kings and jacks were all left in the stack. If one of them had appeared the show would have been given away. So I am awarding this column's specially embroidered crying towel to this reader.

Coffee Fudge Drops

Two cups sugar, one cup brown sugar, firmly packed, one-half cup evaporated milk, undiluted, two tablespoons water, one-fourth cup cocoa, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one teaspoon instant coffee, one teaspoon butter or margarine, one teaspoon vanilla extract.

Sift sugar right into a heavy saucepan. Add evaporated milk, water, cocoa and salt and stir until smooth.

Place over medium heat and bring to a boil without stirring. Continue to boil, stirring occasionally, until thermometer reaches 230 degrees fahrenheit, or until a little dropped into cold water forms a soft ball. Then stir in the instant coffee.

Take off the stove and set saucepan into a pan of cold water immediately. Let it cool, without stirring, for 20 minutes or until candy is cool all through. Add butter or margarine and beat hard until candy begins to hold its shape but is still pliable. Add vanilla extract. Then drop (you really push) by spoonfuls onto waxed paper. Work fast to keep shine.

Tips for Teens

Big Question: Who Pays?

By Elinor Williams

"WHO PAYS?" is the date-time question which puzzles many high-schoolers. Maybe your query is among these from the mail:

1. "Who pays for the transportation when a girl invites a boy to a dance?" Answer—The girl buys tickets for the dance; all other expenses, including transportation, are paid by her escort. When they go in a car with another couple, the boy offers to share the expense of the gas.

2. "Who pays for corsages when a girl gives a party? I'm having a rather large, special party on my sixteenth birthday. The girls are going to wear formal dresses, so I wondered if the boys should pay for corsages if we have them." Ans.—When a girl gives a party, she usually invites all the girls and boys who attend; that is, the girls are her guests, not the boys' guests. The boys might not know all the girls. So, as hostess, it's up to you to provide small corsages as "party favors," if you wish. It would not be correct to expect the boys to pay for corsages unless possibly each boy invited a girl of his own choice and wanted to give her flowers.

3. "When a boy invites a girl from his home town to a dance and special weekend at his preparatory school, who pays her railroad fare?" Ans.—The boy pays for tickets to the dance and makes arrangements for her to stay on or near the campus, paying the expenses for her room or meals (or both). It is not correct, however, for him to pay her railroad fare. She pays that herself. After her arrival at the campus, she's his guest and all other expenses are his.

How It Started

By Jean Newton

The Word "Slay."

THOSE who light-heartedly indulge in the modern slang "you slay me," by which they mean that they are impressed or amused or surprised in the extreme, must surely assume a less painful end than is implied in the origin of the word SLAY.

In the days when this word had its start, there were no such refinements of civilization as the electric chair or the gas chamber to minimize the agony of execution; the pangs of death were likely to be more severe and of longer duration. "Slay" is an old Teutonic word, coming to us out of the Old English "slan" or "slee." It derives from the Anglo-Saxon "slean," meaning "to strike, to beat."

"Slay" in varied forms and spellings exists in numerous modern Teutonic languages — Danish, Swedish, Gothic, German — and with the same literal meaning, namely "to strike" or "to beat." That is the word's secret; it means to beat to death.

It is thought that "slay" may have some kinship with the Latin "lacerare," to tear to pieces, which is out of the Greek word that gives us "lacerate." Another interesting way of being "slain," and something of a commentary on old-fashioned ways!

Need for Vitamin D During Winter Months

VITAMIN D is essential for the proper development of the bones and teeth and for the prevention of rickets. It is also essential for normal day-to-day growth. If one does not get enough of it, serious illness can result.

The acute stages are bowed legs, misshapen jaws, contracted pelvis and thorax, decaying and protruding teeth, bronchitis, pneumonia and other respiratory tract disturbances. It is most vital that children get vitamin D from sunshine or from vitamin D concentrate, usually found in fish liver oils.

Vitamin D is formed in the body by the action of the ultraviolet rays of the sun, so we need not fear a deficiency as long as we get sunshine in strong doses.

Some authorities feel that during the winter months nature can be imitated through the use of a sun lamp. But we must take it in concentrate form when we cannot get sunshine or use a sun lamp, for few foods contain vitamin D in an appreciable amount.

Adult requirement of vitamin D daily is not so high as that for a child. Cod liver oil for children during the cold, sunless months is almost a must (whether they like to take it or not!) and adults keep healthier by taking one concentrated capsule of vitamin D daily.

Plan Child's Leisure Time In the Home

By Angelo Patri

CHILDREN must have some sort of interesting occupation, some form of usefulness and some form of entertainment at home. If they find no such comfort at home they must look for it somewhere else—in the neighbors' houses, on the streets, in places of public entertainment.

Most homes offer forms of usefulness, many offer the forms of interesting occupations, few have the entertainment they would like for the children, all of them could do better than they think with the means at hand.

If fathers and mothers thought about it they could find a chore that they now do themselves which would interest and instruct a child. The reasons they have for not passing it along to him are natural enough but not convincing.

* * *

"YES, HE COULD take care of the waste paper, the garbage, the dog, the garage, the pump, the walk, the answering of the telephone in the afternoon or evening; but I can do it faster, better, more as I want it done." That is true, yet by doing it yourself, the child loses the experience. Teaching is a gnawing of the spirit and often painful, but it should be done.

The home entertainment calls for attention, too. If the family is musical, a family orchestra is a wonderful thing in the home, making for understanding, helpfulness and unity. Reading together, writing plays and acting them, putting on a show for an anniversary are possibilities for some families. Then, too, there always are the radio and the phonograph.

* * *

PARENTS COMPLAIN that radio programs are a poor influence on children. There are good programs for children on the radio if one takes the time to listen and find them. The others need not be tuned in. The radio people, like the movie folk, try to suit many tastes and they do. And it would help all concerned if listeners took their pens in hand to write to the radio stations their opinions of the programs they hear. We're too lazy about that. We might lay in a handful of cards and make a habit of reporting on the programs we hear—when we like them and when we don't. If we don't do that, we should not complain too much. We need merely turn off the program we don't like.

The phonograph is a way out of many difficult problems of home entertainment. One always can select the records wanted. That means we can make our own programs if we wish, and why not? There are wonderful records for children, for teen-agers, for the elders.

It seems to me that if we would plan the home entertainment a bit—buying good books, good records and listening to fine radio programs—we could make most children happy in their leisure time at home.

Economical Menus for Tomorrow

By Meta Given

IN the West and Southwest they serve a very interesting style of hamburger which they call "big size," "size," and "half size." It's not only popular at the "eating shacks" on college campuses but in restaurants of other types as well as homes. These hamburgers are three-story arrangements. The first one is a toasted hamburger bun, the second a hamburger patty, the third tender boiled chili or pinto beans. And sometimes there is a fourth story of finely chopped onion.

Naturally the "big size" is the biggest addition, the "size" is the normal one and the "half size" is designed for folks who are not ravenously hungry. As you can see, there is a lot of food value packed in this one food. All that is needed to round out a substantial and satisfying meal is a vegetable salad, a fruit dessert and a beverage. And these "sizes" are economical concoctions as well as being nutritious. Pinto beans are inexpensive, they can be cooked with little or no watching over a simmer burner or pilot light, but they must be cooked until very tender to be really delicious. They contain excellent protein and therefore are a wonderful meat stretcher at this time when meat is costing so much. This husky main dish takes little time to prepare too so it is a good one to remember on busy days.

Margarined Kidney Beans.

Wash one-third pound small dried kidney beans (seven and one-half cents) thoroughly; add three and one-half cups cold water and one-half teaspoon salt. Heat to boiling, cover and simmer gently two to two and one-half hours or until beans are very tender. There should be just enough water left so the beans will not be dry. Add one and one-half tablespoons margarine (two cents). Makes two cups or four servings.

"Big Size"

Two tablespoons margarine, three-quarters pound ground beef, three-quarters teaspoon salt; pepper to taste, one medium onion (one-half cup chopped), four hamburger buns.

Heat fat until hot, in a skillet, mix salt and pepper into ground beef, shape into patties, lay patties into skillet, brown quickly on both sides, turning carefully with pancake turner. Reduce heat, cover and cook slowly about five to six minutes, or until cooked through. Transfer hot patties to split hamburger buns that have been toasted; top each hamburger with one-half cup kidney beans (see above for cooking instructions), then sprinkle two tablespoons chopped onions over each. Replace hamburger bun tops and serve at once. Four servings.

Low Cost Menus.
TUESDAY.

LUNCHEON: . . . Broiled whitefish, canned cream-style corn, lettuce-watercress salad with vinaigrette dressing, whole wheat bread and butter, butter-scotch ripple ice cream.

Pop Corn Cheese Snacks

Looks different! Tastes different! Is different! Snowy white pop corn covered with dark chocolate. Really delicious. Combine one cup sugar, one-half cup water, and one-half cup corn syrup in saucepan. Cook for five minutes over slow fire. Add three tablespoons of butter or margarine and three one-ounce cakes of unsweetened chocolate. Cook until small portion tested in cold water stiffens and cracks. Pour over four quarts popped corn. Stir until chocolate is well distributed and turns sugary.

Einstein has said that in mathematical theory it is possible to turn a tennis ball inside out without breaking the cover. But we still don't believe that Chinese armies simultaneously encircle each other.
